VAUGHAN ADMITS RECEIVING CAMPAIGN GIFTS FROM RACE TRACK MAN AND MARAGON

DARST SAYS HE WON'T REINSTATE EGENRIETHER AS FIRE CHIEF

Mayor Will See Former Department Head at 2:30 P.M. Friday, But Declares Position Is Unchanged.

Mayor Joseph M. Darst will not reinstate Frank Egenriether as fire chief, from which position Egenriether resigned Aug. 3, the Mayor said flatly yesterday. The announcement was made as the former fire chief attempted to obtain an appointment with Darst to request permission to withdraw the resignation.

"Egenriether is not going to be chief of the fire department," Darst told reporters after arriving at his office at City Hall shortly after 4 p.m.

The Mayor, who said he would see Egenriether, left arrangements for the time of the meeting in the hands of his secretary, Fred Hume Jr., who today notified Egenriether that Darst would see him at 2:30 p.m. Friday.

Egenriether visited Darst's office yesterday morning, then returned to his home at 5433 Loughborough avenue to await word from the Mayor's office staff as to when he might see Darst.

During the press conference, Darst at first said he couldn't say what his action on the Egenriether matter would be until he talked to him.

"I don't know what he wants," the Mayor said. "I said before that I would see him, and I will.

"However, my position has never changed in this matter from the very start to this moment."

This statement, he said, applied to both Egenriether's not being reinstated, or reappointed, and to Darst's pledge to appoint the "top man" in the Civil Service examination taken by eight applicants, all present members of the fire department, for promotion to the position of chief.

"It is no fault of mine Egenriether did not take the examination," Darst said. "I had nothing to do with that."

Not Eligible for Test.

Egenriether was not eligible for the examination under civil service rules, since it was promotional in nature and open only to persons of lesser rank in the department.

His resignation, effective Sept. 10, was tendered, he said at the time, rather than assume the responsibility for dismissal of 124 department employes for economy. Darst immediately accepted the resignation and announced shortly later there would be no reduction in personnel of the department.

Asked by a reporter if anything might be accomplished by Egenriether's coming in to talk with him, Darst replied:

"I think he should come in and talk to me. I think he should have done so before." He then added that Egenriether "is not going to be chief."

Cites Legality.

The Mayor also said he does not think it is legal to withdraw a resignation, adding, "There's some question of the legality of his withdrawing the resignation and my right to permit him to do so." He refused to discuss this phase of the matter further.

Pressed for an explanation as to what might be accomplished by Egenriether's conferring with him, Darst said:

"Well, I would be willing to talk to him about taking another position in the department." As to whether such position might be that of battalion chief, captain, or private, "is undetermined," the Mayor said, and would depend upon discussion between him and Director of Public Safety Myles P. Dyer.

"I want to emphasize there will be no partisan politics in the Fire Department as long as I am Mayor," Darst told reporters in terminating the press conference.

Egenriether, a Republican, said today that he would wait until after his meeting with Darst before determining what further steps he might take to regain the position of fire chief.

Decision Made Sunday.

His decision to attempt to withdraw the resignation was made Sunday after returning home from a two-week vacation in Colorado with his wife. They found some 75 letters from individuals and organizations urging him to withdraw the resignation. Egenriether also received numerous telephone calls from well-wishers, expressing hope for his reinstatement, after he returned home.

A. A. Ahner, industrial relations counselor, who took it upon himself to head a reinstatement movement during Egenriether's absence from St. Louis, said today the Mayor's attitude "is incomprehensible to me, in view of the popular demand for Egenriether's reinstatement."

"I hope the Mayor will have changed his mind by the time he talks to Egenriether," Ahner said. "If he doesn't, I'll talk to Egenriether and determine a course of action."

Ahner has received $1500 in contributions to defray costs of a campaign to restore Egenriether to his position. Petitions calling upon Darst to reinstate Egenriether are ready for ciruclation, Ahner said, but will not be circulated unless the former chief is agreeable to such action.

180 DAYS IN JAIL FOR SMOKING

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 30 (AP)—Longshoreman Jose Venegas was only smoking a cigarette, but the judge gave him 180 days in jail.

The reason: He was smoking aboard a ship, the Grace Line freighter Santa Juana, loaded with 7660 cases of dynamite, 2000 kegs of blasting powder and 14 cases of dynamite caps.

Boy Scout Sees Lad Fall Off Boat, Rescues Him From East Side Lake

—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.

An 8-year-old boy was rescued from a lake in Lake Park in East St. Louis yesterday by a 14-year-old Boy Scout who saw him fall from a boat and went in after him.

The boy saved is Larry Qualls, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Qualls, 429 North Thirty-fifth street. His rescuer is Richard Isbill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Isbill, 1450 Cleveland avenue.

Young Qualls, who had ridden his new bicycle to the park yesterday without his parents' knowledge, climbed into a rowboat pulled up on the shore. Two youths, seeing him in it, shoved the boat out into the water. Isbill, observing the boy's plight, called to him to use the oar but the boy, attempting to row, lost his balance and fell overboard.

Isbill, who began removing his trousers, shoes and shirt as he talked to young Qualls, jumped in the water and swam about 25 yards to the boy, then towed him to shore in water that was over the rescuer's head. Except for a subsequent spanking, the Qualls boy was none the worse for his experience.

LEWIS CUTS MINE WORK TO 2 DAYS FOR NEXT WEEK

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30 (AP)—John L. Lewis today ordered coal miners east of the Mississippi river to work only two days next week.

It was the first change in the work schedule since the United Mine Workers' leader fixed a three-day production week for the industry to reduce coal stocks and abandoned his "no contract, no work" policy July 1.

7 ST. LOUIS AREA GUARDSMEN HURT IN SHELL BLAST

FORT LEONARD WOOD, Mo., Aug. 30—Seven St. Louis area members of the 138th Infantry, Missouri National Guard, were injured, two seriously, when a mortar shell exploded in a group of guardsmen during a firing problem yesterday.

Most seriously injured were Pvt. Robert Soell, 5504 Delmar boulevard, chest wound and fractured ribs, and Lawrence C. Sherill, 5758 Waterman avenue, who suffered a hand injury requiring amputation of the right middle finger at the first joint.

Others injured were: Cpl. Wendell O. Beans Jr., 4203A Laclede avenue; Recruit William A. Haggarty, 4366 West Pine boulevard; Pvt. Joe P. Waddock, 522 W. Big Bend road, Webster Groves; Recruit Elmer L. Blatz, 2825 Clara avenue, and Pvt. Lyle P. Murphy, 2303 Sidney street. All suffered minor shrapnel wounds.

The injured were given emergency treatment at the scene. Soell was taken to a hospital at nearby Waynesville, where a blood transfusion was administered. The others were treated at the station hospital.

The explosion occurred after a shell was accidentally deflected into the group on the mortar range. The regiment, a part of the Thirty-fifth Division, was entering the second and last week of its encampment at this wartime training base.

A board of officers under Maj. Kirk Jeffrey of the 138th Infantry was named to investigate the accident.

Rooster's Peck Causes Death.

ELLWOOD CITY, Pa., Aug. 30 (AP)—A peck by a rooster caused the death today of Mrs. Ella Francis, 69 years old, of nearby Frisco. She was attacked by the fowl 10 days ago. The infected wound on her leg resulted in her death in Ellwood City Hospital.

Beauty Queen's Home Town Plans Fund Rally to Send Her to Contest

KELSO, Wash., Aug. 30 (UP)—The hometown folk of Libby Aldrich, 19 years old, rallied today to save her tottering rhinestone crown as Miss Washington.

They hoped to raise $2000 in a rally tonight to buy her the clothes necessary for her trip to the Atlantic City Miss America beauty contest next month.

The daughter of a lumberjack, Miss Aldrich said she just couldn't go without the proper clothes. The Miss Washington pageant which awarded her the title was so deeply in debt it even had trouble preventing a Seattle manufacturer from repossessing her $150 rhinestone crown.

The whole town was upset. A girl paraded up Kelso's main street last night with a sign on which was printed: "I've got more clothes than Miss Washington."

Miss Aldrich was promised a $5000 wardrobe and a chaperon, according to outraged Kelso Chamber of Commerce officials. Instead, according to them, she got a green winter coat, an avacado-colored nightie, a couple of dresses, and "no hats nor one pair of nylon stockings." Total worth of the wardrobe was estimated at $300 by Jim Dolin, manager of Kelso's Chamber of Commerce.

For awhile, it appeared that Libby would be accompanied—not by a chaperon—but by another Miss Washington to Atlantic City.

The judges wanted to investigate "her attitude." But Kelso officials were determined "our girl is going anyway."

Today, judges said a substitute would not be selected, "because Libby doesn't have a thing to do with this." And the crown-owner agreed to let Libby keep it "for awhile."

ANTI-COMMUNIST REVOLT CRUSHED, CZECHS CLAIM; SIX GIVEN DEATH

Government Says Plotters Were Linked With 'Certain Western Power' — Army Men Reported Involved.

By RICHARD KASISCHKE

PRAGUE, Aug. 30 (AP)—The Czechoslovak Government announced today it had crushed an anti-Communist underground movement just as the group was preparing to begin an armed revolution.

The official press bureau linked the underground members with "a certain western imperialistic power," but did not identify the power.

Details of the purported plot were announced after a secret trial at which six persons were condemned to death, 10 given life imprisonment and an unspecified number lesser prison terms. Ten of those tried were acquitted.

The announcement termed members of the group spies and terrorists, and said they were tried on charges of high treason and spying on behalf of the western power "with which they had been in contact."

Cat-and-Mouse Game.

The Government claimed its police had played a cat-and-mouse game with the alleged conspirators and waited until they were all set to begin the revolution before moving in to nab them.

One of those sentenced to death was Josef Charvat, identified by friends as chief of security police here under the first republic.

The Government said the political leader of the planned putsch was Dr. Jaroslav Borkovec, identified as the brother of a former chief of the Prague police's criminal investigation section. His brother was ousted when the Communists took over the government in February 1948. Dr. Borkovec also was given the death penalty.

Informed sources said those sentenced included army and police personnel, as well as civilians.

The trial of the group was reported to have lasted several weeks in the Prague State Court. The government said many of the accused pleaded guilty.

Date Not Disclosed.

Date of the attempted coup was not disclosed, but it was reported the group chose a bank holiday "when the working people were at home and unable to mount counter-action."

The announcement said the group was attempting to "prepare an armed conspiracy aimed at crushing the people's democratic regime." It added that those arrested were "the last participants of a highly treasonable underground movement" which police had been tracking for some time.

This was the second official announcement in four days about the crushing of a group denounced as anti-government terrorists. On Saturday, the government said nine men accused of trying to overthrow the Communist-led government had been convicted of high treason by a state court at Melnik, north of Prague. This group also had been charged with seeking to reach foreign powers.

The official story about the Prague group said they had "set the day and hour for their armed revolt." This account said the group had been in touch with "treacherous" Czechoslovak exiles through "the help of an employe of the Prague Embassy of a western power." The plotters were said to have "left a copy of their plan for an uprising in this western embassy."

U.S. Embassy Surprised.

A spokesman at the American Embassy said "we don't know anything about this. It is just as much news to us as to everybody else."

The government's account of the plan for revolution said the conspirators had been assigned definite tasks, had armed themselves and were ready to act. They were then to begin a series of attacks against key points in the city, seize public offices and "wipe out certain persons," the account said.

"Then the attacks were to be deployed into the country. There the population was to be confused with faked proclamations which would attempt to give the impression of legality to this revolt and intimidate the people with bloodshed or threats of bloodshed."

The government claimed the plotters included some women who "were seducing young members of the Boy Scouts in order to use them later in the gang's armed action." Three of those sentenced to life were women.

42 LUNCHROOMS IN SCHOOLS HERE GET 'A' RATING

The 42 lunchrooms and cafeterias in the St. Louis public schools have been given an "A" rating by the food control section of the Health Division after inspection of their food handling facilities, it was announced today.

George F. Reeves, chief of the section, said routine inspections would be made after the schools resume classes next month to determine if food handling procedures comply with the requirements of the ordinance.

The Board of Education had long resisted efforts by city inspectors to inspect and grade the school lunchrooms, contending the board, as a state agency, was not subject to the city's clean restaurant ordinance. The city was upheld, however, by the St. Louis Court of Appeals last September. The inspection, results of which were announced today, is the first since the court decision.

U.S. STUDIES PLAN TO AID BRITAIN BY BUYING MORE STRATEGIC GOODS

English Say Dollars Earned Through Increased Stockpiling Would Greatly Help Plans for Solving Crisis.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30 (AP)—The United States is considering a plan to send more dollars Britain's way by increasing purchases of strategic materials from British markets.

Government officials said this country's negotiators are giving a sympathetic hearing to British requests for a speedup in American strategic stockpiling during the next few months. The British contend dollars earned in that period will prove of great help to them in charting long-range plans for solving their present economic crisis.

Tin and rubber are the main strategic items Britain has to offer. The United States has been buying limited quantities of these to add to the growing stockpile of strategic materials being set aside for an emergency.

Officials said, however, it is doubtful that the Administration will consent to increase British sales by relaxing regulations requiring American rubber manufacturers to use 220,000 tons of synthetic rubber annually in their products. They explained that any move to amend these rules might affect national security since synthetic rubber plants might be needed in case of war. The Government owns all synthetic plants now.

British Government officials continued to outline their problems to American and Canadian Government representatives today in meetings at the State Department. These preliminary "fact finding" discussions are in their third day.

Top cabinet officials from Britain and Canada are scheduled to arrive over the weekend to hammer these facts into a three-nation program aimed at checking the British economic slump.

CRIPPS VIEW UPHELD IN CABINET DECISION

LONDON, Aug. 30 (UP)—British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin and Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir Stafford Cripps sail for the United States tomorrow with a 15,000-word brief outlining the British position in the three-power financial conference opening Sept. 7 at Washington.

The plan, approved by the British Cabinet yesterday reaffirmed Cripps's rejection of devaluation of the pound as a quick cure in itself. The decision put an end to rumors that the Cabinet was aligned against Cripps on the devaluation issue. Informed sources reported that the split, if one ever existed, vanished in the course of the meeting, with Cripps's view dominent.

The reported agreement amounted to a willingness by the British to talk devaluation, but not to cheapen the pound unless that

MARAGON TO SHINE IN VAUGHAN CASE

DENIES HE WAS TOLD NEW YORK GAMBLING KING WAS CONTRIBUTOR

Truman Aide Says He Never Helped Anyone Improperly or Received a Fee — On Stand Again Tomorrow.

By JOSEPH DRISCOLL
National Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30—Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan of St. Louis admitted today he had received political contributions in 1946 from John Maragon, former Kansas City bootblack who became a man-to-know in Washington, and William Helis, racetrack operator—two men he had given a hand in dealings with Government agencies.

Vaughan, President Truman's Army aide, denied emphatically, however, that Maragon had told him that Frank Costello, alleged New York gambling king, contributed part of the money.

Denies Ever Getting a Fee.

Previously he had said in a statement given to the committee that he had helped business men in dealings with the Government, but never in an improper way and never for a fee, gift or favor.

Just before the disclosure, Vaughan had been sharply cross-examined by Senator McCarthy (Rep.), Wisconsin, and became confused.

"You never got money from Maragon?" Vaughan was asked.

"No," he said.

"No."

"He never handed you an envelope?"

"No—oh, he did."

Vaughan recalled Maragon handed him about $2000 for Truman's 1946 campaign. He said Maragon also gave him a $1000 check from George Skouras, former St. Louisan. He added he had received a contribution direct from "Bill" Helis. Vaughan asserted he turned over all contributions to Roy W. Harper, Missouri State Chairman.

Denies Knowing Costello.

Did Maragon give you money from Costello?"

"Am I supposed to know Frank Costello?" Vaughan fenced.

"You never heard of Frank Costello?"

"I heard people mention the name."

"Now, did you receive any money from Costello?"

"Certainly not," said Vaughan, and he added quickly: "I have no recollection."

As the questioning continued, Vaughan snapped, "May I ask who is Frank Costello? What bearing does he have on this?"

"Frank Costello is a rather famous——"

"Oh, the New York gangster," Vaughan interrupted.

Further as to Costello, Vaughan said: "I'm sure if Maragon told me he got funds from that fellow, I'd remember."

"Did you receive any money from gamblers or race tracks?"

"No."

Vaughan said William Helis contributed "two to three thousand dollars."

As a Missourian, Vaughan was asked if he had reported these contributions under the Missouri state law.

"I didn't know a go-between—a messenger boy—had to file," he said.

Vaughan, wearing five rows of ribbons and a worried look, denied under oath that he abused his office as Truman's Army aide to benefit his friends among Washington's 5 percenters and influence peddlers.

By reason of 30 years' association with Truman, Vaughan testified, his duties in serving the President "have not been limited to military matters, but also have included other administrative functions."

"I have discharged my duties honestly and to the best of my ability," Vaughan said.

Some Vaughan Points.

Vaughan made these points:

1. He admitted friendship with James V. Hunt but denied aiding him with any government agency.

2. He admitted receiving seven deep freezers for Truman administration members, but said there were no strings attached—"It was an expression of friendship and nothing more."

3. As for Maragon, Vaughan admitted assisting him at times, but denied authorizing Maragon to speak for the White House.

4. Concerning California's Tanforan race track, which got building material priorities when the housing shortage was most acute, Vaughan said he intervened in the matter at the request of an old friend, William Helis, race horse owner, but he denied attempting to influence Government officials.

5. Vaughan admitted facilitating European trips for a perfume enterprise, the Verley company of Chicago, but insisted

Contractor Sets Aside Fund to 'Encourage Sterilization of Household Pets.'

The will of Leonard D. Putney, filed today, left a large share of his $299,999 estate to the Humane Society of St. Louis county, "to be used to advance and encourage, by all lawful means, the sterilization of household pets."

This provision was made in a paragraph following the paragraph in which Putney bequeathed to his wife, Amelia Putney, "whatever she may be entitled to as a matter of and under the law, and no more, provided we are married at the time of my death."

Attorneys said the Putneys were still married at the time of his death Aug. 20. He was a roofing contractor and lived at 5111A Delmar boulevard.

The will left $10,000 to the Humane Society of Missouri, and the residue, after this bequest and the wife's portion, to the county society, for the purpose stated, which he went on to advocate in the document.

"My belief," he wrote, "is that breeders, licensed by the states, should be the only persons who should have unsterilized household pets, which could be used by them for breeding purposes." He went on to express his desire "to publicize and advocate, influence and encourage the sterilization of cats and dogs."

Another purpose expressed was "to encourage people not to waste money on burials (the text did not indicate whether this referred to burials of human beings or animals), and to bequeath such money to humane societies, to be used to maintain clinics for free sterilization of household pets."

He named Fritz Grolock of the Humane Society of Missouri executor without bond, and James D. Dickery as attorney for the estate.

FOUR-ALARM FIRE IN WAREHOUSE OF MATTRESS PLANT

A four-alarm fire broke out this afternoon in the warehouse of the F. Burkart Manufacturing Co., a mattress and upholstering establishment at 4900 North Second street. Twenty-one pieces of fire apparatus, including nine pumpers, three house wagons, three hook-and-ladders and others were sent to the scene.

Firemen were summoned by a sprinkler alarm from the warehouse at 2:38 p.m., following which three box alarms were rung in at 2:42 p.m., 3:03 p.m. and 3:16 p.m. Excelsior and other inflammable upholstering supplies were stored in the warehouse.

Dense clouds of smoke arose, attracting a large crowd of spectators in Second street and along East Prairie avenue, north of the plant. Police blocked off the streets and set up fire lines.

RUSSIA CHARGES TITO ACTS UNDER WESTERN ORDERS

LONDON, Aug. 30 (AP)—Russia, in a new note to Belgrade today, accused Premier Josip (Tito) Broz's Yugoslavia of working "only on the instructions of its western masters."

The note was broadcast by the Moscow radio and recorded in London by the Soviet Monitor. It was the eighth in a series of increasingly bitter exchanges between the two quarreling Communist countries.

The Moscow note denied Yugoslav charges, made Aug. 20, that the Kremlin had double-crossed Yugoslavia by abandoning Yugoslav claims to Austrian territory at last June's conference of the Big Four foreign ministers in Paris.

"Slanderous Distortions."

The Russians said Yugoslavia's Aug. 20 note was "an accumulation of fresh scandals and slanderous distortions calculated as masking its (Yugoslavia's) own double-dealing policy and deceiving the people of Yugoslavia."

Moscow said its note was sent "not to convince the Yugoslav government, which has long been living without convictions and works only on the instructions of its western masters, but in order to unmask it and help the peoples of Yugoslavia to see the true face of the present Yugoslav government."

The Moscow-Belgrade feud has been in progress for more than a year, or since Tito's government was expelled from the Cominform (Communist Information Bureau) for what the Kremlin regards as nationalistic deviation from orthodox Communism.

Two Separate Disputes.

Moscow has called on Yugoslav to overthrow Tito. Russia and the other Communist states of eastern Europe have imposed an economic squeeze on Yugoslavia.

Actually Yugoslavia and Russia have been exchanging notes on two distinct disputes. One centers on Yugoslavia's disappointment over what Belgrade regards as Moscow's abandonment of its claims to Austrian territory. The other has to do with charges by Moscow that Tito is mistreating Soviet citizens within Yugoslavia's borders.

In its last previous note Yugoslovia offered to send Russian citizens home and expressed a willingness to reach a settlement with

Rhode Island Jewish Marriage Law Allows Uncle, Niece to Wed

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 30 (AP)—Rhode Island law made it possible for an uncle and a niece from Brooklyn, N. Y., to wed here last night.

Mendel Rosenbloom, 55 years old, a salesman, and his sister's daughter, Mrs. Regina Pofstrong, 36, were married by Rabbi Morris G. Silk at Ahavath Sholom Synagogue.

They chose Rhode Island because, they said, it is the only state in the union which sanctions a marriage approved by Levitical law.

Both had spouses who died in German concentration camps during World War II.

After the death of Rosenbloom's first wife in this country years ago, he returned to Poland, married again and had two children.

His second wife and children were killed in a Nazi pogrom. He fled to this country in 1942.

His bride's first husband was killed by the Nazis and she and her daughter were sent to concentration camps. She never saw her daughter again. She came to this country 10 weeks ago as a displaced person.

Mrs. Pofstrong was penniless. Rosenbloom had insufficient means to support her separately. The marriage was the only alternative.

While Jewish law says that a nephew may not marry his aunt, it holds not only that an uncle may marry his niece but that, if the niece is in need, such a marriage is a good and worthy deed.

VAUGHAN'S QUESTION-AND-ANSWER TESTIMONY AT HEARING

AIDE TO TRUMAN CAN'T RECALL ANY BENEFITS TO HIM FROM ANY FAVOR

By the United Press.

Following is a condensed transcript of the Senate questioning of Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan of St. Louis:

THE questioning began with subcommittee chairman Clyde R. Hoey (Dem.), North Carolina, asking about Vaughan's relations with James V. Hunt, who lists himself as a management counselor.

Q. General, I believe you stated that you had known Mr. Hunt for about five years?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What has been your association with him during that time?

A. Well, just ordinary friendly relations. I have seen him socially, I wouldn't have any idea how many times, a dozen, maybe; met him at social functions, he has been in my office a number of times; . . . Mr. Hunt has never been in my home, and I was in his home twice . . .

Q. Gen. Vaughan, did you make any request of Mr. Hunt, or how did it happen that he furnished the (Army personnel) information with reference to Gen. Waitt (suspended Chemical Corps chief)?

A. Well, I didn't know until this inquiry started that Mr. Hunt had anything to do with that. I made the request of Gen. Waitt after discussing it with the President, that he furnish me factual data about the officers who might appear on a promotion list. I have done that on occasions before. The President approves of that, and Gen. Waitt furnished this material. Now it never would occur to me that Gen. Waitt would write that any place but in his own office, or if he did not want it in his own office, in his own home. I did not know that detail until later.

Acquaintance with Maragon.

Q. General, when did you first form the acquaintance of Mr. (John) Maragon?

A. When I was secretary to Senator Truman . . . Mr. Maragon was working for the B. & O. Railroad, if I remember correctly, and his duty was to handle transportation matters for the members of Congress. He was a very energetic individual, and was always around. You could not order a ticket and a Pullman space without it being delivered by Mr. Maragon, so he was in the office, I did not know him too well that first year. . . .

Q. General, Mr. Maragon seems to have left an impression with different agencies of government, when he would call them in reference to matters, that he was your representative. Was he authorized by you to make any representations in these various matters?

A. No. As I stated in my statement that I just read, at no time was Maragon authorized to represent me or the White House in any way, shape or form. It did come to my attention a year or so ago—I cannot recall the exact time—somebody said that Maragon was flashing a picture of himself and the President, and I talked with him about this and he denied it very vehemently. He said that he had never done any such thing, but I did not know he was representing himself as my agent.

The Customs Incident.

Q. General, did you have any knowledge of the action of Maragon in clearing contents of a package when he came back from Europe through the customs officials, or when did you learn of that incident?

A. That was told to me, oh, it must have been a year or so after . . . by Maragon. . . . The way he related it to me, that it was entirely a misunderstanding. . . . and he said that it was completely sttled and the Justice Department or the Treasury Department, whichever one was looking into it, was completely satisfied and everything was all settled. I never thought of it again until this was brought out in the hearing.

Q. Did you know anything about this matter at all until after Maragon told you it had already been settled?

A. No, sir, I did not. I have no recollection of it.

Q. Do you recall, General, what arrangements, if any, you assisted in making in order to arrange transportation for Mr. David A. Bennett (head of the Verley Perfume Co., Chicago) to go to Europe soon after V -E day?

A. Well, I don't recall that I made any assistance in getting him over there. I had written some letters to expedite his passport, if I recall.

Q. Do you remember writing a letter to Maragon when he was going abroad for this perfume company?

A. Yes, yes, I think I gave him a letter of recommendation, introduction. He was representing Bennett. . . .

Q. I think the language used in this letter . . . referred to him as a business man or as an executive of this company. Did you know whether he was an executive representative of the company?

A. No, I—that may have been his own designation of himself, I don't know. . . .

Denies Ever Receiving Fee.

Q. Now, Gen. Vaughan, your statement makes it clear, but just for the record I want to ask you this direct question:

In these various matters in which you have assisted friends, whether they were friends or not, in the different agencies and departments of government, have you ever at any time received any fee or commission or shared with anybody else in receiving any fee or commission in connection with any of those operations?

A. No, sir, I have not, at any time.

Q. (By Senator O'Connor (Dem.), Maryland) I would like to ask you whether you sought any fee or benefit or remuneration from anything that you did in connection with the various matters that have been under consideration.

A. No, sir; I did not. It never occurred to me. My duties at the White House in that connection were a continuation of my duties, the same duties, practically the same here in Senator Truman's office.

Q. Were there any particular benefits which flowed to you or any particular profits or remuneration that came as the direct result of anything that you may have done?

A. I can recall none, no, sir.

Didn't Consult Truman.

Q. In any of these matters, did you have occasion to advise the President of what was transpiring, or did you do it just on your own?

A. No, I have never had any occasion that I can recall to advise the President of any action I have taken in any particular instance. I didn't think it was necessary because I was performing according to the President's instructions that he had given to me before. . . . I felt sure he would be the first one to tell me if he wanted a change. . . .

Q. Did you consider that the various things you did were within or outside of the scope of the duties that you were expected to perform?

A. They were certainly outside—many of them were outside of the scope of the military aide, but they were not outside of the scope of my job as also an administrative assistant. (Vaughan here explained that the White House receives "several truckloads" of mail daily which requires administrative handling).

Q. Now, you did refer, that in regard to the Gen. Waitt matter, that you did discuss that with the President, I think?

A. Oh, yes, yes, I discussed that with the President.

Q. Was that in line with your accustomed duties?

A. Yes. (Vaughan explained the method of selecting the chief of an Army branch and his role in advising the President.) I believe that Gen. Waitt's replacement was due about this time, or maybe last month, I don't recall, so I asked him for an expression, a frank expression, a paragraph on each officer in the corps that would be qualified, or that might be considered . . . and I told the President I was going to ask him for it, and I showed it to him after I received it.

The Deep Freezers.

O'Conor questioned him further about Bennett's overseas trips. Then Senator Robertson (Dem.), Virginia, asked Vaughan for more information about the deep freezers.

Q. Was there any effort made by you or by anybody in association with you toward concealment of the receipt of those (deep freezers)?

A. Oh, not the slightest, not the slightest. Everybody at the White House knew about it.

Q. Was there any pending business or any matters under consideration at the time by you or anybody in association with you for which these freezers may have been given?

A. I cannot think of any connection at all.

(Robertson then questioned the accuracy of a previous public statement in which Vaughan said the freezers were "factory rejects" with no commercial value.)

A. Well, I wrote the statement after the publicity had come out, and some friends of mine who I had originally intended to do a good turn for were being embarrassed, and I did not want my friends to be embarrassed because of any act of mine, and I got that statement together hastily and Charlie Ross (presidential press secretary) put it out. That was to the best of my recollection. . . . The term "reject" might have been a very ill-advised expression . . .

Maragon's Trip Abroad.

Q. (By O'Conor). There has been testimony in regard to one of the requests concerning Mr. Maragon's trip abroad that the memorandum or letter was marked with certain numerals . . . to indicate possibly the approval of the President.

A. I saw a facsimile of that in the public press. Let me state right at the beginning that the President never heard of this; the President was not interested in any trip that John Maragon would take or, in fact, the President wasn't interested in any detail of Maragon's business or life or anything.

Q. Did he know anything about it?

A. Oh, no, he knew nothing about it. He never heard of it. As I recall, this notation is made on this letter by someone. All I saw was some initials, "L. S." or whatever they were. This, I understand, was a person who got this impression from a conversation with Mrs. Shipley, Mrs. Shipley got this impression from a conversation with me. Is that correct, sir?

(Vaughan then explained that the letter was written by his secretary while he was enroute home from a European trip. O'Conor asked whether he had told Mrs. Shipley that President Truman was personally interested in Maragon's trip.)

A. . . . I have every reason to believe in some way or other she got that impression . . . but I certainly never said that the President was interested. If that impression developed through two or three second and third hand conversations, that is possible.

Questioned by McCarthy.

Senator McCarthy (Rep.), Wisconsin, touching first on the deep freezers and then on Maragon, took up the questioning.

Q. When did you first learn that Mr. Maragon had been picked up in New York for attempting to smuggle. . . .

A. I don't recall the exact time, or how long, but it was some time after that, and when he gave me his story, he also gave me the explanation that it was all a mistake, and that the department, either Treasury or Justice, I don't recall which it was, were completely satisfied. It was all washed up, in other words.

Q. At the time you recommended him for this rather important mission to Greece, before you wrote that letter of recommendation which we have before us, did you take the trouble to check Mr. Maragon's background?

A. No; I thought I knew Mr. Maragon's background. I mean, I didn't—well, I didn't know whether Mr. Maragon had a background; it never occurred to me; he was a Senate Office Building character.

Q. You know that he had been accused in criminal cases, did you?

A. In criminal cases? You mean in smuggling?

Q. No, more than smuggling.

A. No, I never heard of that.

Q. You are sure of that?

A. Yes, sir.

(McCarthy said he would go into the "criminal background" matter later.)

Took Maragon's Word.

Q. Now, at the time that you wrote this letter recommending Mr. Maragon, you say at that time you had information to the effect that customs were satisfied with Mr. Maragon's story?

A. Well, when Mr. Maragon told me, along with telling me of the incident, he told me it was all fixed up, and customs was satisfied.

Q. Do you know that at that time customs was not satisfied, they were still holding the perfume?

A. No, I didn't know that.

Q. You didn't know that. Did you take any trouble to check to see what the facts were in the smuggling case?

A. No, sir; I did not.

Q. You knew the matter was pending before Justice; did you know that?

A. No, I did not.

Q. With all of the information which you today have on Mr. Maragon, do you think you made a very serious mistake in recommending to the State Department that they hire Mr. Maragon and send him to Europe on this job?

A. I said, Senator, if Mr. Maragon has been proven of wrongdoing, then I will think that I made an error in judgment.

Q. Has it been proven to your satisfaction, General, that you should not have recommended Maragon for this job?

A. No, sir, it has not.

Q. As of today you think you would still recommend him?

A. I think so, yes.

Job as Veterans' Co-ordinator.

(McCarthy then went into Vaughan's duties as Co-ordinator of Veterans Affairs. Vaughan explained he was "a sort of referee at the White House level" on matters affecting veterans' interests.)

Q. In other words, your task was to do whatever you could to improve the situation of the veterans, right?

A. That is right, or I think largely to make a decision if two agencies were at cross purposes and could not come to a decision in regard to some matter.

Q. Do you recall that early in '46-'47 one of the principal difficulties of the average veteran was to get a place in which to live?

A. That is right.

Q. You knew that the Congress had taken action. . . . to do whatever they could to avoid the diversion of scarce building materials from veterans' housing. That is correct, is it not, general?

A. That is right, sir.

Tanforan Incident.

(McCarthy then recalled the testimony of Housing Expediter Tighe E. Woods that Vaughan had intervened with him on Jan. 9, 1946, to get clearance for scarce building materials for the Tanforan race track. He quoted Woods as saying Vaughan told him the Tanforan owners were "friends" of his.)

Q. He (Woods) fells us then on the twelfth that you came back to his office and urged speed in this matter; is that right?

A. I urged speed in a decision.

Q. You were not urging that they decide against your friends?

A. I wasn't urging, I was making no suggestion as to how they decide it. I felt sure Tighe Woods was perfectly competent.

Q. You knew Mr. Woods understood you were interested in these matters personally?

A. He knew I at least knew them enough to extend them the courtesy of introducing them.

Q. And telling them to rush things; is that right? There is no doubt about that?

A. Telling him, certainly, to expedite it, because—

Q. You understand he was supposed to expedite housing, his title was Housing Expediter. You wanted him to expedite the diversion of this material to the race track?

A. I wanted him to make a decision in accordance with the regulations and the law.

Wanted Speedy Decision.

Q. Did you tell him at any time, just so we will have it clear as to what decision you wanted him to make, did you tell him at that time that unless they got this permit quickly, that they would lose some rights under California law. That it was important for your friends to get this permit immediately?

A. I explained to him—I may have, I don't recall. I believe they explained to me there was a necessity for a decision, whether one way or another. If the decision was favorable and greatly delayed, it would still be no good to them.

Q. You did not think that you were acting as veterans coordinator at that time; right?

A. No, that had nothing to do with—

Q. Did you feel this was one of your duties as the President's aide?

A. As military aide, no, sir.

Q. So this job of going over and speeding up this race track permit, you were not doing that either as the President's aide or as co-ordinator of veterans affairs; right?

A. That came under neither of those two categories.

Q. Which of the three men you took over were good friends of yours?

A. I don't think—as I recall, there were two men, maybe there were three.

Q. Mr. Mori, Mr. Maragon, and—

A. Mr. Helis was not present. Mr. Helis was a friend of mine, and he had made the arrangements for me to introduce Mr. Mori. Mr. Mori was not a friend of mine. He was a friend of Mr. Helis. And I understood at the time that he was a business associate of Mr. Helis, some way or another.

Q. And Mr. Maragon was there?

A. He was not.

Q. Do you know that Mr. (James V.) Hunt received a fee of $15,000 when this permit was granted?

A. I did not know Mr. Hunt had anything to do with it.

Q. Is that correct, Mr. Rogers? (committee counsel). Do you know Gen. Vaughan, whether Mr. Hunt received any fee in connection with that?

A. I have not the slightest idea of any fees Mr. Hunt ever received.

O. Do you know if Maragon received a fee?

A. I do not believe—it never occurred to me before. I do not imagine so.

Q. (By Hoey): I do not believe the record indicates either Hunt or Maragon received a fee on that.

McCarthy: I guess that is true.

Q. (by McCarthy): Do you know that Mr. Helis recently made an affidavit to the effect that at that time he had no financial interest in the track, was not the new owner? Do you know that?

A. I did not know that. I know he came to me in the interest of these people. I don't know where I got the impression.

(McCarthy then quoted the affidavit as stating that Helis had no financial interest in the Tanforan Track.)

Won't Admit Being Duped.

Q. With this information before you, do you think you were duped a bit?

A. No, that has no bearing on this that I can see, Senator.

Q. Did you not think that Helis owned part of the track?

A. I might have gotten that impression. He certainly came in and wanted courtesies extended to these people. Whether he owned part of the track or was a friend of Mori's, that was of no concern of mine.

Q. You went over and told Mr. Woods a new man owned the track?

A. That is what they told me.

Q. As a result of that, Mr. Woods wrote to the Justice Department and said in effect, "Won't you please set aside the injunction against these race track owners? Mr. Vaughan is interested in these men." When you gave Mr. Woods that information, when you said the track was under new ownership, and told him three friends of yours, one of whom was Helis, now owned it, had you made any previous investigation to discover whether or not this was merely a ruse to get scarce building material or whether the track was under new ownership?

A. That was what Mr. Helis told me, that it was under new ownership. That was the basis of the whole argument.

Says He Didn't Call Hunt.

Q. Did you call Mr. Hunt in regard to this matter?

A. No, I would have no occasion to call Mr. Hunt.

Q. Did you ever talk to Mr. Hunt with regard to the Tanforan deal?

A. . . . I may have talked to Hunt, but I did not know he had anything to do with the matter at all.

Q. I have before me excerpts from Mr. Hunt's diary. And incidentally we find that in Mr. Hunt's files there is one file marked "General Vaughan." That is the heading. Headed "Tanforan race track." Would you have any idea why Hunt kept a file marked "General Vaughan — Tanforan race track?"

A. Was that the marking on the file, or was the general heading "General Vaughan" and Tanforan was in it? I can't imagine. I would not have any way of knowing how Hunt kept his files or why he kept them that way.

Q. Well, do you recall that you did interest yourself in this race track deal?

A. Certainly.

Q. Let me finish. Before Tighe Woods got the appointment (as Housing Expediter)? Is that correct?

A. Yes, I remember making the first appointment with Mr. (Frank) Creedon's (former Housing Expediter) office, yes, sir.

Q. At the time you talked to Mr. Hunt about this matter did you know Hunt had been retained in the case?

A. I do not know yet Hunt was retained in the case.

(Senator Mundt (Rep.), South Dakota, produced a memorandum from Hunt's files stating that Hunt had reviewed the Tanforan matter "orally with H.H.V.")

Q. (By Hundt) do you remember that memorandum either being delivered to you in written form or talked about orally?

A. No, I do not recall that.

Q. (By McCarthy) Mr. Vaughan, you never got any fee? Of course, in connection with this Tanforan deal?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever get any money from Mr. Maragon?

A. No, I never did.

Q. He never handed you money at all?

A. No.

Q. Either for yourself or for someone else?

A. No.

Campaign Contribution.

Q. You are sure Maragon never came to you and gave you an envelope, gave you money of any kind?

A. No, he never did. He may have—yes, yes.

Q. Would you tell us about it?

A. During the 1946 campaign . . . he collected some campaign money which I—

Q. He collected a considerable amount, did he not?

A. Yes, several thousand dollars.

Q. In fact, it was more than several thousand, was it not?

A. Well, not from him, no. I mean I got it from several people. . . . Mr. Maragon collected some, Mr. Helis, I got some direct, and I turned it over to Mr. Roy Harper, the state chairman in Missouri.

Q. Yes. Now, do you recall whether Mr. Maragon collected any money from you——I do not mean you personally, but in connection with the campaign or anything else—whether Mr. Maragon collected a sizable amount of money and handed it over to you from the people who are interested in this race track deal?

A. No, I am sure he did not. I was under the impression that he collected it from various friends of his, Greek Americans, that were in this society with him and with Mr. Helis. That is where Mr. Helis got the money that he gave me.

Q. Mr. Helis is the man who . . . asked you to expedite this race track permit. He did give you a sizable amount of money in '46, did he not?

A. For campaigning, yes.

Q. For the Kansas City campaign.

A. Well, I gave it to the Missouri state chairman. Where he used it, I do not know.

Q. You understand that under the Missouri law that you must file a statement when you make such contributions?

A. Well, I did not know that the go-between, the messenger, had to file the statement.

Q. Well, did you know that you were supposed to find out where this money came from so that the state officials in checking in any election can tell who contributed,

Vaughan Faces Senate Investigators

—Associated Press Wirephoto.

MAJ. GEN. HARRY H. VAUGHAN (arrow) being questioned by CHAIRMAN CLYDE HOEY (Dem.), North Carolina, in the 5 percenter investigation today. Vaughan is flanked by COL. CORNELIUS MARA (left), his assistant, and CARL RISTINE, Washington attorney. At committee table (from left) are: SENATOR HERBERT O'CONOR (Dem.), Maryland; WILLIAM ROGERS, committee counsel; Chairman Hoey; SENATORS JOSEPH McCARTHY (Rep.), Wisconsin; KARL MUNDT (Rep.), South Dakota, and MARGARET CHASE SMITH (Rep.), Maine.

Vaughan's Name Spelled Wrong On Photograph in Hunt's Office

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30 (AP)—Reporters who had a chance yesterday to look at the photographs in James V. Hunt's office were wondering today if some of Hunt's friends were unable to spell their own names. Or, reporters conjectured, was it possible that some of the inscriptions weren't written by the person photographed?

Hunt, a major figure in the 5 percenter inquiry, has said that Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan of St. Louis is his good friend. Yet the photo inscription was: "To my good friend Col. James V. Hunt with all good wishes, H. H. Vaughn, Brig. Gen., U.S.A."

Former Senator C. Wayland Brooks (Rep.), Illinois, was one of those whose photos adorned Hunt's office walls, but the inscription on it read: "To Col. J. V. Hunt with every good wish, sincerely W. Waylen Brooks 1944."

Representative Melvin Price, East St. Louis, was among those in Hunt's picture gallery. His photo was inscribed: "In remembrance of our pleasant visit to Camp Lee, from your friend—Best Wishes, Mel Price."

The pictures include those of 31 Senators of former Senators and 35 House members. Among them are those of two members of the Senate subcommittee investigating five percenters — Senators McCarthy (Rep.), Wisconsin, and Margaret Chase Smith (Rep.), Maine. Both were autographed.

WORK OF GETTING NAMES FOR VOTE ON GASOLINE TAX BEGINS THIS WEEK

Petitions for Referendum Must Have 5 Pct. of Voters in Two-Thirds of Congressional Districts to Suspend Law.

By CURTIS A. BETTS
State Political Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Aug. 30—Opposition to Gov. Forrest Smith's law increasing the state gasoline tax from 2 cents a gallon to 4 cents, with allocation of 1 cent of the increase for expenditure on roads selected by the politically organized county courts, will get in full swing by the end of this week, when the circulation of referendum petitions will start.

The opposition to the Governor's road tax increase plan is headed by the Automobile Club of Missouri, and oil and bus and truck interests. Headquarters in the referendum campaign will be in the offices of the Automobile Club in St. Louis.

Gov. Smith delayed signing the road bill until almost the last day permissible under the Constitution, thus narrowing to a few weeks the time for circulation of the referendum petitions and their legal filing with the Secretary of State. The petitions must be filed not later than Oct. 14.

Signatures Required.

Under the Constitution, the petitions, in order to suspend the operation of the law and to submit it to a vote at the general election in November, 1950, must be signed by five per cent of the legal voters in each of two-thirds of the 13 Congressional districts. The total vote for Governor in 1948 is taken as the basis of the number of legal voters.

This would require about 55,000 names, but the organizers of the referendum campaign plan to circulate the petitions in all the Congressional districts, and, if possible, to obtain the required five per cent in each district.

It is their expectation that the proper number of signatures can be obtained in not more than four weeks, leaving two weeks to check the lists for possible duplications before they are filed.

Governor's Appeal.

The Governor appealed to voters to refuse to sign the petitions when he signed the bill Saturday, charging that the opposition came from special interests.

He has under consideration the introduction of a bill in the Legislature, when it reconvenes next month to provide for a special election on the referendum if it is ordered. He has told persons interested in road legislation that he has obtained a legal opinion to the effect that a special election may be ordered by the Legislature.

He expressed the opinion that there would be a better chance of defeating the referendum in a special election, when a smaller vote would be cast, than at the general election. While the Constitution authorizes the Legislature to order a special election on a referendum, there might be some legal question as to whether that power could be exercised retroactively, that is on a bill passed and beyond the control of the Legislature.

Legal Question.

It is doubtful that the administration would try to put through such a bill before it became certain that the referendum petitions had a sufficient number of signers. As both houses of the Legislature will not be in session until Oct. 11, and as the petitions will be filed not later than Oct. 14, a question will arise as to the legal effect of such a law on a referendum which had already been ordered by petitions.

The Governor said in effect in his statement that pressure would be brought to bear on Secretary of State Walter H. Toberman to attempt to induce him to refuse to accept the petitions on the ground that the legislation was necessary for the preservation of the peace, health and safety of the people of the state, the Constitution excepting from laws subject to referendum those which comes within the peace, health and safety designation.

If the Secretary of State should reject the petitions, the promoters of the referendum plan to bring a mandamus action in an effort to force him to accept them.

The printing of the blank petitions is expected to be completed by this evening. Their distribution to circulators, who have been organized, will begin immediately. It is said that all persons handling the petitions will be volunteers and that there will be no paid circulators.

SPECIAL CENSUS OF KINLOCH, NEW TOWN IN COUNTY, BEGINS

A special census of Kinloch, a Negro community in St. Louis county, incorporated Aug. 20, 1948, began today, it was announced by Bernard J. Schreve, who is supervising the enumeration for the United States Census Bureau.

The City of Kinloch requested the special census because no governmental count had been made of the residents since its incorporation, Police Judge H. F. Chambers said. A team of eight enumerators will make the count.

11-Month-Old Girl, Learning How To Walk, Tries Roller Skating, Too

—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.

CAROL GAIL DENKMANN, 11 months old, strikes out for herself on a pair of roller skates she learned to use shortly after she began to walk two weeks ago.

Child Gets Around Without Too Many Tumbles, Amazes Parents as Well as Neighbors.

Eleven-month-old Carol Gail Denkmann is learning to get around by herself, but not quite as expected. Equipped with a pair of the smallest size of rollerskates made, Carol demonstrates her ability to get from one place to another without too many tumbles.

Her mother, Mrs. William Denkmann, surprised her husband one day when she returned from shopping, bringing the skates. "I'm even more surprised she is learning to use them," he said. Denkmann, a city fireman, said he and his wife are not skating enthusiasts. His wife just thought it would be a nice trick if Carol Gail could learn.

The child had the skates strapped to her feet shortly after she began walking, two weeks ago. "She loves it," her mother said. "Especially, if she is going fast with someone holding onto her."

The parents, who live at 2630 McNair avenue, said the neighbors gather around to watch whenever they take her outside for lessons on the pavement. She began on the living room rug where the wheels would not turn. "Carol Gail's frequent spills are somewhat cushioned by the rug," Mrs. Denkmann said, "but when we take her out on the sidewalk we keep a closer watch on her."

GAETANO VIVIANO SUED OVER PROMISE TO WED

The petition alleges Viviano and Mrs. Baer in September 1948 exchanged promises to marry, that a "reasonable time" has elapsed since then, but that he has refused and still refuses to marry Mrs. Baer, a widow, who remains "ready and willing" to carry out her own promise. Mrs. Baer is 51 years old. Viviano is 63.

Damages are sought for Mrs. Baer's alleged "great mental suffering" because of humiliation and embarrassment resulting from the knowledge of her relatives and friends that Viviano had failed to carry out his promise. In addition, the petition cites "great efforts and considerable time" on Mrs. Baer's part in preparing for marriage to Viviano.

Mrs. Baer's efforts, her attorney, Harvey B. Cox, explained, included three months' instruction in the religion of the Roman Catholic church to prepare for marriage in the Church and the planning with an architect of a $42,500 home in Ladue, intended for occupancy of the pair after the wedding. As evidence of his intention, Viviano gave Mrs. Baer a $1500 diamond engagement ring, which she still has, Cox said.

Viviano and his brothers, Vito and Salvators, pleaded guilty in February 1938 to criminal charges of evading 1929 federal income taxes and agreed to pay the Government $80,963 to settle a civil claim against them for income tax evasion in the years 1929 to 1933 inclusive.

Later, Gaetano withdrew from the macaroni business, it was reported at the plant at 1022 North Seventh street, and now heads the Viviano Estate, including family real estate.

Mrs. Baer has been married twice. She divorced her first husband, Lee Caudle, of St. Louis, in 1919 after a brief marriage, and was married in 1934 to James Baer, architect and later an officer of the Missouri Bridge & Iron Co. He died in May 1945. After her first marriage and during part of her second, Mrs. Baer has been successively society editor, editor, publisher and part owner of a St. Louis county newspaper.

6 MONTHS FOR JENNINGS MAN FOR OFFENSE AGAINST GIRL, 6

Harold Schoeller, a shipping clerk, or 5504 Jennings road, Jeannings, was sentenced to six months in the St. Louis county jail today by Magistrate Frank W. Tirrell of Maplewood who found him guilty of a sex offense against a 6-year-old girl last July 14.

On that date, Schoeller was arrested by Jennings police on complaint of the child, who testified at a hearing later that Schoeller, a married man with three children, had committed the offense in the Schoeller home.

Schoeller denied the charge. His attorney, Philip A. Foley, filed notice of an appeal. Schoeller was released on bond.

29TH POLIO DEATH FOR CITY, COUNTY; 11 NEW PATIENTS

Wellston Woman, St. Louis High School Student Succumb to Disease — 320 Cases This Year.

Mrs. Simon Kropp, 6324 Wells avenue, Wellston, died of poliomyelitis at City Hospital today, bringing the St. Louis-St. Louis county death toll from the disease to 29 for the year. She was 33 years old. Her husband and two small children survive.

Another fatality was Gerald Borremans, senior at Beaumont High School, who died last evening at St. Anthony Hospital. He was 17 years old and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Borremans, 4563 Plover avenue.

Four new cases were reported today among St. Louis residents, raising the year's total to 234. Seven additional patients in St. Louis county increased the number of cases there to 86.

New city patients were a boy, 4 years old, 8108 South Broadway; a girl, 12, 4344A College avenue; a boy, 4, 800 South Twelfth street; and a boy, 8 months, 3900 Oleatha avenue.

In the county, the latest cases reported include a man, 29, living in Kirkwood; a boy, 2, St. Ann; a girl, 1, Florissant; a boy, 11, Brentwood; a boy, 11 months, Overland; a boy, 9, Lemay, and a girl, 10, Brentwood.

Poliomyelitis cases and deaths in the city and county are running far ahead of last year and also ahead of 1946, previous peak year for the disease.

Mary Joann Laurent, 14, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Laurent, Columbia, Ill., was admitted yesterday to St. Mary's Hospital, East St. Louis, where her brother, James, 9, also is a poliomyelitis patient.

Illinois reported that only eight of its 102 counties have remained untouched by this year's outbreak, which has caused the number of cases in the state to soar above 1500.

Counties which have escaped without any cases are Brown, Calhoun, Hamilton, Marshall Pike, Pulaski, Putnam and Stark.

COMPETITIVE TEST FOR CITY TRAFFIC COMMISSIONER

Applicants to Be Graded 50 Pct. on Interview—Last Filing Date Sept. 26.

An open competitive examination for the city office of Traffic Commissioner was announced today by the Department of Personnel, which fixed Sept. 26 as the last day for filing applications.

The office of Traffic Commissioner, in the city Department of Streets and Sewers, was created by an ordinance enacted last spring. The salary is $531 a month to begin; after four years it is $595. Applicants must be graduate engineers in mechanical, electrical or civil engineering, and must have had 10 years of experience in practical engineering, and five years of responsible work in traffic engineering.

Marking of contestants will be 50 per cent on an oral interview. There will be two eligible lists, one for persons with a year or more of residence in St. Louis, and one for non-residents. The first will have the preference. A medical examination will be given applicants only where the Director of Personnel desires it.

The commissioner will be in charge of all traffic activities, and will have the duty of recommending traffic legislation and directing improvement of traffic conditions.

MAN KILLED BY TRAIN HAD WANDERED FROM HOSPITAL

The body of a man killed by a freight train Sunday at East St. Louis was identified yesterday as Immanuel Brown, 30 years old, 314 Market avenue, East St. Louis. Identification was by his sister, Mrs. Grace E. Brown, of Rural Route 2, Collinsville.

Brown, an Air Force radio operator in World War II, walked off unobserved Sunday from St. Mary's Hospital, East St. Louis, where he had been admitted Thursday for treatment of a nervous disorder.

BELLHOP IS KILLED IN FALL ON STONE STEPS OF APARTMENT

Paul Powell, 46 years old, a bellhop, died at City Hospital today of a fractured skull suffered last night when he fell down 13 stone steps in an apartment building at 3683 Olive street, where he lived.

TWO PRACTICING FLYING KILLED IN PLANE CRASH

Light Craft Goes Into Spin Over Farm Near McClusky, Ill., 40 Miles North of St. Louis.

Two young men from nearby Illinois communities were killed last night when the light airplane they were flying went into a spin and crashed in an alfalfa field near McClusky, Ill., 40 miles north of St. Louis.

The dead are Estel Winfred Hinson, 24 years old, pilot, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Hinson of Otterville, about 10 miles west of McClusky, and Darrell Chappell, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Chappell of McClusky.

William Hutchinson, whose home is adjacent to the field where the crash occurred, said Hinson and Chappell had been practicing takeoffs and landings from the field for about an hour before the crash occurred.

"The plane was at an altitude of about 1000 feet," Hutchinson said, "when it went into a spin and crashed. The nose buried itself about two feet in the ground."

Former University City Navy Pilot Killed in Crash.

Navy Lt. (j.g.) Robert S. Ming, formerly of University City, was killed yesterday when his Navy dive bomber failed to pull out of a dive and crashed near San Diego, Calif.

Lt. Ming, 24 years old, was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel P. Ming, 7033 Tulane avenue. He lived with his wife, Mrs. Beverly Ming, and their 15-month-old son at Imperial Beach, Calif. His parents were on a trip to the West Coast during which they planned to visit their son and his family.

Officers of the Eleventh Naval District at San Diego said Lt. Ming was flying with eight other planes of Attack Squadron 115 on a bombing practice from the Naval Air Station. The planes had been in the air about 25 minutes when the crash occurred.

DAUGHTERS GET COURT ORDER FOR MOTHER'S BODY

Three daughters of Mrs. Amanda Drewes, 78-year-old widow, obtained possession of her body today on a writ of replevin. They charged in Magistrate Court that funeral arrangements for their mother were made by an unauthorized person, Mrs. Ollie Klocke.

Funeral services were to have been held at 2 p.m. today at the Math Hermann & Son undertaking establishment, 2161 East Fair avenue. After the writ was issued this morning, Constable Matt O'Neill went to the undertaking establishment, intending to move the body to another undertaker for the daughters. But after a conference, they decided to keep the body there, canceled the services and authorized burial this afternoon in Valhalla Cemetery.

The writ of replevin was issued by Magistrate J. Glennon McKenna on petition of the daughters, Mrs. John Sinclair, wife of a police lieutenant; Mrs. Mable Heck and Mrs. Edna Buescher. They charged the body had been wrongfully detained, asked for possession and asked $1500 damages.

Mrs. Drewes, who died Saturday, left $5 to each daughter and $5 to her son, Police Lt. Charles Drewes, according to her will, filed yesterday. The remainder of the estate was left to her friend, Mrs. Klocke, who was named executrix and was authorized to arrange the funeral.

Alderman Alfred I. Harris, attorney for the daughters, said Mrs. Drewes owned property worth $75,000. But Alva W. Hurt, attorney for Mrs. Klocke, said there was no property. Mrs. Klocke said Mrs. Drewes had no money, adding that her friend had lived with her for four years at 2142 Adelaide avenue.

FINED $50 FOR MAKING FALSE ROBBERY REPORT

Raymond C. Dougherty, a coal weigher, 6910 Nashville avenue, was fined $50 today by Police Judge James H. Connor on his plea of guilty of making a false report to police of a law violation.

Police testified that Dougherty reported having been robbed of $129 last Saturday. Later, after questioning, they said he admitted the robbery report was false. He told officers the $129 had been turned into him by coal truck drivers and he had taken the money to Edwardsville and lost it in a gambling establishment.

DRESSES STOLEN FROM SHOP; DOOR FORCED BY CROWBAR

Dresses valued at $2072 were stolen from the Florence Dress Shop, 36 North Euclid avenue, late Sunday night or early yesterday, Mrs. Eve Meletio, manager, reported to police. She discovered the rear door had been forced when she opened the shop yesterday noon.

Police said the burglars used a crowbar to enter the shop. No money was taken but an inventory book was missing.

CORRECTION ON BOYS TOWN

In the story on Boys Town of Missouri in last Sunday's Post-Dispatch PICTURES, it was stated erroneously that the mansion on the 120-acre site near St. James, Mo., was built by some politicians as a hideaway.

The place was built in 1928 by the late John H. Soell, vice president of the Missouri Portland Cement Co. Mrs. Soell, who lives at 4204 Botanical avenue, said she does not know who occupied the property after her husband sold it in 1942.

DEFEAT OF DEFENSE RIDER SEEMS TO SHELVE ECONOMY

Senate Rejects Plan for 5 to 10 Pct. Budget Cut — Proposal Lacks Necessary Two-Thirds Vote.

Today in Congress

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30 (AP)—A Senate economy drive which had built up steam for months appeared bogged down at last today following final Senate action—long overdue—on billions of dollars in appropriations.

In the final voting yesterday on a $14,800,000,000 defense money bill, economy advocates showed a good majority. Pushing an amendment that would have required President Truman to cut Government expenses 5 to 10 per cent, they got a total of 49 votes against 28 for the opposition.

But that was not enough. It fell three votes short of the two-thirds margin which Vice President Barkley, the Senate's presiding officer, had ruled necessary.

That appeared to put the whole economy question over until the 1950 congressional campaigns, in which it is expected to be a major issue.

The vote on the rider was first announced as 48 to 29. Two and one-half hours later it was officially changed to 49-28 when Senator Douglas (Dem.), Illinois, asked Douglas (Dem.), Illinois, asked and got unanimous Senate Consent to change his vote. He said he had thought he was voting for the "rider" when he voted "no."

Victory for Lucas.

The proposed rider would have required Truman to chop from two to four and a half billion dollars from the estimated 45 billion dollars he asked Congress to authorize for Government spending this fiscal year, which started July 1.

Final congressional action on the defense measure and five other major money bills is stalled until conference committees reach agreement on differences between the Senate and House and the compromises are cleared by both houses. The differences involve bills totaling nearly 30 billion dollars, or about three-fourths of the federal expenditures.

Minimum Wage Status.

Democratic leader Lucas of Illinois promised Senators a week's vacation if they will pass a bill raising minimum wages from 40 to 75 cents an hour by tomorrow night.

The G.O.P. leaders, Senators Taft of Ohio and Wherry of Nebraska, told a reporter they probably would go along with Lucas's suggestion, which includes night sessions tonight and tomorrow if necessary. The proposed Senate recess would extend over Labor day through next Tuesday.

Thirty House members held a 10-minute session, continuing its unofficial vacation. The Senate last week rejected a resolution that would have let the House recess formally.

Fair Employment Bill.

Representative Sabath (Dem.), Illinois, chairman of the House Rules committee, disclosed after a White House call that the President had asked for early action on the FEPC bill, which is pending in Sabath's committee.

The bill is one of the most controversial in the President's "civil rights" program, and is considered certain to encounter a Southern filibuster if it reaches the Senate.

Other bills on which the President asked for action when the House returns from its current vacation included aid to Korea, a $100,000,000 public works planning bill, expansion of social security, and statehood for Alaska and Hawaii.

SHOPLIFTING NOT AS GOOD HERE AS SHE HAD THOUGHT

A woman who left Chicago to come here because she heard "St. Louis was a pretty good place for shoplifting" was arrested yesterday when she walked out of Scruggs-Vandervoort-Barney department store with a dress she had stolen.

She gave her name as Sarah Powell, with aliases, a Negro, 25 years old, living at the Midtown Hotel, 2935 Lawton boulevard. In her room police found clothing valued at $700 which she admitted taking from downtown stores since arriving here five days ago.

Her arrest resulted when Mrs. Ethel Blower, 6059A Potomac street, a saleswoman in Vandervoort's third-floor junior dress shop, observed that the woman had returned only three of the four dresses she had taken to try on.

Mrs. Blower notified store detectives who followed the woman until she left the store and then arrested her at Ninth and Olive street. The missing dress was found in a bag she was carrying.

BODY FOUND ON RAILWAY

The body of an unidentified Negro man was found today on the Wabash tracks under the viaduct at Union and Lindell boulevards. Police said he apparently had been killed by a train. He was about 65 years old, weighed 145 pounds, and was 5 feet 7 inches tall.

550 LEWIN METALS STRIKERS RETURNING AFTER AGREEMENT

The 550 members of the CIO Progressive Metal Workers' Council, Local 246, who have been on strike at the Lewin Metals Corp.'s Monsanto (Ill.) plant for more than five weeks, were returning to work today, following ratification of a tentative agreement between the local and the firm last night.

Immediate cause of the strike was a difference over the method of determining seniority in the event workers were to be laid off. Under the agreement, ratified by the local 310 to 185, layoffs will be determined by seniority on a plant-wide basis, rather than by departments.

Talks on other issues to be included in a contract between the two groups will be held in October. They include wage rises, pensions, insurance and paid vacations. The strike began last July 19.

G.I. DIVIDEND NOT TAXABLE AS INCOME

VA Spokesman Says Veterans Paid Levy on Salaries—100,000 Forms Issued.

The special G.I. insurance dividend, to be paid to World War II veterans early next year, will not be subject to federal or state income tax, a Veterans Administration spokesman here said today.

It was pointed out that veterans' salaries had been taxed at the time they were paid and, since insurance premiums were paid out of salary with no deduction allowed, a levy against the dividend would amount to double taxation.

Meanwhile, an estimated 100,000 application forms for the dividend were issued here yesterday by various agencies. The St. Louis postoffice and its branches, which extend to the major suburbs, gave out at least 75,000 blanks, a spokesman said.

Although many veterans filled out the forms and mailed them immediately, there was no noticeable increase in the load of incoming mail at the post offices, it was said. The forms were segregated by postal workers and put in special pouches addressed to the VA at Washington.

VA officials warned against too much haste in completing the forms. Some applications received at Washington yesterday had been improperly filled out, some veterans forgetting to sign their names, others making erroneous entries because of failure to read the instructions.

About 215,000 veterans in St. Louis and eastern Missouri will receive dividends, averaging $175, on National Service Life policies issued between Oct. 8, 1940, and Dec. 31, 1947.

PROPOSES UNION FREIGHT TERMINAL FOR RIVER TRAFFIC

A plan for a modern union freight terminal, to handle river traffic and link with rail and highway facilities, was proposed to St. Louis officials and business men yesterday by A. C. Ingersoll Jr., president of Federal Barge Lines.

The proposed harbor facilities, Ingersoll said, would provide a dock 1200 feet long and would cost approximately $2,000,000. If adequate facilities are to be provided for ocean-going freight it would be 2000 feet long and would cost about $3,000,000, he said.

The deterioration of the North Market terminal on the Mississippi river has greatly decreased the already inadequate St. Louis port facilities, Ingersoll said. Repairs to the North Market terminal, with an estimated cost of $8000 to be shared by the city and Inland Waterways Corp., operators of Federal Barge Lines, were planned in June. Repair plans were made after officials of the Beaver Lines announced suspension of its St. Louis-Cuba run by the Angele Higgins.

Legionnaires on March Again In 12-Hour Convention Parade

—Associated Press Wirephoto.

General Clay Tells Banquet U.S. Cannot Afford to Quibble Over Cost of Protection.

The Quaker City surrendered happily to the invasion — the Legion's thirty-first annual convention parade. The sun shone brightly in the cloudless sky.

United States military and Naval units led off. The massed colors of the 48 states, the District of Columbia, Alaska, Guam, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands and the Panama Canal Zone were carried by a battalion of military policemen.

Before the parade ends, about midnight, more than 30,000 persons and some 160 drum and bugle corps will have filed past the reviewing stand. Spectators were expected to exceed a million.

Speech by Gen. Clay.

Retired Gen. Lucius D. Clay, former commander of United States military forces in Germany, spoke last night. He urged the United States to lead the fight against the "aggressor," which he never named.

Clay addressed 700 persons at a banquet honoring Perry Brown, Beaumont, Tex., national commander of the Legion. He said the "aggressors will ever be a threat until it is evident that it is dangerous for the aggressor to move from his own territory."

Clay hit at those who are concerned about the cost of United States aid to other nations. Said he:

"We have a huge investment in the free countries of the world today. We have the guards but not the equipment. We have the jewelry but not the plate glass windows.

"With our heavy investment, why should we hesitate to put in the plate glass windows?"

"This is not the time to hesitate. This is not the time to worry about cost."

$1,500,000 San Francisco Fire.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 30 (AP) —A spectacular fire which virtually destroyed the block square warehouse and office building of the Safeway Stores, Inc., was under control today. Estimates of damage were about $1,500,000 for the blaze, which raged for nearly six hours through the huge structure.

BOLIVIA DRAFTS ALL CITIZENS AS REVOLT SPREADS

Reservists Called to Colors — Rebels Control All Large Cities Except the Capital.

LA PAZ, Aug. 30 (AP)—Fighting for survival against a spreading rightist revolution, the Bolivian Government today began a draft of all citizens.

Reservists, 20 to 24 years old, were called to the colors in La Paz and orders for mobilization have been issued to all men 19 to 50. They will be called on to fight the revolt against the middle-of-the-road government which broke out in scattered sections Saturday and now controls all Bolivia's large cities except La Paz.

Greatest government efforts so far have been directed against Cochabamba, a city of 90,000 southeast of La Paz, where the rebels are strongly entrenched.

Town Bombed Again.

Air force planes bombed the town yesterday for the third time, but reports said they did little damage. The raids terrorized the inhabitants, however, and indignation against the act seems to have added new recruits to the rebellion.

The planes, after dropping their bombs on Cochabamba, flew on to the garrison town of Camiri to pick up troops for an attack on Sucre. In a lightning reverse play, the planes themselves were seized at Camiri by the insurgents; the government troops they were sent to pick up had deserted to the rebels.

Reports at La Paz said loyal ground forces were in the act of occupying the airport at Cochabamba.

Late today, two rebel planes dropped mortar shells on the La Paz airport and a nearby military college. A Government spokesman said they did no damage. The rebels are using mortar shells because they have no bombs, he said.

The revolutionists, members of the National Revolutionary party (MNR), are apparently still in control of Santa Cruz, Potosi and Sucre, all southeast of La Paz Reports yesterday said the garrisons in the extreme north had also gone over to the rebels, which, if true, spread the revolt countrywide.

Labor unions, which normally figure prominently in unrest here, have declared a policy of strict neutrality in what they call a "purely political" fight.

Leftists Bar Support.

All political parties except the Revolutionary Left (PIR) have pledged support to Acting President Mamerto Urriolagoitia. The PIR is a Marxist group which denies any connection with world Communism.

The present government was elected following an uprising against the MNR, then in control, in 1945. It governs 4,000,000 persons living in this landlocked country high in the Andes mountains.

PORCH COLLAPSES, BOY HURT

Wilburt Ruffin, 12 years old, Negro, suffered a fractured spine last night when the second-floor porch of his home, 2904A Easton avenue, collapsed.

The boy, son of Mrs. Printess Ruffin, fell about 20 feet. He was alone on the porch, a wooden structure, at the time. His condition was reported serious at Homer G. Phillips Hospital.

JOINT BIRTHDAY FETE FOR WOMAN, GREAT GRANDCHILD

(Picture in Everyday Magazine.)

Mrs. Frances M. Fisher and her great-granddaughter will celebrate their birthdays together at a gathering of four generations tonight at 5628 Holly Hills avenue, the home of Mrs. Fisher's daughter, Mrs. Edward J. Ruf. The great-granddaughter, Anne Elizabeth Jacques, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clemens H. Jacques, 450 Dover place, is 1 year old. Mrs. Fisher, who lives in St. James, Mo., declines to disclose her age, "just to keep the neighbors guessing."

The family now has three coinciding birthdays in five generations. Mrs. Jacques was born on the birthday of her father's great-aunt, and her younger sister, Miss Margie Ruf, was born on her great-grandmother's birthday. To make matters more involved, Jacques's 16-year-old sister Joyce has a birthday on the same day as that of her great-grandmother.

These joint birthdays "make the family tree a little easier to keep track of," Mrs. Ruf said. Mrs. Fisher saw her great-granddaughter for the first time last Friday when she came here from St. James. The Jacqueses moved to St. Louis from Berkeley, Calif., on Aug. 4, after Jacques received a degree from the University of California.

PROTEST OVER MOVING INTO NEW SCHOOL

100 Negro Parents in Kirkwood Cite Disadvantages of Location.

About 100 Negro parents met with the Kirkwood School Board last night to protest against the proposed closing of Booker T. Washington Grade School, 430 West Adams avenue, Kirkwood, and the transfer of the students to the recently-completed addition of J. Milton Turner School, 245 Saratoga street.

Built at a cost of $192,000, the new addition of Turner School would provide more teachers per pupil, a new cafeteria, science and manual training rooms, a new gymnasium and a larger playground, Floyd Hendricks, superintendent of schools, told the group. None of these educational features is available at Booker T. Washington, he said.

The parents objected to the proposed transfer because of the greater distance to Turner, which is in the unincorporated area of Meecham Park, south of the Kirkwood city limits. They also objected to the danger their children would encounter crossing several main thoroughfores, and the lack of adequate plumbing in the Meecham Park area, which, they said, would expose their children to disease.

Of a total of 380 Negro school children in the Kirkwood school district, 50 attend the Washington school. It is a wooden structure built about 1875, according to Miss Marion Brooks, principal of the school last year. Hendricks said the closing of the school would mean a saving of $6000 to the Kirkwood school district next year.

3 Boys Escape From Boonville.

BOONVILLE, Mo., Aug. 30 (AP) —Three 16-year-old inmates of the Missouri State Training School for Boys escaped yesterday from the dairy barn where they were working on a milking detail. The Highway Patrol identified them as Paul Robertson, Springfield; Joe Brandkamp, Sedalia, and Robert Montgomery, St. Louis.

there was nothing extraordinary about it, although he received seven freezers for his effort.

6. Vaughan said he had no recollection of assisting the Allied Molasses Co., of New Jersey or threatening to "get the job" of Herbert Hathorn, an official in the Department of Agriculture. He said "the Hathorn tale is an out-and-out fantasy."

Seldom has a military general, and a President's military aide at that, been asked so many searching questions reaching toward his pocket book and his banks. The final question put to him by Senator Margaret Chase Smith (Rep.), Maine, was this:

"Have you a safe deposit box, here or anywhere, in this country or abroad, with Mr. Maragon?"

"No, I never have," said Vaughan, "I never had any financial dealing with Maragon except as brought up here."

There was little fire left in Vaughan as the committee recessed until 10 a.m. tomorrow when Vaughan will again face cross-examination.

When Vaughan had read his statement, Chairman Hoey (Dem.), North Carolina, bluntly asked him if, in connection with aiding business men, he had "ever received any fee or commission or shared with anyone else in receiving a fee or commission."

Vaughan: "No, sir, I have not at any time."

Senator O'Conor (Dem.), Maryland, broke in to ask "If you ever sought any fee or remuneration."

Vaughan: "No, sir, it never occurred to me."

Vaughan testified he first met Maragon when he (Vaughan) was secretary to Senator Truman.

The first meeting took place on a trip to New York for the launching of the battleship Missouri. "I naturally accompanied Senator Truman on that—Mr. Maragon was master of ceremonies and running the train," Vaughan said.

Vaughan said he heard once that Maragon was flashing a picture of himself and President Truman.

"I taxed him with this and he denied it vehemently," Vaughan said.

"At no time," said Vaughan, "was Maragon authorized to represent me or the White House in any way, shape or form."

Another denial was that once, when a Department of Agriculture official refused to grant him a favor, he threatened to "get the job" of the official.

"I never talked to a buck private under my command that way," Vaughan said.

Vaughan contended there was nothing under-handed about the seven deep freezers which he received for himself and other White House people after he had done favors for the Verley Perfume Co.

Was there any concealment about the gifts? Vaughan was asked.

Confesses Error on Rejects.

Vaughan confessed he had been wrong when he issued a statement to the press that the deep freezers were experimental models and factory rejects without commercial value, whereas it was later testified they were worth $2600.

Somewhat sheepishly telling how he had authorized this misleading statement to the press, Vaughan said:

"I wrote that statement after the publicity came out. My friends who got the freezers were embarrassed. I didn't want my friends to be embarrassed. I got the statement together hastily and Charlie Ross put it out."

In telling of the deep freezers, Vaughan testified:

"The first freezer went to Independence, Mo. That was the main idea in the whole affair. That's how the subject came up.

"One came to me. I saw it after I returned from Potsdam.

"One went to Commander (James K.) Vardaman (a former St. Louisan). He sent it to the President's camp at Shangri-La.

"One serves the secretaries' staff mess at the White House.

"Those four I saw. They were different models and shapes and sizes. That's how I got the impression they were experiment models."

Interrogated about John Maragon's free ride to Europe in an Army transport plane, while on private business for the Chicago perfume company, Vaughan said:

"President Truman was not interested in any trip John Maragon would take. In fact, the President wasn't interested in any detail of Maragon's business or life or anything."

Vaughan was questioned along this line because of a penciled notation on a letter in the files of Mrs. Ruth Shipley, head of the State Department's passport bureau, which read:

"Col. V. informed Mrs. Shipley that the President is personally interested in Maragon's trip to Italy."

Says He Didn't Say It.

"Mrs. Shipley," Vaughan declared, "I believe to be one of the finest public servants in Washington. I have every reason to believe in some way or another she got that impression.

"But I certainly never said the President was interested."

Vaughan was asked when he learned John Maragon was picked up by New York customs officers for attempting to smuggle valuable perfume oils into this country, disguised as a champagne gift for a White House guard.

"I don't recall the exact time," Vaughan said. "When Maragon gave me the story some time later he also gave me an explanation that the case had been closed—that it was all a mistake, all washed up."

Pressed to tell why he did not terminate his association with the would-be smuggler, Vaughan floundered: "I thought I knew Mr. Maragon's background."

The spectators laughed at this, and Vaughan amended: "I don't know whether he had a background. It never occurred to me. He was a character—a Senate office building character."

"Did you know he had been accused in criminal cases?" Senator McCarthy demanded.

"Smuggling?"

"No, more than that."

"I never knew he had a criminal background."

"Well, we'll go into that later. You knew customs was not satisfied—was still holding the perfume?"

"No."

Possible "Error of Judgment."

Vaughan was asked if, when he recommended Maragon to accompany an American mission to Greece in 1946, he had checked Maragon's record with the Department of Justice.

"No, sir," said the witness.

Vaughan tried to shift part of the Maragon onus to Loy Henderson of the State Department, saying:

"When I recommended Maragon I called Loy Henderson, who also knew Maragon. My recommendation was probably unnecessary.

The witness was asked if, knowing what he now did about Maragon, he would still recommend him.

"I think so," said Vaughan.

Aid for Race Track.

From Maragon, perfumes and deep freezers, the questioning shifted to Maragon's multimillionaire friend, William Helis, who has race track interests in California and New Orleans.

In 1946, when veterans were begging for houses, Vaughan, whose White House assignments include that of Co-ordinator of Veterans Affairs, intervened with Housing Expediter Tighe Woods to get scarce building materials for the Tanforn race track in which Helis was interested. Vaughan admitted that, at the request of Helis, he sent two emissaries to see Woods, and that three days later Vaughan himself urged Woods to make a speedy decision on the application.

But Vaughan insisted stubbornly that he had not pressured Woods to decide one way or the other—all he wanted was a quick decision.

"You weren't urging Woods to decide against your friends?" Vaughan was asked.

"I was not urging him either way," Vaughan asserted. "I wanted him to make a decision according to the regulations and the law."

Vaughan was asked if he knew his old friend, Jim Hunt, the alleged 5 per center and influence peddler, had received a $15,000 fee for wangling the Tanforan priorities.

"No," said Vaughan, "I haven't the slightest idea of any fee received by Hunt."

Hunt's name came up again when Gen. Vaughan explained his interest in Gen. Waitt, chief of the Army Chemical Corps, now suspended. Vaughan said he asked Waitt to prepare a frank expression on each officer in line to succeed Waitt.

"I discussed it with the President," Vaughan said. "I told the President I was going to ask him for it, and showed it to the President after receiving it."

"I had no idea it was prepared in Hunt's office. I assumed it was prepared at Waitt's own office."

Asked About Molasses Deal.

Senator Mundt gave Vaughan a going over in respect to his denial that he had sought favors for the Allied Molasses Co. and had threatened Herbert C. Hathorn, an official of the Department of Agriculture. Vaughan had even denied knowing Hathorn, who previously had testified in detail as to their conversations and who said, "The General was a little rough."

Mundt read excerpts from Hathorn's testimony. Vaughan would not go so far as to call Hathorn a liar. His best explanation, he said was that he saw so many people he could not recall all their names and their conversations.

The sum of Vaughan's rambling testimony on the molasses deal was that if there were any sticky fingers, they weren't his.

Vaughan did recall having arranged an interview with President Truman for a man named Poland who might have been connected with the molasses.

Launching into another of his stories, Vaughan said: "I met Poland once in Milwaukee when I lived in Milwaukee. He had some connection with ex-Senator La Follette's party. He claimed he knew all about the political situation in Wisconsin and he wanted to see the President, so I arranged the interview.

At this point Senator McCarthy requested Vaughan to bring back back with him a complete list of the campaign contributions he had received from John Maragon, William Helis, George Skouras and all others.

"I've got the impression," remarked Senator McCarthy, "that Vaughan did not profit personally, but that Maragon was collecting. I want to know where the money went."

When Vaughan took the witness stand he was flanked by two men. He identifed them, when called upon to do so, as Col. Neil Mara, assistant military aide, and Col. Carl Ristine, "who served with me in the First World War."

"In Company D?"

"No, he was a doughboy, not in the field artillery," said Vaughan.

Maragon's Phone Calls.

Describing Maragon's activities around the White House, Vaughan said Maragon used to "pop into" his outer office and use the telephone.

Once Vaughan said he returned to his office just as the phone was ringing and his secretary handed the phone to Maragon.

"What goes on here?" Vaughan said he demanded of his secretary.

Thereafter, Vaughan said he gave orders Maragon was not to receive calls at the White House.

"He had a very plausible explanation for the few times he had done that," Vaughan said.

"Did your reprimand keep him away?"

Vaughan sighed as he said: "He don't reprimand easy."

VAUGHAN EVIDENCE UNDER QUESTIONING AT SENATE INQUIRY

thing from Mr. Helis. Mr. Helis gave me what he collected himself.

Q. Will you tell us whether or not Maragon at any time gave you money that he claimed was from Frankie Costello?

A. Who?

Q. Frankie Costello. If you remember.

A. Am I supposed to know Frankie Costello?

Q. I am just asking you. If you don't know, tell us.

A. I never heard of him, to my knowledge.

Q. You never heard of Frank Costello?

A. I don't know. In what connection? The name—I have heard of people named Costello.

Q. Do you know whether or not Margon gave you money and said, "This came from Frankie Costello"?

A. Certainly not; I have no recollection of any such.

Q. You identified the source of $1000 that Maragon collected. Can you tell us where the thousand came from?

A. No, I cannot. I don't know whether he told me; If he did I can't recall. . . . May I ask who is Frank Costello? . . . What bearing does he have on this particular instant case?

Q. The bearing is, Mr. Vaughan, that I would like to know where Maragon got the money he gave you, I would like to know how much; Frank Costello is a rather famous—

Finally Remembers Costello.

A. Oh, the New York gangster?

Q. Yes.

A. Oh, I didn't connect him; I didn't know how he got in here.

Q. Now you know. Will you tell us . . . whether or not some of that money—

A. I am sure that if Maragon had told me that he got money from that individual I would certainly remember.

Q. Yes. Your thought now is that he didn't?

A. That he certainly did not.

Q. Will you try now and think, as hard as you can, and tell us whether or not any of the funds came from any of the men, other than Helis, whom you had befriended, either race track deals, War Assets deals, or any other kinds of deals?

A. None that I remember.

Q. Do you know how much Helis gave you?

A. No. I can't recall. I think it was two or three thousand dollars, though.

Q. This was about the time you were interceding in his behalf in the race track deal, was it not?

A. Well, when was it? I can't recall. . . .

(McCarthy and Vaughan apparently were confused about the date of the Tanforan incident. The Tanforan permit was issued in January 1948, instead of 1946 as McCarthy said, after Vaughan paid a visit to Woods's office. Woods was not named Acting Expediter until late 1947. Vaughan said the campaign contributions were made in 1946.)

Q. And how much money did you get from Mr. Hunt in the fall of 1946?

A. I don't know, I don't recall ever getting any money from Mr. Hunt. . . . I don't know whether Mr. Hunt is financially able to give to campaigns, and I don't even know what his politics are.

Q. Can you tell us whether the money that Mr. Maragon collected . . . was closer to the total sum of $5000 or closer to $2000?

A. I am sure is would be closer to $2000.

Q. Was it over $3000?

A. I think not.

Q. Did you keep any list of the men from whom Mr. Maragon collected this money?

Information Passed to Harper.

A. The information that he gave me I passed on to Roy Harper, if I remember correctly . . . I know I told him about this contribution from Mr. Skouras; I listed the other people that had given me money, as I wanted him to have it for his records.

(Mundt then resumed questioning.)

Q. Did Mr. Maragon ever use your office or any White House office as a sort of headquarters of operation?

A. Well, Mr. Maragon pops in frequently—did—used my outside office telephone. How long he had done that before it came to my attention, I don't know. (He related how he told his secretary not to let Maragon use his office for phone calls after he discovered him once.)

Q. Did John ever visit your office after that, or was that reprimand sufficient to keep him away?

A. Oh, no, he does not reprimand easy.

Mundt turned to Vaughan's statement that he had no recollection of helping the Allied Molasses Co. in its sugar troubles with the Agriculture Department or of threatening to "get" Herbert C. Hathorn, former Department of Agriculture official. Hathorn said under oath that Vaughan threatened to have him fired if he refused to help the molasses company.

Q. Now, do you recall having called the (Agriculture) Secretary's office in the interests of the Allied Molasses Co. or of its Mr. Ross?

A. No, I do not.

Q. You would not want to say, though, that you did not call. It could have been that you just do not recall.

A. It could have happened. I could have called him, yes.

Mundt asked if Vaughan remembered telling Hathorn: "We Democrats have to stick together."

A. I don't know; I made that statement on numerous occasions.

Q. Thousands of times?

A. Yes. I don't know that Mr. Hathorn is a Democrat.

Q. When did you first learn the company (Allied Molasses) had been in violation (of wartime rationing regulations)?

A. I never learned it. I read his (Hathorn's) testimony in the paper. I have no recollection of this company at all.

Q. (By McCarthy) Do you recall whether Mr. Maragon collected any money either for a campaign or otherwise from this molasses company and gave the money to you?

A. Not to my knowledge. That name, I am sure, was not on the list of names that were mentioned to me as being contributors.

(McCarthy then requested that Vaughan return tomorrow with a list of persons for whom he interceded in Government matters and who gave him contributions.)

"Hathorn May Be Sincere."

Q. (By Mundt) Is there any reason why Hathorn should come here and deliberately falsify testimony that you can think of?

A. I can think of no reason.

Q. And it is your testimony now that these statements I have read from Hathorn's testimony are bald-faced falsifications; is that correct?

Vaughan Testimony Under Questioning by Senators

A. I cannot say. Mr. Hathorn may be absolutely sincere in what he recalls. I did not say them myself. . . . It would be absolutely ridiculous for me to make the statement that I was very close to the President. I have been very close to the President for 30 years and that is a statement that doesn't need to be made.

Q. Mr. Hathorn might not know that.

A. Well, I don't know why Mr. Hathorn would be interested in it. . . .

(Vaughan acknowledge that he "may have" telephoned both Hathorn and Joseph T. Elvove, another Agriculture Department employe.)

Q. For the Allied Molasses Co.?

A. Possibly. I don't recall the Allied Molasses Co. All I take exception to is that I threatened the man and tried to get him to do something that was against his instructions, and threatened him with the loss of his job. I have never talked to a buck private under my command that way.

Q. Is it possible that you did try to intercede in behalf of expediting this permit that they (Allied Molasses) were trying to secure?

A. It might have been, yes.

Q. Is it possible that Mr. Hathorn told you this company was in direct violation?

A. If he told me that, I am sure I dropped the case right there, because I have been told that on several occasions, and that has been my policy.

"Possible That I Talked to Him."

Q. So that your testimony, then is, sir, that up to that point it is entirely possible Mr. Hathorn's memory was accurate and his testimony was right?

A. It is entirely possible that I talked to him.

Q. Then suddenly he either suffered a complete loss of memory or began perjuring himself very wilfully because he quoted you as stating things you are positive you did not say.

A. That is correct, yes. . . .

Q. (By Senator Margaret Chase Smith (Rep.), Maine.) Mr. Chairman, I have only one question today. I may have some more tomorrow. Gen. Vaughan, do you have or have you ever had a safe deposit box here or anywhere in this country or abroad with Mr. Maragon?

A. Oh, I never have. I have never had any financial dealings with Mr. Maragon except those that have been brought out.

U.S. TAX COLLECTOR SUING KLAN GETS THREATS BY PHONE

ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 30 (AP)—The United States Collector of Internal Revenue for Georgia has received numerous threats, all by telephone, since he filed suit last week for alleged unpaid income taxes of the Association of Georgia Klans.

Collector Marion H. Allen, who slapped a $9332 tax lien on the robed order last week, said one caller identified herself as a klansman's wife. He said she reported she had heard "plans to take me for a ride."

"I may be dumb, but I'm not afraid of them," Allen said yesterday.

"I have no way of knowing who the callers are," he continued. "Sometimes my telephone rings, and when I answer, the caller hangs up in my face."

Allen told reporters he has not reported the threats to any law-enforcement agencies.

Allen declared the investigation into klan finances is continuing and that he will make every effort to collect taxes the Government claims for 1946, 1947 and 1948.

PILOT IS SAVED BY EJECTOR DEVICE IN JET PLANE SPIN

MARCH AIR BASE, Calif., Aug. 30 (AP)—An Air Force pilot, was thrown clear of his spinning jet fighter and parachuted to safety in what is believed the first combat-condition use of an F-86 jet plane automatic ejection device.

The plane of Second Lt. Robert E. Farley, 25 years old, Selah, Wash., developed trouble yesterday in a vertical dive. The cockpit ejection mechanism hurled him free of the ship. He pulled his ripcord only 1000 feet from ground, receiving only deep feet and face cuts.

Farley was stranded on top of a 3200 peak in the San Bernardino mountains, 21 miles east of Palm Springs. He made a tent of the parachute to protect him from the 115-degree desert heat and was later rescued by an air force helicopter.

TITO ASKS FOR U.S. LOAN OF $25,000,000

By JOHN SCALI

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30 (AP)—Premier Josip (Tito) Broz of Yugoslavia is considered virtually a cinch to get an American Government loan—provided he stays alive and independent from Moscow.

Top Government officials said Secretary of State Dean Acheson's strong support for Yugoslavia's application clearly foreshadows a favorable verdict. Acheson and Ambassador Cavendish Cannon in Belgrade are reported vigorously urging the Export-Import Bank not only to approve Tito's bid but to do it quickly.

The Yugoslav Government was disclosed last night to have applied formally to the bank for a credit of around $25,000,000 to buy American machinery for its copper, lead and zinc mines. Tito is reported to have turned to the bank, an American Government agency, because he feels he cannot wait possibly six months for a credit from the International Bank.

The request to the Export-Import Bank is the first time the Yugoslav government has turned to the United States Government for a direct loan since Tito defied Moscow's orders some 15 months ago and split from the Soviet bloc in western Europe.

Government officials here said that thus far there has been no sign of opposition from Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson.

Johnson first opposed and then finally approved the first big step by the United States to bolster Yugoslavia several weeks ago—a decision to permit the Yugoslavs to buy a $3,000,000 steel mill from an American company.

U.S. URGED TO BUY MORE STRATEGIC GOODS FROM BRITISH

was part of a broad program with compensating concessions to Britain for immediate losses involved.

The brief was understood to commit Britain to greater austerity in efforts to conserve dollars. It was said to propose the following moves immediately:

(1) Cuts in government costs at home; (2) increased United States stockpiling of strategic materials which would bring in dollars; (3) increased United States Government and private investment within the sterling bloc; (4) simplification by the United States of customs procedures which could be carried out on short notice.

The Foreign Office disclosed that M. E. Dening, chief of its Far Eastern section, would fly to Washington next week to join strategy talks paralleling the three-power financial negotiations. He will assist in discussions between Foreign Secretary Bevin and Secretary of State Dean Acheson, who are expected to review the situation in China and other eastern regions.

The British delegation to the financial talks will submit the proposition that British expenditure to support non-Communist governments in critical areas are linked closely with United States policy to contain Communism. Some reports indicated that Britain might ask for United States help on such fronts.

Lord Beaverbrook's Independent Daily Express meanwhile demanded that wartime Prime Minister Winston Churchill be made Prime Minister again "to unite and inspire the country" as he did in 1940. It was the first frank demand for Churchill's return to office since the dollar crisis broke in mid-summer, although a number of Conservative papers have suggested a coalition or a Conservative Government.

"What is Britain's greatest need at this crisis in her affairs?" the Daily Express asked. "It is leadership. Resolute, incisive, courageous leadership.

"Bring Churchill back. Imagine the change if he were back in office. Everything would be lifted up—heart, hope, spirit and effort. Britain would be on the move at last."

Text of Gen. Vaughan's Formal Statement to Senate Committee

I AM glad to appear as a witness before this committee and to make a statement on the matters in which I have been mentioned in recent testimony here.

I have the honor of serving as the military aide to the President. My association with President Truman covers a period of some 30 years. Since 1941, except for my overseas duty with the Army, I have served him as secretary and later as military aide. By reason of this experience, my duties in serving the President have not been limited to military matters but have also included other administrative functions.

Inquiries from persons having business with various Government agencies come to my attention in my capacity as a member of the White House staff. The steps taken by me in response to such inquiries have been for the purpose of assisting people in transacting business with the appropriate agencies of their Government. In most such cases the people I assisted were not friends of mine in any way; in a few cases the people involved had been known to me or were old friends.

In all such matters I followed the practice of extending aid whenever that could properly be done. At no time have I tried to cause a Government official to take any action which he did not consider proper and in the best interests of the Government.

No Participation by Truman.

In so far as I have given such assistance to any business concerns or their representatives, it has been without any participation by the President in any way, either through approval or any knowledge on his part of the names of specific companies or individuals whose requests for assistance came to me and were given my attention.

Now let me refer to specific matters which have been mentioned before this committee.

This committee has been considering the business activities of James V. Hunt. I have known Mr. Hunt for about five years, having met him when he was with the Quartermaster General and I was assigned to the Truman committee. Our relationship has been friendly. To the best of my recollection, he has never asked and I have never aided him in any matter with a Government agency.

The freezers which have been discussed here were a gift from two old friends of mine. This gift was an expression of friendship and nothing more. There is absolutely no connection between this gift and any assistance I have given these friends. At no time have I taken action as a member of the White House staff in exchange for a gift or other favor.

The assistance which I gave to the Verley Co. of Chicago was precisely what I would have done for other concerns in comparable circumstances had I been requested to do so. The Verley Co. desired to send representatives to Europe to prepare for the resumption of business after the war. Such action by American business men was urged by the State Department and has been part of this Government's official policy in the postwar years—not only without substantial criticism, so far as I know, but with warm support in Congress and elsewhere. I am sure this committee would know more about that than I do; but that is my understanding.

I have been advised that the following are the facts in connection with the European trips of representatives of the Verley Co.:

The Verley Co. complied with such requirements as the State Department laid down for expediting the business visits of American business men to Europe. Two of the fundamental requirements were that the companies seeking transportation must have maintained prewar business relations with Europe and that the business to be helped in Europe would aid the rehabilitation of Europe. The Verley Co. fitted those requirements; its business dealings with Europe had been known by the Department of State as far back as 1926 and the re-establishment of the production of essential oil in Europe would provide employment for a large number of people. The exportation of this product would improve Europe's dollar position.

The priorities for the transportation the Verley Co. received from our Government in the postwar period corresponded with similar facilities made available to many American business corporations during the same period of time — among them some of the best known corporations in America.

Maragon and Tanforan.

With respect to John Maragon, I have known him since 1941 when he was employed by a railroad company to assist in obtaining transportation for members of Congress. I have had no business connections with Mr. Maragon. I have never authorized him to represent or speak for me, or the White House, in any matter pertaining to my duties. Upon his request, I have given him assistance in matters when it appeared to be entirely proper to do so.

As for the Tanforan matter, these are the facts as I recall them. William Helis, whom I have known for years, asked me to make an appointment for Eugene Mori, an associate of his, with the office of the Housing expediter. I made that appointment and sometime later, Mr. Helis asked me to make an appointment with Tighe Woods, the acting Housing Expediter, for Mr. Mori. I made this appointment also. When Mr. Mori arrived in Washington, I went to Mr. Woods' office to introduce him to Mr. Woods and left shortly thereafter. At no time did I attempt to influence the decision of these Government officials.

The Molasses.

I come next to the testimony before this committee concerning my alleged intervention with the Department of Agriculture in a matter involving Allied Molasses Co., of which one Harold M. Ross of Perth Amboy, N.J., is said to be president.

I have no recollection of ever having heard of any company by that name. Nor do I have any recollection of knowing or ever meeting a person by the name of Harold M. Ross.

It is, nevertheless, entirely possible that I might have made a telephone call to the Department of Agriculture making an appointment or addressing a routine inquiry in a matter affecting the company. As I made clear earlier, I have made hundreds of such routine calls on behalf of persons whom I did not know. To remember the occasion or the names of more than a small fraction of those for whom I performed these services would be humanly impossible.

I will, therefore, assume, even though I have no recollection of the incident, that I spoke by telephone to some representative or representatives of the Department of Agriculture at the instance of a company named Allied Molasses Co. Beyond that, however, I cannot go. Most emphatically, I cannot concede that I made the statements attributed to me by Mr. Herbert C. Hathorn, who, incidentally, is unknown to me.

Denies Making Threats.

It just doesn't make sense that I would suggest to Mr. Hathorn or to any Government employe that I would "get his job" if he refused to grant a request which he sincerely regarded as improper or that I would be instrumental in rewarding him for betraying his public trust. I, therefore, must and do deny that I urged Mr. Hathorn to adopt any particular course of action in the matter of Allied Molasses Co. or that I made any threats to him.

I can only say that the Hathorn tale is an out-and-out fantasy in so far as it relates to me. Whether there was a misunderstanding by Mr. Hathorn or whether someone impersonated me in a telephone conversation with Mr. Hathorn, I do not know.

There is nothing to conceal in my record as a public servant. I will answer any questions you may wish to ask. I have discharged my duties honestly and to the best of my ability.

SUICIDE VERDICT RETURNED IN HIRAM NORCROSS DEATH

Norcross was found dead in a ditch last Friday between Hever and Edenbridge, Kent, where he lived with his wife, the former Miss Emily Westwood Lewis, of St. Louis, Mo., and their two small daughters. He was a research chemist and had been vice president of the Shell Development Corp. since 1942.

Dr. Joseph J. Coulthard testified Mrs. Norcross told him the week before her husband's death that Norcross was in a "fit of depression."

Maj. Robert Denne, a neighbor, said Norcross had not been sleeping well lately. "I think he took his work extremely seriously," Denne testified.

25 STRANDED ON PAID TOUR OF EUROPE FLOWN TO CHICAGO

NEW YORK, Aug. 30 (AP) — Twenty-five students, broke and stranded in New York overnight by transportation troubles on their return from a plane trip to Europe, flew to Chicago last night on a Robin Airline plane. The group, all that was left of a party of 40, had spent a day of uncertainty after their paid-for trip from Chicago to Amsterdam and back to Chicago abruptly ended here.

Alaska airlines, which had sold them the round-trip tours for $350, had been forced to halt its overseas operations because of a Civil Aeronautics Board safety ruling. The line arranged for the Robin plane to take them to their starting point.

TENANTS HERE GET BACK $74,002 IN RENT

Rental overcharge settlements, amounting to $74,002, have been obtained for 755 tenants in the St. Louis area since the 1949 Housing and Rent Act went into effect last April 1, A. C. Sullivan, deputy director of the St. Louis Area Rent Office, announced today.

The amount obtained in settlements represents an average of $98 per case in this area, Sullivan said. National average for settlements for the first four months the law was in effect was about $85 per case, putting this area $13 per case ahead of those throughout the nation.

For the month ended last Aug. 25, the area rent office here obtained settlements totaling $20,523, or an average of about $87 for each of the 237 tenants involved in the overcharge cases. In addition to the amount of the settlements, $7754 was paid to the Government by landlords in the form of penalties in the month.

Settlements obtained in 23,622 overcharge cases throughout the country during the first four months the act was effective, Sullivan reported, totaled about $2,000,000. In 27,000 cases, nationally, landlords have been ordered to restore discontinued services, or to reduce rents to compensate for reduced services.

Flashes of Life

By the Associated Press.

Aug. 29 a Day to Remember.

SPRINGFIELD, Tenn.—As far as Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Pagni are concerned, the stork has a one-track mind. He has visited the Pagni household three times in consecutive years—and each time on Aug. 29.

Mrs. Pagni, wife of a laboratory technician, gave birth to Thomas Pagni III at Robertson County Hospital Monday. The other two Aug. 29 children are Marie Diane, 2 years old, and Kathleen Ann, 1.

Curb Service.

KANSAS CITY, Kan.—A taxicab driver, answering a call, pulled over to the curb in front of the Wyandotte county courthouse. He saw the two passengers waiting to take the cab.

And they took it.

The two men were deputy sheriffs who impounded the vehicle pending payment of $926.85 for delinquent and personal taxes, interest and penalties.

Rough Going.

The customers at his golf-driving range hooked into left field so consistently that a bucketful of balls was picked up in a yard across the street, police said.

Labeling such driving a "public hazard," police lifted Sazarko's license until he builds a better fence or heads his hooking customers in another direction.

NEW COMET IN CONSTELLATION CAPRICORNUS IS ANNOUNCED

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Aug. 30 (AP)—Discovery of a new comet by E. L. Johnson at Johannesburg was announced today by Harvard College Observatory.

The comet was very dim, being of the fourteenth magnitude, and moving south at the rate of a tenth of a degree daily. Such a course would soon make it invisible from northern latitudes, the observatory said. The comet was located in the constellation Capricornus.

STOCK INDEX GAINS ON 590,000-SHARE TRADE

NEW YORK, Aug. 30 (AP)—The stock market closed a little higher today after a painfully slow advance.

Few gains exceeded fractions and numerous leading issues did no better than remain at Monday's closing levels.

Sales of 590,000 shares compared with 640,000 yesterday, making it smallest market of month.

First hour sales, 120,000; second, 120,000; third, 90,000; fourth, 80,000; fifth, 180,000.

Of 859 issues traded 319 closed up, 257 down, 283 unchanged.

Chemical, aircraft, oil and assorted industrial shares were among those favored in a mild way.

Superior Steel hit a 1949 low with a loss of around a point following news that the board had not taken action on dividend usually voted at this time.

United Aircraft was helped along by a report that the company had received a fat government contract.

Others higher most of the day included U. S. Steel, General Motors, Chrysler, Douglas Aircraft, Sinclair Oil, Barnsdall Oil, Gulf Oil, Texas Co. and Standard Oil (N.J.)

Higher prices were posted in the curb at times on Niagara Hudson Power, North American Rayon "A," Ogden Corp., Pantepec Oil, United Light, American Superpower, Cities Service, Derby Oil, Humble Oil and Louisiana Land. Mead Johnson slipped at one time.

One encouraging signpost on the business road was seen in the first upturn in industrial output during August since last autumn. The Federal Reserve Board reported production in July had dropped to 162 per cent of the 1935-39 average from 169 per cent in June. The board said August output may be close to the June rate.

British Issues Firm.

LONDON, Aug. 30 (AP)—Stocks and Government bonds were firm in quiet trading on the London Stock Exchange today.

Many investors seemed to have decided on a policy of wait and see—until the dollar talks that start Sept. 7 in Washington. Small gains and losses were scattered among both Government bonds and industrial stocks.

English Exchange.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30—English Exchange rates (in dollars): Great Britain (pound) $4.02⅞, up 1-16 of a cent; Great Britain 30-day futures $3.91⅞, up 1-16 of a cent; Great Britain 60-day futures $3.85⅞, up 1-16 cents; Great Britain 90-day futures $3.78⅞, up 1 1-16 cents.

No Action on Dividend.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30 (AP)—Directors of Superior Steel Corp. took no action on a common stock dividend usually declared at this time. The company previously paid 25 cents quarterly, with occasional year-end extras. The last payment was made July 1.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 30 (AP)—Railroad bonds tried hard today for a price comeback. A good selection of rail issues pushed ahead fractions to a point in following the stock market in a timid upward push.

Since the summer rally in rails was checked recently, carrier loans have advanced only once in the last nine sessions.

WHEAT CLOSES LOWER, CORN PRICES MIXED

CHICAGO, Aug. 30 (AP)—Selling by commission houses and liquidation by local traders carried all grains lower toward the close of today's Board of Trade session. Cash dealers were credited with selling September wheat as earlier commercial demand subsided. Corn reacted with wheat when corn bookings on a to-arrive basis were placed at 125,000 bushels.

Starting on a steady basis, futures advanced, until a wave of selling hit soybeans midway through the morning session. Some recovery developed, but the market failed to regain its steady tone.

UPWARD JOB TREND REPORTED IN MISSOURI

Official Says Downward Tendency Stopped in May—Drop in Aid Claims

JEFFERSON CITY, Aug. 30 (UP)—Charles A. Ricker, director of the Missouri Division of Employment Security, said yesterday the state's employment trend has turned upward but is still short of the number of jobs recorded last year.

"From the standpoint of employment, Missouri appears to be one of the brightest spots in the country," Ricker said. "The downward trend in available jobs was halted in May and turned upward in June."

The division's August bulletin showed 1,060,500 persons employed in the state in June in manufacturing and non-manufacturing lines, not counting construction, agricultural, domestic workers or self-employed persons.

The figure, while showing an improvement over the May total of 1,056,800 gainfully employed, was 27,100 less than the number for June 1948.

Unemployment claims have dropped in the state, the division bulletin said. It listed a total of 156,818 claims, new and continued, last June, compared with 174,918 registered in the record postwar month of June 1946.

The amount of money paid unemployed persons in Missouri in June, however, was more than in the preceding month. May benefits totaled $2,003,175; June $2,054,953.

So far this year, the division has paid out a total of $13,335,574 in unemployment claims.

Factory Output Dropped in July, Says Reserve Report.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30 (AP)—Industrial production decreased again in July, but business trends are brighter this month, the Federal Reserve Board reported yesterday.

The decline was the ninth consecutive one recorded by the agency's monthly barometer of business and financial conditions.

Federal reserve's monthly reading of the country's economic pulse showed July production at 162 per cent of the 1935-39 average. This compared with output of 169 per cent in June and 195 per cent when the skid began last November.

Noting that no official announcement has been made by either the company or the Government, the service said "it is reported in the aircraft industry that the engines are to be used in B-36 bombers."

Stewart Alsop Says U.S. Foreign Policy in Both Europe and Asia Now Is Threatened With Failure

'Danger Not Apparent in Washington; Snyder and Other Business-as-Usual Advocates Sitting on the Crisis'—Immediate Peril Is Collapse of Britain.

By STEWART ALSOP
(Copyright, 1949.)

WASHINGTON.

ONE conclusion appears reasonable to the traveler returned from a journey of political observation around the world. That is that American foreign policy, both in Europe and in Asia, is now faced with failure.

The danger is not apparent here, because Secretary of the Treasury Snyder and other Administration advocates of business as usual are sitting on the crisis, like so many nervous hens hatching time bombs, yet it is important to try to understand what is happening.

The first danger is in Europe. Unless bold counter-measures are taken, the British are now expected to go bankrupt within the next six to 18 months. This means the end of Britain as a great power. In turn, this means the destruction of the whole painfully built western front of resistance to Soviet aggression.

British Reaction to Peril.

The British reaction to the threat of bankruptcy is already apparent. It is, first, to try to erect an autarchic economic system within the sterling bloc, insulated against the United States and the rest of the world. Second, to cut British commitments abroad to the bone. Third, to make barter deals with the Soviet Union and the Soviet sphere.

As final bankruptcy approaches, these reactions will be intensified. The attempt to insulate Britain from the United States will in itself rupture the partnership which is the strategic basis of American policy. With British economic and strategic commitments cut much further, the long arc of British power, stretching from Hong Kong through Asia and the heart of Europe to the British Isles, will begin to crumble.

Finally, the cry for political as well as economic deals with the Soviets, already heard on the British left, will become much louder. One can almost read the editorials in advance: "Our choice — Yank bombers on British soil or Russian wheat in British mouths."

It is British power, married to American power, that gives meaning to all the plans for the defense of western Europe. From the Truman Doctrine to the military aid program, the basic purpose of American policy has been to give Europe confidence, and thus strengthen the center against the extremes of right and left. Already the cut in the military aid program has weakened this confidence. The disintegration of British power will destroy it at a stroke.

The result in France, for example, is sure to be a general running for cover. DeGaulle will gain on the right, and the Communists on the left, while the center pursues an "understanding" with the Kremlin on almost any terms.

The same pattern holds for all Europe. With Britain down, Europe will become a sort of mush. The Russians, whose great rearmament effort is already nearing completion, will need to use, not force, but the mere threat of force, to consume the mush.

This is why the best expert estimates appear to be that it will require only about two years to produce another world war if Britain collapses as a great power.

Situation in Asia.

On the other hand, the process which is now going on in Asia will require a longer time, although it is equally sure to end in war if it is allowed to continue indefinitely. This process amounts to an attempt to create a new greater East Asia co-prosperity sphere, this time under Soviet auspices.

China is almost gone. The next target is Southeast Asia, which was also Japan's target after the conquest of China was almost complete. After Southeast Asia, the objective is Japan itself, as the major Soviet efforts to train Communist shock troops of repatriated Japanese soldiers so clearly suggest.

If Southeast Asia goes, Japan should not prove a difficult target, unless American troops are to hold Japan indefinitely by brute force. China and Southeast Asia comprise Japan's whole natural trading area, and economic pressure alone could be enough ultimately to bring Japan into the Soviet sphere.

Power Balance at Stake.

With Japan's industrial potential added to the great riches and huge population of Southeast Asia and China, and the whole area under Soviet control, a vast upset in the world power balance will have occurred. It is worth recalling that we fought a long cruel war with Japan to prevent such an upset in the balance of power. It is also worth recalling that Japan was not a European power, and the Soviet Union is.

All this need not happen.

It will not happen if the United States faces the alternatives. The power, the wealth, the energy and the ingenuity of this country are sufficient to meet and overcome the crises now confronting us.

One alternative is to make the necessary extra effort, with the realization that this effort may be like an insurance policy which must continue for a long time.

The other alternative will be to avoid all effort and sacrifice, and continue business as usual. This will be precisely like grudging the money for fire insurance with a powerful arsonist loose in the district.

Preliminary Work on Reviving Passamaquoddy Power Project

U.S. and Canada Allot Funds for Report on How Study of Plan to Harness Tides Should Be Made—Two Hearings Held.

By GEORGE H. HALL
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.

Rising phoenix-like from the ashes of the old Passamaquoddy project, for years the butt of anti-New Deal jokes, is the conception of a larger joint project to be sponsored by Canada and the United States.

The project is scarcely in the planning stage so far, but Canada and the United States each has contributed $30,000 to the International Joint Commission, the standing commission that handles matters affecting both countries, to make a survey of the possibilities.

The commission in turn has appointed an international board of four engineers to arrange the survey. The American members are E. Robert de Luccia, chief of the Bureau of Power of the Federal Power Commission, and Maj. Gen. R. C. Crawford, deputy chief of the Army Engineers.

Function of Board.

The board will not try to determine the feasibility of the project and the approximate cost. That will take an elaborate engineering study. The board's chief function will be to determine the cost of the study and how it should be made. Whether the final study is undertaken will depend on the two governments. The De Luccia-Crawford survey is expected to take about three months.

The international commission already has held two hearings, one at St. Andrews, N. Z., in Canada, and the second at Eastport, Me. Reports of these meetings indicate a great deal of support for the proposal and opposition only from Canadian sardine fishing interests.

At the conclusion of the Eastport meeting Chairman A. O. Stanley of the American section of the commission said "this great resource is needed now more than ever before." He expressed the hope the commission would be able to recommend the comprehensive survey.

Sponsors of the project, including the Maine delegation in Congress and state officials, emphasize that the new proposal has only a slight connection with the ill-starred earlier project. Both are based on the same idea, of course, the use of the tides to drive electric generators, but sponsors maintain that the international plan avoids the failings of the American plan.

Also, times have changed. In the early 1930s there was no ready demand for power either in Maine or New Brunswick. Now both want it. Canada said it did not have the money to finance the project 15 years ago; now apparently that might be found.

History of Project.

Passamaquoddy has had a curious history. The original promoter was the late Dexter P. Cooper, who is said to have spent $500,000 in plans and promotions. His original plan was an international one. He proposed constructing dams to form two great pools, a high-level pool on the New Brunswick side of Passamaquoddy bay and a low-level pool in Cobscook bay, an arm of Passamaquoddy, on the Maine side.

The theory was that the sea would be impounded at high tide and released through turbines. The tides in this area have an annual average range between rise and fall of about 18 feet.

Cooper, unable to put over his international idea, modified it to encompass a smaller area in American waters. He then sought financing from the United States Government. In 1934 the Federal Power Commission reported the project unsound and unjustified because it would cost $40,000,000 as opposed to $16,000,000 for a comparable steam-generating plant and because there was no market for the power. A Public Works Administration technical board also reported adversely.

In November 1934, the PWA appointed a special commission to study the proposal and in January 1935 this commission reported favorably and recommended that the War Department be given $30,000,000 to finance construction of a single-basin project, which ultimately could be expanded to incorporate a Canadian pool.

Estimates of Cost.

War Department engineers started planning the single-basin project and discovered it would cost well over $61,000,000, while Bureau of Reclamation engineers, called in as advisers, estimated the cost at more than $68,000,000.

The Army nevertheless was given $7,000,000 and went to work. The money was spent in about a year's time and when Congress refused to put up any more the Army Engineers pulled out. It was all over, except the jokes and the criticism, by the end of 1936.

Three years later Congress asked the FPC to take another look at Passamaquoddy, and the commission reported back in the spring of 1941. It remained critical of the American plans, chiefly on

Connally Offers Compromise on Arms Aid Fund

He Will Take Less for Europe in Return for Helping Nations Make Own Arms.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30. (UP).

SENATOR CONNALLY (Dem.), Texas, today offered to cut arms aid for western Europe from $1,160,990,000 to one billion dollars if Republicans will accept a proposal to help North Atlantic Treaty nations make some of their own munitions.

He made the offer to a joint Senate Foreign Relations-Armed Services Committee meeting considering the $1,450,000,000 arms for free nations program.

The groups were split over the total figure for western Europe and over Administration plans to earmark $155,000,000 for retooling some European arms factories.

Connally's proposal, committee members reported, would cut arms aid for Europe to the one billion figure urged by Republican Senators Vandenberg of Michigan and Dulles of New York. But his compromise was contingent on agreement by the Republicans to drop opposition to the retooling plan.

One committee member said that actually only $36,000,000 would be spent for tooling the European plants. The rest of the $155,000,000 would go for raw materials, he said.

The joint committee by a vote of 11 to 9 approved the retooling plan yesterday. But Vandenberg said he would press for reconsideration.

Connally appointed a subcommittee which he said will try to work out an "attitude" acceptable to the full joint committee and the nation in order to "meet the obligations of the North Atlantic Pact."

Members are Connally, Vandenberg, of the Foreign Relations Committee; Chairman Tydings (Dem.), Maryland, of the Armed Services Committee, and Gurney (Rep.), South Dakota, of the Armed Services group.

Truman Board Offers to Mediate Steel Dispute as It Ends Hearings; Replies of Union, Industry Awaited

Fact-Finding Group's Proposal Would Bypass U.S. Conciliation Service — Strike by Sept. 14 Possible if Efforts to Obtain Agreement Fail.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30 (UP)—President Truman's steel-fact-finding board announced today it had withdrawn its offer to mediate the steel industry dispute because the companies specified that any mediation would have to be conducted on an individual company basis rather than an industry-wide basis.

By JOSEPH HANLON
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.

PRESIDENT TRUMAN'S fact-finding board in the controversy between the CIO Steelworkers and the companies resisting the union's demand for a fourth-round postwar pay increase now has the facts.

The hearing, which began July 28 at the United States Courthouse here, ended last night with the surprise disclosure that the fact-finding board had offered to mediate the dispute which threatens the steel industry with a strike on Sept. 14.

Both the CIO United Steelworkers and some of the big steel companies indicated they might give an answer during the day to the mediation offer. The board hopes to have replies from the union and all 63 companies by tomorrow.

The offer was disclosed last night to reporters by the three board members just before they concluded their formal hearing of the evidence in the case. The mediation suggestion was made at a private session last Friday.

The board, originally directed to report today, was unable to do so because of interruptions in the hearings and additional time granted the steel companies.

Its report, in which the board may recommend, but not enforce, terms of settlement, is now to be made to the President by Sept. 10. That is the outside date, and the report could come a few days earlier.

Whatever time remains between the date of the report and the expiration of the 60-day strike truce—12:01 a.m. Sept. 14, will be available for collective bargaining. No evidence has developed here, however, that offers much promise of reaching an agreement through collective bargaining, however long the period may be for that process. The unions and the companies remain so far apart in their views that a mid-September steel strike would appear to be inevitable.

Vital Effects on Economy.

The board's conclusions on the basis of the facts it has heard from union and industry spokesmen could have vital effects on the nation's economy — assuming its conclusions win the support of public opinion, as was the hope when it was named.

Should the board recommend some compromise increase—as is widely expected—its recommendation would become the objective for most of the major unions which have been standing by, withholding four-round strike action until they see what happens in steel—chosen for this year's test case. That goes not only for the million members of the steelworkers, but for the equal number of United Automobile Workers, even the 400,000 coal miners of John L. Lewis, and millions of others, organized and unorganized, because there is always a tendency to lift wages of unorganized workers to maintain prior differentials.

Involved, too, is the question of whether a wage rise now would give another boost to the postwar inflation, check the current recession in business activity, or send the economy plunging into a depression.

The steel companies, most reluctantly, accepted the fact-finding procedure—they could hardly have done anything less when Truman, after the big three steel

Rations Still Thin, Life Rugged For 'Pampered' British Workers

By WILLIAM H. STONEMAN
The Chicago Daily News-Post-Dispatch Special Radio. Copyright, 1949.
(LAST OF THREE ARTICLES)

LONDON, Aug. 30.

ACCORDING to reports in the press, there is growing indignation in the United States because the British are living in the lap of luxury at the expense of the American taxpayer. In view of this charge, it is necessary to break down and report that the British people are looking healthier, better dressed and better fed than we ever remember seeing them look even before the Second World War began.

Our judgment may be distorted by having seen them in the years between 1939 and 1945, when they were often pale, shabby and hungry and, it should be added, fighting; but we still have the definite impression that they are really getting along a lot better than they used to, say in 1938. But they weren't getting along so awfully well, even then.

$11.20 Per Week.

The average weekly wage of an industrial worker was $11.20. The housing situation was bad to desperate, the food was rotten, and a trip to the "flicks" was a luxury. If it hadn't been for the corner pub and good cheap beer there would, or should have been, a revolution.

The fields were green and lovely, if you could get to them. The shires echoed to the noises of hounds chasing foxes. The gentlemen and ladies of the "county" class had a pleasant existence and there were plenty of folks of the lower and middle classes who ate meat almost every day.

If there ever was a country where a little "leveling" seemed to be in order, it was England.

During the war it was a constant source of wonder to us that these same people generated so much "king and country" spirit and fought so bitterly for a land in which they fared so poorly.

The stock joke in those days dealt with Lloyd George's oratorical gem during the First World War:

"I'll make Scotland a land fit for heroes to live in." The answer of an unemployed Glasgow veteran was:

"You have to be a hero to live in the blasted place."

Still a Land for Heroes.

Britain still is a land fit for heroes to live in. You only get two small lamb chops a week for your meat ration. There is only enough butter for two or three meals and enough margarine to fry a dozen potatoes. Though they have lifted the clothing ration, the prices are so high you really can't afford to buy much. A mediocre shirt costs $10.

But the average weekly income has gone up to about $25 a week, and the ordinary man can even go to the races. Miners work five days a week, or fewer in many cases. You can have free medical treatment. Some day pretty soon there probably will be a fairly decent house for you to live in, if you are lucky.

With improvements in the school system your child may be able to grow up speaking the same language that other children learn in school instead of dropping his aitches; or maybe they will all drop their aitches, which is just as good.

Since arriving in England we have heard of many outrages on the part of the working classes. They are said, sometimes, to have refrigerators in their new model homes, and, sometimes, television.

They quit work when by working more they would expose themselves to a higher tax bracket and lose most of their extra wages.

There can be no doubt that long ages of ignorance and poverty and depression are coming home to roost in excesses which make the export index look bad but are still a thousand times better than a political, social and economic explosion.

It is unquestionably true that the British working classes are being pampered, but having seen the expressions on their faces, at least one American taxpayer says, "More power to them."

Unaware of Danger.

The natives are unimpressed by the hue and cry in the high places caused by the British "economic crisis."

The indifference they show is the same they showed in the rugged days of 1940 when they were getting bombed by the Germans every night and invasion was just around the corner. The difference is they knew about the danger then. This time most Britons haven't the slightest idea of what may hit them.

If and when there is a sudden cut in their rations, subsidies are trimmed and food prices rise, unemployment shoots up and wages go down, there may be a noise you can hear all the way across the Atlantic; and these things are likely to happen within the next six months or so, whether the British Socialist government likes it or not.

The Lobby He Means to Lick

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Thank you for reprinting "The Lobby That Can't Be Licked" by Robert de Roos and Arthur A. Maass from Harper's magazine. This should bring to the attention of more people the arrogance of the Corps of Army Engineers.

We who have had contact with them have long ago learned about their dictatorial methods. One of our directors is now trying to obtain the Army maps of the Blair's Creek reservoir area but to no avail to date. The Corps of Army Engineers replies, "Not available."

The next move the dam builders will make will be to call attention to the amount of work that the building of these dams will give to offset the unemployment. They will fail to mention that the farmers and other persons within the reservoir area who for years have been gainfully employed will be turned out of home and work.

These people will be sacrificed and the land that would supply them with employment for generations to come will be taken out of production that two or three years of work might be given to a few hundred workmen. It will take much hard work on the part of the thinking people to counteract those who will use all the arguments at their disposal to get these dams in that a few might profit.

Also to consider will be the people who will live immediately below the dams and who because of such volume of water releases will not be able to till their lands. These farms would be added to the destruction and these people added to the unemployment and homeless rolls.

Thank you for keeping us informed and for your alertness.

Down With the Flying Peddler!

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Last Sunday we were relaxing in our backyard, enjoying a peaceful, quiet afternoon. Then in the distance appeared a flying peddler urging us to have our clothes cleaned at —— North Broadway—repeating and repeating, so as to spoil completely our rest and relaxation.

For a Bill of Rights

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Occasionally history bestows upon a small group of men an opportunity to shape the future of their community. One such group of men wrote the Declaration of Independence, another the Constitution of the United States, and one group of willful men denied to their nation the right to participate in a League of Nations.

Now another group is formulating a Charter for the City of St. Louis. To them we have given the honor of preparing a document which is to shape the future of our community. It is to be hoped that they will fulfill their obligations by incorporating a Bill of Rights for the protection of all.

In this manner we can guarantee the rights of individuals, for too often in the past we have desecrated the dignity of human beings by refusing our heritage of liberty and equality to minority groups. CHARLES R. OLDHAM.

Jim Crow on Service Cars

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Friday while riding the Delmar service car I was surprised to learn, in answer to a question, that service cars "don't pick up Negroes."

I was truly amazed to find Jim Crowism on a public conveyance in this Northern (?) metropolis. Is this in line with the policies of the Public Service Commission or whoever licenses these vehicles?

For myself, I will go back to riding the busses. For in spite of their fumes, crowded conditions, and comparatively outrageous fares, I prefer the Public Service Co.'s busses for being a more democratic means of transportation.

I was glad to read of Mayor Darst's fight against the recent Public Service Co. fare increase. However, as a matter of policy, the Mayor said that he would do all he could to encourage service cars, etc. Does the Mayor know of the discriminatory practices of the service cars?

It is my opinion that this arms request is a foolish project.

Army Engineers' Probe

An investigation into the lobbying activities of the Army Engineers, as called for by Representative Sabath, has long been needed.

It ought to show who pays the expenses of the two lobbying organizations of which the Army Engineers are virtually the holding company. It ought to show how the money is spent.

It ought to show how members of Congress help run these two lobbies and how in turn the lobbies have their way in Congress through the votes of these same members. This relationship between lobbyists and Congressmen has been described as "almost incestuous" by Leslie A. Miller, former Governor of Wyoming and chairman of the Natural Resources Committee of the Hoover Commission on the Reorganization of the Executive Department.

An investigation ought to show how the Army Engineers lobby has grown to be "undoubtedly the most powerful lobbying and pressure group in the Government today," in Mr. Miller's words. How, with such power, the Army Engineers have "almost without exception" overruled the orders given to that agency by the Presidents of the United States, according to Robert de Roos and Arthur A. Maass in Harper's Magazine.

What are the real interests that masquerade behind the Army Engineers and members of Congress in that super-lobby, the National Rivers and Harbors Congress? How can Senator McClellan consider it within the bounds of propriety to serve as the president of this lobby, Senator Wherry and Representatives Whittington and Case as its vice presidents, and Senator Holland as a regional director? How can Congress condone giving key posts on public works and appropriations committees to these Senators and Representatives who are officials of a lobby working to influence these same committees? How do officials of the Army Engineers justify their ex-officio membership in this lobby?

The same questions, particularly as to where the money comes from and how it goes, should be asked with respect to that less effective operating company of the Army Engineers lobby, the Mississippi Valley Association.

Nationally, 76 projects totaling $2,500,000,000 which had been held up by Presidents in the last eight years, many because they showed insufficient study, were taken over the Chief Executive's head by the Army Engineers and submitted to Congress, which authorized 62 of them. Has this executive agency become more powerful than the President?

The long and formidable record of abuses of power by the Army Engineers provides every incentive for an investigation.

For Uniform State Laws

Everyone knows that divorces can be almost "bought over the counter" in Nevada but that divorces are very difficult to obtain in New York. The diversity of state laws on this subject has caused endless trouble. Endless trouble has arisen, too, from the multiplicity of state laws governing routine business practices.

Therefore, the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws, which is meeting in St. Louis this week, has a commendable mission. Step by step, these representatives of the 48 state Governors are trying to bring order out of this chaos. At the present meeting, the members hope to approve a 2000-page commercial code they have worked on since 1942. They are also working on a code of criminal procedure, a reciprocal act to deal with non-support, and uniform health requirements for persons seeking to marry.

Much of the present diversity is a matter of mere historical accident. It serves no real purpose and causes far too much trouble. Business in all states will save money under uniform state laws. The profits will be still greater because the uniform code is distilled from the best elements of the separate state codes.

The commissioners are doing an important job, and it is to be hoped that legislators will adopt their suggestions.

"Concession and Co-operation"

The most serious apprehension about the British-American economic talks was that they might be carried on in an atmosphere of recrimination and hostility. The talk which President Truman made at the American Legion convention in Philadelphia yesterday should help to quiet such fears.

While he faced the facts soberly enough, Mr. Truman made it clear that there can be no thought of a break in the co-operation of the two nations. He showed a proper regard for the common interests of the United Kingdom and the United States, and he promised that the discussions will be carried on in a spirit of "friendliness and helpfulness," of "mutual concession and co-operation."

The President also referred to the differing problems in home politics faced by the two governments. This was at least a hint that American negotiators will stick to their business and avoid any deliberate effort to make it an issue in the British political campaign. No doubt, British politicians will try their hand at that. It is their privilege. But Washington officials have no business mixing into that argument even indirectly. Such an effort would almost certainly be resented—perhaps by members of all British factions. It might well be a new version of the old story of a quarreling husband and wife joining forces against an outsider.

Equally reassuring was Mr. Truman's statement that the United States is "not looking for trick solutions to deep-seated problems." He did not specifically rule out devaluation of the pound, revaluation of gold or any other "easy" remedies. Still, there was the clear implication that he would like to see a solution based on the realities of production, trade and economy.

Properly, Mr. Truman left the details to the experts. But he did more than a little to improve the atmosphere in which they must work.

Mr. Nixon Is Puzzled

Maybe labor unions will feel a perverse sympathy for Congressman Nixon of California, one of their sharpest critics. He has just discovered that the non-Communist oath doesn't work as expected, though this result was freely predicted when the oath was installed in the labor law.

Nixon is most puzzled by the case of Max Perlow, who resigned from the Communist party so he could sign the oath as an officer of the United Furniture Workers. Perlow made it plain he still believes in the principles of Communism. Obviously, the oath requirement has not altered the status of Communist influence in the furniture union.

Congressman Nixon points out that the oath also requires a man to swear that he does not hold subversive beliefs. For Perlow the answer is obvious. He considers Communism to be high patriotism—and Communists don't even smile when they say that. So it can be said that the oath has not changed Perlow.

Most unions are fighting their own battles with Communists without reliance on oaths. They are aware of a kind of irony in the oath proposition. For the loyal will subscribe to oaths in good faith, or even resist the oaths on principle; but oaths are directed at the disloyal, and they will swear to anything.

Civil War in the New World

Bolivia's new revolt is further proof that recent revolutions in South America have been following a method and a system, the method being totalitarian and the system being reactionary. This means a kind of hemispheric civil war.

Before the war, the United States' Good Neighbor policy contributed to the growth of democratic governments south of the border. But since the war right-wing military juntas have overthrown the elected governments of Columbia, Peru and Venezuela, and Bolivia is the latest case history for Washington to study.

In 1946 Bolivia had what the authoritative "Political Handbook of the World" describes as "a truly popular revolution." Dictator Villaroel was overthrown, civil rights were restored and the influence of the huge Patino tin mining interests was diminished considerably. Yet in seven months, Bolivia's middle-road government has had to thwart one revolt, defeat another and engage itself with a third.

The confused pattern of these revolts involves right-wing leaders, left-wing allies and outside influence. Bolivian leaders charge that Villaroel's plotters found sanctuary in Peru and Peron's Argentina. And former President Herzog, before he retired in favor of President Urriolagoitia, felt himself caught "between the upper and nether millstones of the extreme right and Communists."

This was possible because of the Communists' strong tactical interest in chaos, and because groups struggling against inflation and poverty may either follow false slogans, or remain apathetic to politics. But behind all this is what Romulo Betancourt, former President of Venezuela, calls "the totalitarianism of the right." Betancourt, who was exiled by just such enemies, gives this intimate description of them:

> Military groups of the extreme right, without popular support and backed by big capital, seize the seat of government and set up a dictatorship. These neo-fascist regimes are all alike . . . they give the impression of being a family of Siamese twins, issue of one womb—the Argentine of Gen. Peron.

This is exactly the pattern of "totalitarian doctrine" which the sister republics pledged themselves to oppose at the Bogota Conference. The State Department, however, feels that another conference ruling requires almost mechanical recognition of each new de facto government, totalitarian or not.

Such democratic republics as Uruguay, Chile, Bolivia, Costa Rica, El Salvador, Guatemala and Cuba feel differently. They withheld recognition of the Venezuelan dictatorship. In their view, recognition could lead to commercial support of reaction and moral defeat of democratic forces, or intervention on the wrong side.

It is too soon to say whether Bolivia will become another victim of junta domination. But the right-wing totalitarians have repeated a pattern that divides peoples and crosses borders, destroying peace in this hemisphere.

Mayor Darst Backs Up

For all practical purposes, Mayor Darst is right back where he started in the argument over Fire Chief Frank Egenriether. He has, in effect, retreated to his original stubborn position. But because he himself had backed down from it earlier, it is now all the more untenable.

After having been informed by the Mayor that he was willing to discuss the Fire Chief's resignation, Mr. Egenriether called at City Hall yesterday only to find that the Mayor was not in his office. Later, Mr. Darst repeated his statement that he is willing to see the man, but he added that he does not intend to restore him to his position. The job will go, he repeated, to the man making the highest score in a competitive civil service examination.

This looks like just another version of the City Administration's squeeze play to get rid of Mr. Egenriether. The Mayor knows that Personnel Director Scearce has held that the Fire Chief is not eligible for the examination, that it is only for men of lower rank aspiring to the position. He also knows that the Fire Chief already has passed the examination. And he knows further that, under the civil service rules, Mr. Egenriether is eligible for reappointment if he withdraws his resignation.

Under the circumstances, it seems an inescapable conclusion that the Mayor simply does not want Mr. Egenriether back on his old job. And he also seems willing to use any twist or turn to keep him out. This would be discouraging enough if it were only a matter of keeping the Fire Department under an experienced man. But there is a greater issue involved. That is the safeguarding of the merit system.

A Tale of Three Cities

Various cities were leagues ahead of St. Louis in the prewar national public housing program and are running leagues ahead in the larger building program now getting under way.

The Baltimore Housing Authority, says the Baltimore Sun, "has obtained the authority of the City Council and the Federal Government to begin planning for the construction here of some 10,000 new public housing units, to cost an estimated $80,000,000."

In Memphis, says the Commercial Appeal, "the 1500 low-income rental units now authorized are a part of the total of 4200 units which the local Housing Authority hopes will be authorized during the next six years. . . . The Memphis Housing Authority is already operating 3305 low-rent housing units in six projects."

St. Louis is only slightly smaller than Baltimore. Where Baltimore is ready to begin plans for 10,000 families, St. Louis has applied for only 890 units. Memphis is little over one-third the size of St. Louis, but it took 3305 families out of substandard housing before the war in contrast with only 1315 families in St. Louis. Today it has the go-ahead for nearly twice as much new construction as St. Louis has.

These comparisons illuminate the fact that St. Louis has gone little and late into public housing. If this laggardness continues in the face of the matchless opportunity that the new federal housing law provides, St. Louis will not only fail to replace costly slums. Its citizens as federal taxpayers will also pay for large parts of the enterprising construction programs of Baltimore, Memphis and other cities.

Re-thinking Our China Policy

The Mirror of Public Opinion

The United States must face facts in China and see the only hope lies in aiding Chinese people to realize their goal of a better society says Far Eastern expert; doubts value of further aid to Nationalists and urges new policy based on friendship, not force.

Don R. Harris in The Survey

Looking westward across the Pacific, the American people are faced by an extremely painful dilemma. So complicated are the factors involved that only a very dogmatic or self-confident authority would insist on launching a single straight drive of policy forthwith.

The American people are most uneasily aware of the Communist force sweeping over the largest country in Asia. These Communists beyond all doubt are friends and allies of the Soviet Union. But the Communist promises to the Chinese people are in step with the requirements of the social revolution. Facing them are our wartime allies to whom we have given support in the post-war civil war until the graft, corruption, and incompetent leadership forced us to recognize officially that such action was wasted—the so-called "Operation Rathole."

Chiang Kai-shek

If we are to be logical in our world-wide crusade against Communism, we should continue support of the Nationalists; but the Chiang Kai-shek's feudalistic Kuomintang leaders exclude this from the possibility of success—their actions are against the future well-being of the Chinese people. Such a conclusion, however, a "do-nothing" policy in the face of an increasing Red area in Asia, might endanger our future security. There is our dilemma.

Is there no further alternative?

Meet the Communists Half Way

Could we recognize the opposition victory—which has been inevitable—cease to aid the Nationalists and adopt a policy of friendly assistance to the Communists, on their request but with our own supervision? Whether this would be a success or not, our stand of positive friendship would deny the usual vociferous charges of American imperialism. The Communists to get such essential aid would have to meet us half way. Firm American diplomacy could insure that such a condition was met.

Such a policy, as all other policy decisions, must be a risk (calculated or just plain). But the policy could rebuild Chinese friendship for America. It would have the important value of being in step with the social revolution and of aiding the Chinese people. It also has the advantage of being positive, of attempting to turn our defeat in China into perhaps an eventual victory, rather than sitting back and wishing for a collapse of the Communists.

The American citizen is faced with a brutal fact—the Chinese Communists are the strongest force in China. The opposition now is all factions and segments. The oligarchy is in confused flight. Even if the United States felt that it should strongly oppose this current, it could find no strong group with popular support to continue the war.

We must recognize that above all else the Chinese are weary of war, of killing, of chaos, of hunger, and of a corrupt government. Even if the United States furnished the necessary troops, money, and supplies to drive the Communists back, it would not answer the demand for social reforms.

The fact must be accepted that ideas cannot be defeated by military might. There is no group among the Kuomintang which commands enough support, either in the army or among the leaders, which sincerely has such a reform program in mind. The crucial period for the Communists is still ahead—militarily they have been successful. But now they must redeem their promises of reforms.

The Chinese in their wisdom have a skeptical attitude as to the near approach of the millennium. The validity of Communism as the "true" way of life is yet to be proved.

Only the First Round Lost

We must face the facts in China and set our policy to aid the Chinese to their goal of a better society—if they request it. What kind of aid?

Within the frame of President Truman's Point Four program it could include some greatly needed technical assistance. It could include public loans through the Export-Import Bank or through the ECA machinery, assuring proper supervision; private lending following the establishment of an acceptable modus operandi between the two governments. It could make sure of the continuation of the established private institutions engaged in education and welfare work with the Chinese.

It is inconceivable that a policy which will aid the Chinese in attaining a higher standard of living could be fundamentally at odds with the international policy of the American people.

But more than this, we must reorient our thinking and stop considering the present struggle in terms of military strategy. Ideas do not lend themselves to major fronts and holding action.

We must see that we have lost only the first round in Asia. Of greater importance we must see that today is the day of decision in the Far East. Japan, the Philippines, Indo-China, Indonesia, Malaya, Burma, and India all have the same environment pattern as China. Poverty, hunger, and disease are rampant.

A positive program to help these people lift themselves from the morass is the only tenable solution. If we don't the champions of Marxism will win by our default—ending the hopes for a freer, more democratic world as envisaged by the United Nations concept.

Pruning Peoria's Pecan Tree

From the Peoria News

Recently in one of the Peoria papers, a tree grew in Brooklyn. It was maybe a hickory or pecan. Anyway it was some kind of a nut tree.

Imagine anybody going out of their way to push up those "Beautiful Bums" and push down the Cardinals of St. Louis, who will undoubtedly be the champions of the National League! Not even a man who wanted to get people mad so they'd write in to his paper, should have done that.

The plain fact is, as any real baseball fan knows, that St. Louis could beat Brooklyn in three feet of water, with Stan Musial on crutches, and the rest of the club laid up with laryngitis. The incomparable Cardinals need no champion in the rest of the Middle West, but they seem to need one in Peoria. All right, they've got one. We're for the Cardinals, high-wide and handsome, six ways to Sunday.

Let's have no more screwball attacks on one of the smoothest baseball machines in the country, an "in-the-groove," well-oiled combination which is a delight to watch. Perfection is a joy to see at any time, and perfection is the St. Louis Cardinal ball club. Anyone who doesn't know this, (we won't mention names), had best go back to his fourth grade primer and learn the facts of life.

Between Book Ends

Implausible Entertainment

THE FREEHOLDER, by Joe David Brown. (William Morrow & Co., 340 pgs., $3.)

If the only purpose of a novel is to entertain rather than present a true picture of the phase of life with which it deals, "The Freeholder" is good fiction.

Horatio Trench was a red-haired giant who craved freedom because in his boyhood and young manhood he didn't have much of it. A London waif born in Yarmouth Gaol, he was "adopted" from the Waif's Home by a cordage maker who treated him brutally. In a fight he killed the cordage maker and made his way to America, paying for his passage with five years of his life under an apprenticeship to a planter who promptly and incredibly made him overseer of his plantation.

After that, one unbelievable event succeeded another. First, our hero had to fight an uppity slave and almost kill him to establish his mastery, after which he and the black man became like brothers. The plantation owner's daughter fell in love with him, without any intention of marrying him. Her very amiable father, suspecting nothing, treated his indentured overseer as an equal and, because the overseer got a lot of work out of the slaves, schemed to keep him on the plantation after his indenture expired. Trench discovered the scheme and went away in a rage, taking with him the Negro whose freedom he had bought, and with the Negro as his companion, started life anew as a freeholder in the Big Bend country. And so it goes, entertaining and sometimes exciting. It could have happened but it doesn't sound plausible.

Joe David Brown

Whenever the interest begins to lag the author throws in a fight, the most brutal and bloody that he can think up. The first one was in the Waifs' home when Trench was just a kid, but it was plenty bloody. Then when he got through killing the cordage maker the corpse wasn't fit to look at. His fight with the slave left nothing in the way of brutality to be desired. Finally he fought a cheating land-grabber in the Big Bend country in the dark with pistols and knives and killed the fellow.

Big Horatio Trench always came out on top, though he had to take a lot of punishment. The only time he was really licked was when a chit of a girl took him into camp by asking him to marry her.

Lanny Budd Again

O SHEPHERD, SPEAK, by Upton Sinclair. (Viking Press, $3.50.

The tenth and allegedly final volume of Upton Sinclair's "World's End" (Lanny Budd) historical novel appeared on the stalls the latter part of July. The serial is now published in 22 languages besides English and the latest volume brings the reader right up to date: the Presidential Agent who is its hero completes an assignment for President Truman and visits Stalin.

"O Shepherd, Speak!" has been getting the kind of reception from the press which might be expected on the basis of the author's final remark in an appendix.

"The critics really do not matter," he writes. "They are a small group which writes for a small audience. The reading masses have found interest plus information in the Lanny Budd books, and I tell them that they may trust the information, for I have done everything in my power to get the facts exactly right. . . . No critic or historian has ever pointed out a serious error in these books."

To the small but select audience who may see these lines printed in a daily whose audited circulation is 241,739 greater than the United States sales of Mr. Sinclair's last previous volume, it may be confessed, in strict confidence, that the old man could be right.

MARQUIS CHILDS

The British Crisis Poses Tough Problems

AMERICAN officials who have recently visited London bring back word of a split in the Labor Cabinet. It is a split over the timing of an election that will test the popularity of the Labor party's wide-ranging welfare measures.

One group that is said to be headed by Herbert Morrison wanted an election this summer. The argument was for an immediate showdown with the Conservatives who have been blasting at the Socialist Government, with Winston Churchill leading the attack. The alternative is to wait until the present Parliament has run its legally constituted course, which would put the election on the calendar for next summer.

Bevan

The showdown-now faction argue that even a defeat is preferable to trying to cope with the present crisis. Let the Tories come in, so the argument goes, and they will have to administer the bitter pill of cutting down the British standard of living. Under those circumstances a Conservative government would not have a long lease on life.

But another and, apparently, the dominant group is for going on to the end of the five-year term. To throw in the sponge now would be cowardly evasion, this group insists. Furthermore, they do not trust the Conservatives in power.

Belling the Cat.

This report does, however, point up the political dilemma of the current money crisis. On both sides of the Atlantic, the officials and experts who will try to work out at least a temporary solution must constantly be aware of the short political leash on which they will be restrained.

The ancient fable about the mice who decided the time had come to put a warning bell on the cat that was decimating their numbers expresses the political problem in Britain. The British people must be told that they are living beyond their means and that the betterment in the lot of some of the population has been largely thanks to a set of complicated Government controls. Those controls have suppressed and concealed, but not eradicated the postwar inflation.

But who is to carry out this grim task? For a generation and more, the rank and file of British Laborites have been conditioned to believe that the coming of Socialism would bring a host of benefits.

The harried managers of Britain's finance system speak wistfully of their favorite candidate in the Labor party for the unwelcome job of belling the cat. That is Aneurin Bevan, Minister of Health. Bevan, the Welsh coal miner who has the charm and the flair and the emotional appeal of Lloyd George in his palmiest days, is the recognized leader of the left wing of the Labor party. Bevan could never be suspected of the kind of "sellout" that the late Ramsay MacDonald was always suspected of by his Labor colleagues.

But whether the ardent Bevan would be willing to lead his party down the path of sobering and austere responsibility in the face of the desperate need of the moment, no one ventures to say. Such a move would go counter to everything that Bevan has proclaimed through his long and often stormy career.

Conscious of Congress.

Here at home, Secretary of the Treasury Snyder, head of the American delegation, and Secretary of State Acheson will be acutely conscious of Congress and the wide hostility to the Labor Government exhibited in a section of the American press. It can be stated flatly that there is no intention to ask Congress for any further powers to meet the emergency. This may well be because it is pretty obvious that an impatient and weary Congress would be most unlikely to grant any additional power or authorization.

Acheson has on many occasions made his stand clear. The rock of his conviction is that co-operation with the United Kingdom and the British Commonwealth is imperative to the security of the United States. As a consequence, the secretary has been the target of a resurgent isolationism that propagandizes against any more agreements with the hated British.

The Problem of Co-operation.

But how to carry out this co-operation, in view of Britain's dire plight, is something else again. Any proposal that the British experts feel is on a scale sufficient to correct the unbalance draining off London's reserves would have to be referred to Congress for approval. So what the men on both sides of the conference table are likely to come back to is a temporary truce that will carry Britain through the months immediately ahead.

Then the business of facing up to realities, political and economic, will have to begin in earnest. That is a process bound to cause pain and anguish. And the longer it is postponed, the more painful it will be.

A.M.A. LISTS 16 POINTS AGAINST HEALTH PLAN

Medical Association Cites Provision of Truman Proposal It Calls Socialistic.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30 (AP)—American Medical Association officers late yesterday issued 16 points in opposition to President Truman's national medical insurance plan.

All were intended to show that under this national insurance, bureaus would control doctors and patients. They were handed out in writsing at a meeting of A.M.A. officers, and reporters and writers who were invited to ask questions.

The 16 points were stated by Dr. E. L. Henderson, president-elect of the A.M.A.

"Here," he said, "are a few of the actual provisions of the compulsory health insurance bill which will definitely mark it as a step toward socialism. Under it, a 'National Health Insurance Board' would be empowered to:

"1. Approve or disapprove each state plan for administering the compulsory health insurance plan.

"2. Administer the program in any state that failed to get its plan approved, or failed to submit a plan or comply with a plan that has been approved.

"3. Allot to each state what the board considers to be a fair share of the national health insurance fund.

"4. Set maximum limits for the number of patients any one doctor could take on in each area of the country.

"5. Establish standards of skill and experience for specialists.

"6. Decide what constitutes 'reasonable and equitable' compensation for doctors and all others who work under the health plan.

"7. Make regulations designed to alleviate medical shortages in rural areas.

"8. Modify the regulation that no patient can see a specialist without first having his visit certified as necessary by his panel general practitioner—if such modification will not 'unreasonably' add to the costs of the program.

"9. Establish required standards for hospitals, nurses and persons furnishing auxiliary services.

"10. Set the maximum rates to be paid hospitals for benefits provided under the plan.

"11. Determine and regulate what in-patient services—including physician and laboratory services—are 'essential to good hospital care.'

"12. Determine and regulate what auxiliary services—including X-ray and pathological services, drugs and special appliances—are 'practicable and essential to good health care.'

"13. Decide and regulate how 'rapidly and completely' all medical and hospital services should be made available to persons eligible.

"14. Limit or cut out all dental, home-nursing or auxiliary services whenever 'personnel or facilities or funds' were found to be inadequate.

"15. Set up 'impartial tribunals to afford hearings to people with complaints.'

"16. Make all regulations and standards specifically authorized to be made in this title and such other regulations not inconsistent with this title as may be necessary.

"You will want to know what kind of a board will have these extraordinary powers. The personnel of this board would consist of the surgeon general of the United States Public Health Service, the Commissioner for Social Security and three presidential appointees, at least one of them a physician."

EXTENSION OF RIGHT OF ARREST PROPOSED

Legal Group's Plan Would Apply to Misdeamnors Out of Presence of Officer.

The right of an officer or private citizen to make an arrest without a warrant would be extended substantially under suggestions offered today by the committee on Uniform Rules of Criminal Procedure at the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws. Sessions are being held at Hotel Jefferson.

Under the new proposal, an officer or private citizen would be permitted to arrest for a misdemeanor committed out of his presence even though no warrant has been issued. In most states, the law requires that a misdemeanor be committed in an officer's presence before an arrest can be made without a warrant.

Also recommended by the committee was the wider use of a summons instead of arrest. This procedure would apply in crimes of a minor nature, such as peace disturbance.

A third recommendation related to the right of a police officer to pick up a suspicious person and hold him for a stipulated number of hours for questioning, without recording such detention as an arrest in any official record.

At the end of such detention, the person so held either would have to be formally arrested and charged with a criminal offense or released.

Deans Roger Howell of the University of Maryland School of Law and Paul Brosman of Tulane University Law School, in a discussion of the evolution of criminal law procedure, said there is a tendency to lessen by law some effect of the historic legal safeguards of persons accused of crimes.

They explained that, under modern conditions, an almost insuperable burden was placed on law-enforcement authorities to obtain convictions, with the result that peace officers used improper methods. In order to correct this situation, laws to assist the officers and to stop illegal practices are being passed, they said.

Compilation of a digest to serve as a guide to statutory law was urged yesterday by Albert J. Harno, dean of the law school, University of Illinois. The meeting, attended by 135 delegates, will end Saturday.

MORE EXPERT PRAISE FOR MUNICIPAL OPERA

'Song of Norway' Original Producer Calls It Finest Theater in U.S.

Municipal Opera was praised as the finest summer theater in the United States by Edwin Lester, original producer of "Song of Norway," and S. M. Handelsman, business manager of the Pittsburgh Civic Light Opera, after both had seen the performance of that show at the Forest Park theater last night.

"No summer theater in the United States or anywhere does this sort of thing as well," Lester said. "Of course, they've taken great pains and spent a lot of money and the proof of the excellence of the production is that they played to packed houses for more than 25 years."

Handelsman commented: "It is generally considered that this theater (Municipal Opera) is the ideal. I am sure everyone who thinks in terms of light opera considers this the model."

Lester opened his production of "Song of Norway" in San Francisco in 1944, then took it to Broadway for a run of more than two years. Last night he saw four members of the original cast on the Municipal Opera stage—Helena Bliss, Robert Shafer, Sig Arno and Robert Bernard. He complimented all four on their performances, saying he was particularly impressed by the convincing quality of the love scenes, which also pleased the audience.

Lester, traveling from the West Coast to New York, stopped here especially to see last night's show. Handelsman, who is touring summer theaters all over the country, explained he wanted "to see how few mistakes we can make when we build our new summer theater in Pittsburgh." The new theater there will be in a park and will seat 9500 persons; with 2000 additional portable seats.

"Song of Norway" ends its run here next Monday night, closing the opera's season.

He pointed out that as a Hindu he can "have as many wives as I like." He married an Indian princess in 1943 and has two children by her.

MARGARET TRUMAN HERE, LIKES 'VEEP' BUT NOT STATE SONG

(Picture in Everyday Magazine.)

Miss Margaret Truman, traveling from Independence's Summer White House to New York's White Way, changed trains at Union Station this morning, and chatted with reporters about Vice President Barkley's recent visits to St. Louis, and about the place of the Missouri Waltz in her musical preferences.

"He's quite a guy," she said of the elderly but romantic "Veep." This did not sound quite positive enough, and she added, "He's wonderful."

As to her estimate of Missouri's official state lyric, Miss Truman referred to the New Yorker magazine's recent questionnaire, answered by the President's press secretary. "Charlie Ross did a good job," she said of the secretary's statement that the President "can take it or leave it," and that Margaret is quite content to omit it from her repertoire.

In New York, she said, she intends to continue the vocal training which has been going on since last February. Her two-months concert tour is to begin in October. The itinerary is not at hand, but she said she thought St. Louis would be included. The St. Louis Symphony Orchestra announced last March that she would appear at the subscription concerts of Oct. 29-30.

CARDINALS' STREAK SNAPPED BY THE BRAVES, 12 - 4

Department of Spending Other People's Money.

ONE of the easiest things we know of is to tell other people what they ought to do with their money. A lot of it is done in baseball. Whenever a citizen or a committee has a big generous charitable thought he suggests that a couple of ball clubs play an extra game, a benefit, and turn over the receipts to the charity in mind.

The late Sam Breadon was irked occasionally by the freedom with which people wanted to give away receipts of Cardinal games. The Redbirds, a good attraction, were a quick thought with anybody planning a benefit. One day a group of citizens called on Sam and wanted him to give all the receipts of a certain game to charity.

"I'll tell you what I'll do," the Cardinal owner said with the old glint in his eye. "Now you, Mr. Doughnuts are in the railroad business. And you, Mr. Schnapps, run a hotel. And Mr. Whiffle, here, has a department store. Let's take all the receipts of the railroad that day, and the hotel and the department store. And I'll throw in the receipts of the Cardinals that day, too."

How About a Musial Field at Donora, Pa.?

WELL, here we go along the same line. They're going to have a day for Stan Musial out at Sportsman's Park Sept. 7 and there probably will be other days for big-name athletes, big-named and big salaried. And it's reported that Musial and his committee are toying with the idea of some sort of benefit.

Take the bulk of the fund and buy some acreage near Donora, Pa. Put a fence around it and modest stands and fix up a smooth diamond and outfield for the kids of Donora. If there's enough money for maintenance, get some big league ball club to assume the job of maintaining that diamond, a minor league ball club or the city of Donora.

Call the place Stan Musial Field. It will be a memorial to him down through the years and it will give kids for many generations to come a place to play baseball.

Some big cities produce ball players, but most of the big-leaguers come from small towns. The major leagues ought to be interested in making certain that the towns continue to develop ball players. Commissioner Chandler probably would welcome the project as a worthwhile part of the big promotion scheme he had when he took over the job as boss of baseball.

You Could Ask for Dimes For Such a Project.

LET every big-league ball player who is honored with a day, pick out a spot, perhaps his old home town, for a kids' baseball field to be named after him, to endure through generations as a memorial. Even the best automobiles wear out or are traded in. Too many gifts to ball players also are perishable or not useful. But the thrill of giving a baseball field to the kids, to carry the player's name, ought to make days for ball players much more popular. And then there could be an appeal for public support. And clubs making sizable contributions would be helping themselves.

They could use a lot of baseball fields in big cities and in small towns, to keep the young idea baseball-minded.

Can you imagine the thrill that Musial would have, the next time he visited the old home town, if he could drive that big new car the citizens of Donora gave him, out to a baseball park, and see a big sign over the entrance—"STAN MUSIAL FIELD"?

Isn't it easy to give away other people's money—just like that?

Suit Withdrawal Notice Filed by Lanier, Martin

NEW YORK, Aug. 30 (AP) — A formal stipulation asking for the discontinuance of the anti-trust suit brought by Max Lanier and Fred Martin, St. Louis Cardinals pitchers, against organized baseball was filed yesterday in Federal Court.

A representative of Mark Hughes, attorney for organized baseball, filed the action.

The formal action followed last Saturday's announcement by Cardinal Owner Fred Saigh that the two pitchers had agreed to withdraw their suit.

In their original complaint the two players, who were banned from organized baseball after jumping to the Mexican league in 1946, charged that organized baseball was operated in violation of the Sherman and Clayton Acts and constituted "a wrongful and unlawful conspiracy to monopolize and restrain trade."

Martin and Lanier sued for a total of $2,500,000 as treble damages under the anti-trust law.

Birds' Lead Reduced To 1½ Games; Munger Injured While Batting

By Bob Broeg
Of the Post-Dispatch Sports Staff.

BOSTON, Aug. 30.—The Cardinals' five-game winning streak was snapped here this afternoon when the Boston Braves defeated Eddie Dyer's league-leaders in the fourth and last contest of the Redbirds' final series of the season in Boston.

The score was 12 to 4.

Since the second-place Brooklyn Dodgers defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates, the Cardinals' lead in the National League pennant race was reduced to one and one-half games.

George Munger, the Cardinals' starting pitcher, pulled a muscle on his left side while batting in the third inning and was forced to leave the lineup.

Gerald Staley, his successor, was kayoed in a three-run Boston fourth in which Bill Salkeld hit a home run with a man on base. Ted Wilks also was the victim of a three-run inning, the fifth, and in that frame Jeff Heath, former Brownie, hit a homer with a mate aboard.

Stan Musial got into the home run spirit in the seventh and walloped his twenty-seventh of the season, also with a man on base. Victim was Vern Bickford, who also yielded two St. Louis runs in the fourth, the result of two passes, Garagiola's single and an outfield fly.

Al Brazle, the Redbirds' fourth pitcher, yielded a home run to Sibby Sisti in the seventh inning and Fred Martin, the fifth St. Louis hurler, was pounded for five hits and four runs in the eighth.

Attendance on Appreciation day, with the Boston management giving away two automobiles and four television sets, was announced as 18,607.

Dascoli, Gore, Robb and Pinelli were the umpires.

Holmes missed a shoestring catch on Garagiola's liner and it went for a single, scoring Slaughter, Northey stopping at third. Ratterman Signs.

BUFFALO, N.Y., Aug. 30 (UP)—T-formation Quarterback George Ratterman gave the staggering Buffalo Bills new hope in the All-America Football Conference today as he ended his holdout. Gee, but it's fun to win. All smiles, EDDIE DYER has his arms around AL BRAZLE and RON NORTHEY following the Cardinals' 8-2 victory over the Braves. Brazle hurled his fourteenth victory of the season and Northey hit a grand slam homer in the seven-run seventh.

Browns Entertain Yankees After 5th Straight Series Win; Al Papai to Draw Ed Lopat

By Dent McSkimming

Baseball followers who read the New York papers the day after the Browns' last visit to Yankee Stadium must be excused if they expect a minor riot at Sportsman's Park tonight.

You recall several batters were hit by wild pitches in those games in New York, three weeks ago. Yogi Berra suffered a broken thumb and Tommy Henrich needed hospital repairs on his arm. Most of the home town writers accused the Browns' pitchers of being careless, mistaking Yankee heads for the target. One scribe wrote "beyond doubt the St. Louis pitchers aimed deliberately at the Yankee batters."

There you have the ingredients for a feud. There's only one element lacking, and it's the one essential ingredient. There is no ill feeling. Take the word of Zack Taylor, manager of the Browns, there was no deliberate bean ball pitching in the games at New York and there's not going to be any in the games here.

"We Don't Play That Way."

"We don't try to win ball games that way, and I'm sure Casey Stengel knows it," drawled Zack. "We'll try our best to beat the Yankees but my pitchers will be pitching at the plate, not at heads."

Al (Ichabod) Papai, who held the Yanks to two hits in a 10-inning tie at New York, will try again tonight. He will be opposed by Ed Lopat, who throws a mean southpaw hook.

Looking at a good lefthand curve will be no new experience for the Browns. The Mickey Harris they beat last night, 2 to 1, was as sharp a southpaw as they have faced this season. Coming here fresh from a brilliant victory at Cleveland, Harris turned out to be not only well equipped in curves and speed but he made fine use of his extensive pitching knowledge. He just wouldn't give a batter that "fat" pitch.

So, going into the last of the ninth, the Browns had gleaned only four hits and the score was tied at one-all. In order to take the game from such a pitcher as was Harris, the Browns had to come up with a star performer. That's just what Cliff Fannin proved to be.

Holding the Senators to five hits, Cliff never conceded them as many as two hits in an inning. And, wonder of wonders, he had good control, walking only two batters.

When Dick Kokos doubled in the seventh inning to drive in Jack Graham, it looked as though Fannin had the single run he needed for victory. But, in the ninth, with one out, big Eddie Robinson hoisted a Fannin pitch to the pavilion roof for a game-tying home run.

That made it necessary for the Browns to win in the ninth, a habit they had not acquired this season. But this time they did it, with trimmings.

Kokos to Rescue Again.

With one out, Roy Sievers popped a single to right field. Sherman Lollar slashed a drive to left for another single and when Gil Coan bobbled the ball, Sievers tried for third base. A perfect throw would have retired him but Coan's throw to Sam Dente went into the dirt and Roy was safe while Lollar reached second. Harris passed Graham, filling the bases and setting the stage for Kokos's game-winning single to center, scoring Sievers.

The victory widened the gap between the seventh-place Browns and the last-place Senators to two full games and it marked the fifth straight series in which Zack Taylor's team has taken the odd game of the set. That sort of baseball throughout the season would have earned a much higher place in the league table.

Few were around to cheer the happy ending. The paid attendance, 1435, was the lowest of the season here.

Fannin was a stout-hearted as well as strong-armed pitcher. His mates put him in a hole with errors at three junctures. And every time he bore down a little harder to come out unharmed.

Since they will not be at home when next Saturday rolls around, the Browns are making a concession to their female followers. Thursday will be Ladies' Day. The women are admitted on payment of the 50 cents tax and service charge.

Northey Hits Grand Slam Homer in Brazle's Victory

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

BOSTON, Aug. 30—Seven was the magic number last night as the Cardinals came up with seven runs in the seventh inning to gain their fifth victory in succession, an 8-2 decision over the third-place Boston Braves.

Sharing the spotlight in the league leaders' fifteenth triumph over Boston in 19 meetings were Al Brazle, limber southpaw who gained his fourteenth pitching victory of the season, and Round Ron Northey, who drove in five runs. Northey's big blow was a grand slam homer in the lucky seventh.

Brazle, a six-hit pitcher who didn't walk a batter, was bothered only by Ed Sauer, a former teammate, who made half of the Braves' safeties. The 14 victories match the lanky 34-year-old left-hander's personal high. Two years ago Brazle had a 14-8 record. His 1949 mark is 14-6.

Eight of the nine Cardinal hits were fashioned off Bill Voiselle, the carefree hurler from Ninety-Six, S. C., who departed after Northey's four-run homer. In the first frame, Northey drove in a run with a single after Red Schoendienst had singled and Musial had walked, but Boston bounced back with two runs in its half on singles by Eddie Stanky and Sibby Sisti and Sauer's long two-out double to right-center.

Three times thereafter the first Redbird batter of an inning reached base, but Voiselle, using a flourishing corkscrew windup to conceal a ball that either exploded through or sneaked across, was in complete command. And Joe Garagiola, first up in the seventh, was easy, too, on a soft grounder to Marv Rickert, an outfielder filling in at first base because Elbie Fletcher has a heavy head cold.

Next, Glaviano bunted. It wasn't a good bunt actually, for it was pushed too close to the mound, but the husky and thick-legged Voiselle, who fields as slowly as he drawls, came down in a leisurely stride to handle the ball. As a result, instead of an easy out he had a hard one, a close play, and his throw was over the runner's shoulder. A nimble first baseman—only the most capable, though—would have shifted to handle the throw. But when the ball skipped off Rickert's glove, an official scorer who remembered Hal Chase and George Sisler saw it as an error on Rickert rather than Voiselle, and a hot-footing Glaviano hurried to second.

Boldly, Manager Dyer permitted Brazle to bat, and the Redbird pitcher dribbled a slow grounder to Rickert's right. The first baseman was ready to come up with the ball when he saw to his horror that for the second time in the game no one was covering the bag. Voiselle must have been mooning about a Carolina moon or something, for he was ambling along, a step or two behind Brazle. Rickert, making a last-second bid to make the play by himself, then couldn't come up with the ball.

It was a hit, a scratch single, and instead of the side being retired, the Cardinals had runners on first and third with one out. Schoendienst's second single tied the score. Marty Marion walked, filling the bases, and Musial drilled a two-run single to left, putting the Cardinals ahead. Another pass to Enos Slaughter loaded the bases again, and Northey quickly unloaded them with the Redbirds' fourth hit of the inning, drilling the first pitch high into the right-field stands.

That was more than enough lead for Brazle and more than enough pitching for Voiselle, who shuffled off s-o-o nonchalantly to the clubhouse, where the only thing a tired guy has to field now and then is a slippery bar of soap.

Police Use Guns And Tear Gas to Quell Soccer Riot

BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 30 (INS)

Boca fullback Peronsino protested a goal scored against him. While arguing, the referee dropped him with a sharp right.

Peronsino's supporters tried to storm onto the field and hurled pop bottles and stones at police guards. The police opened fire, wounding three persons. They also used tear gas to quell the rioters. Fifteen other persons were injured by the tear gas and brickbats.

Eagles Drub Cards 51-14 in Exhibition

CHICAGO, Aug. 30 (UP)—The high-flying Philadelphia Eagles rolled up 37 points in the first half, then coasted to a spectacular 51-14 exhibition win over the Chicago Cardinals last night before 36,992 fans at Comiskey Park.

Cardinal fumbles, the passing of quarterback Tommy Thompson—who threw for four scores—and the high powered running of Rookie Frank Ziegler and Ham Parmer were too much for the National Football League western champions.

The Cardinals were severely handicapped by the absence of four key players, all out with injuries. They were Charley Trippi, Mal Kutner, Chet Bulger and Corwin Clatt. The Eagles played without their star halfback, Steve Van Buren.

Dodgers Win in 9th On Homer by Hodges

BROOKLYN, Aug. 30 (AP)—Gil Hodges hit a two-run homer in the ninth inning today to pace the Brooklyn Dodgers to a 4-3 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates. It was the Dodgers' fourth straight victory.

Limited to four hits over the first eight innings by little Murry Dickson, the Dodgers struck back with one out in the ninth.

Jackie Robinson grounded out to start the inning but Roy Campanella gave the Brooks hope with a single. Eddie Miksis ran for Campanella and he was able to take his time as Hodges stroked his twenty-first homer of the year into the lower left stands.

Rex Barney, erratic fastball hurler, went all the way for the Dodgers, winning with a seven-hitter. It was the fourth consecutive game in which a Brooklyn hurler went the route.

Woodcock-Savold Bout Off Until 1950

DONCASTER, Aug. 30 (UP)—The Bruce Woodcock-Lee Savold heavyweight boxing match—billed by Promoter Jack Solomons as for the world title—today was postponed until next May.

Solomons arranged the postponement with Bill Daly, Savold's manager, and Woodcock's manager, Tom Hurst. The promoter arrived here this morning, bringing a physician to examine Woodcock. The British boxer's own doctor had advised him Sunday not to fight again before December.

The bout, originally scheduled for Sept. 6 at London, had been put off until "sometime before the end of the outdoor season in October" after Woodcock suffered head and shoulders injuries when he drove a truck into a tree early this month.

19,808 at Kansas City See Blues Beat Yanks

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 30 (UP)—The New York Yankees dropped an exhibition game to the Kansas City Blues here last night, by 11 to 3, before an overflow crowd of 19,808 fans.

Hank Bayer and Johnny Lindell hit homers for the Yanks, but it was the Blue attack which had the real punch. The Blues hammered Clarence Marshall for 16 hits, six of them for extra bases and one a homer by Jack Wallaesa.

Joe DiMaggio appeared in the starting lineup and batted once. He hit a long fly to deep center.

British Champion Beaten in U. S. Amateur by Little-Known American

Carmichael, Ohio, Trips McCready

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Aug. 30 (UP)—Dan Carmichael, a hard-hitting little known player from Columbus, O., ruined the grand slam hopes of England's S. Max McCready when he defeated the British amateur king, 5 and 4, in the second round of the U. S. amateur golf championship today.

Chipping and putting with fantastic accuracy, Carmichael, one-time Princeton University golf captain, roared to a four-up lead over the burly Irishman on the first nine holes of their match at Rolling Oak Mill Country Club. He had a scrambling par 35 against the former RAF bomber pilot's 39.

Carmichael won the short eleventh with a par 3 to go five up, lost the twelfth to a birdie 3. The imperturbable Ohioan halved the thirteenth and then laid McCready a stymie to take the fourteenth and the match. Earlier he had halved the second with a 25-foot putt; won the fourth with a 40-footer and halved the eighth by chipping into the cup from back of the green.

In delayed first-round matches, 1946 Champion Ted Bishop of Boston was eliminated by John Kraft, Edgewater, Colo., 3 and 2, while Intercollegiate Champion Harvie Ward of Rocky Mount, N. C., advanced with a 3 and 2 win over Del Walker, Long Beach, Calif.

P. J. Boatwright Jr., Spartanburg, S.C., sent another British Walker Cup star to the sidelines when he eliminated Ronnie White, British attorney, 3 and 2.

Defending Champion Willie Turnesa of White Plains, N. Y., advanced to the third round with a 1-up victory over Hal Foreman Jr., a "week-end golfer" from Glencoe, Ill., who had eliminated England's Ernest Millward.

Turnesa matched par 35 on the out nine for a 1-up lead against Foreman's 36. Foreman birdied the tenth to square it but again went one down, losing the twelfth with a bogey. Twice they matched birdies on the back nine as Turnesa held his slim edge to win with a two-under par 35-34—69 against Foreman's 36-34—70.

Stanley E. (Ted) Bishop of Boston, was eliminated when he was upset, 3 and 2, by John Kraft of Edgewater, Colo.

Don Guariglia Tunes Up for Caddie Golf With 72 and 73; Rich Craden's Best Is 75

By Robert Morrison
Of the Post-Dispatch Sports Staff.

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 30—Boys from as far west as Denver, as far south as San Antonio, as far east as Springfield, Mass., and as far north as Green Bay, Wis., were busily trying the Ohio State University golf course for size today.

About 80 of them, plus two Ohio girl contestants, will begin swinging in earnest tomorrow in the fourth national caddie championship and the two St. Louis representatives will rate well up in the field.

Don Guariglia, the champion of the St. Louis district, and Rich Craden, the runner-up, had an opportunity to size up their chances as the qualified entries continued to arrive from the scattered sections of the country.

They found that about 30 of the boys have had previous experience in the national. That group included the fine young golfer, Roy Wythers of Lincoln, Nebr., a 17-year-old who will be making his third try for the title.

Wythers eliminated the 1948 St. Louis champion, Jack Higgins, in the first round here a year ago. Higgins was soundly beaten 6 and 5 as he suffered from the handicap of blistered hands, a circumstance which has been carefully avoided by this year's St. Louis representatives as they prepared for this Post-Dispatch sponsored venture.

Second low qualifier last year, Wythers experienced the early defeat fate of all the good medal-round shooters when he was ousted in the second round of match play. Guariglia, fifth in the 1948 tournament trial, was beaten in his opener.

Detroit Sharpshooter.

Another sharpshooter returning this year is Detroit's Mel Stevens, a 16-year-old whose two-over-par 146 gave him third last year in the 36-hole trial. He was two strokes behind the medalist, but he also lost in the first round of match play.

There are others back who lasted longer. Among those are Don Albert, 17, Akron (O.) district champion, and Ted Katula, 17, Youngstown (O.) representative, both of whom were 1948 quarter-finalists.

These and others who have made their way back here for further attempts to win the college scholarship prizes, serve to give the St. Louisans fair warning that the tournament will be as tough as usual.

With an age limit of 17 years, the caddie event is an important step in the development of golfers. Gay Brewer of Lexington, Ky., a loser in the late stages of play here a year ago, came back this season to win the United States Golf Association's junior amateur championship at Washington, D.C., last month.

Conclusion to be drawn is that, though this caddie tournament draws a preponderance of Ohio boys, the winner has national class. This year 44 of the entries are from Ohio, eight from New York, four each from Illinois, Kentucky and Michigan, three each from Missouri and West Virginia, two each from Wisconsin, Kansas and Indiana and one from Nebraska, Massachusetts, Texas and Colorado.

Guariglia and Craden will be on their guard. Guariglia found last year that par golf on the Long University course was necessary to win. This time his game is in top shape and he is reasonably confident that he will shoot well enough to progress a good distance.

Work Out Kinks.

In practice yesterday Guariglia scored a 72 and 73, the 72 being as good as any practice round reported. Craden, making his first acquaintance with the long, flat course, shot 78 and 75. Both boys worked out their travel kinks and were ready to go.

The tournament is strictly amateur — even in its management. Originally set up for an 18-hole qualifier and 18-hole championship matches until the 36-hole final, the schedule was changed to call for a 36-hole test to qualify 64 players tomorrow. Then there will be two matches a day until Saturday when 36-hole semifinals will be played. The 36-hole final still will be Sunday.

So many contestants and sponsors protested the short qualifying route, that it was restored to the 36-hole distance, as it has been for the last two years. The speed-up of the match play schedule was effected in order to permit most of the boys to return home for the opening of school.

Schwoegler Is 'Bowler of Year'

KALAMAZOO, Mich., Aug. 30 (AP)—Connie Schwoegler, Madison, Wis., tournament veteran, today was named bowler-of-the-year in the eighth annual balloting of the National Bowling Writers' Association.

Schwoegler rolled up a total of 356 points in the nation-wide poll to win by a comfortable margin over Andy Varipapa, Hempstead, N. Y., trick shot artist who won the trophy the previous season.

Varipapa was second with 258 points, edging out Buddy Bomar of Chicago, who had 251.

Yesterday's Stars.

By the Associated Press.

BATTING—Ron Northey, St. Louis clouted a home run with the bases loaded to spark the Cards' big seven-run seventh inning as they beat the Boston Braves, 8-3.

PITCHING — Jack Banta, Brooklyn Dodgers, young hurler went the distance for the first time in his major league career, whipping Pittsburgh, 8-1, on a six-hitter.

Three 'Seeded' Aces Upset in U.S. Singles

FOREST HILLS, N.Y., Aug. 30 (UP) — United States Champion Dick (Pancho) Gonzales, one round behind the field through no fault of his own, was scheduled to open defense of his national singles tennis title today aginst young Jack Geller of New Rochelle, N.Y.

It'll take the swarthy Los Angeles titleholder an extra day or two to catch up with the rest of the pack, headed by Davis Cup star and Wimbledon champion Ted Schroeder of La Crescenta, Calif. Rain on opening day set back the schedule and Pancho couldn't get into action.

All the others squeezed in their matches, however, and sailed into the second round with only three casualties. Eddie Moylan of Trenton, N.J., bounced eighth-seeded Herbie Flam of Beverly Hills, Calif.; Jim Brink of Seattle outlasted ninth-seeded Vic Seixas of Philadelphia after blowing the first two sets, and young Tony Trabert of Cincinnati eliminated George Worthington of Australia, seeded ninth in the foreign list.

Mulloy Plays Trabert.

Even a victory today won't help Gonzales catch up. He is in the upper bracket and all hands in that half of the draw, except Pancho, were down for second round matches.

In that group were fourth-seeded Gardnar Mulloy of Coral Gables, Fla., fifth-seeded Frankie Parker of Los Angeles and sixth-seeded Art Larsen of San Francisco. So were two top foreign stars, Jack Bromwich of Australia and Eric Sturgess of South Africa, who breezed through opening opponents without extending themselves.

Of the seeded players, Mulloy had the stiffest assignment in the second round, tackling Trabert, who showed a strong attacking game in downing Worthington, one of Australia's new hopes. Mulloy defeated Jack Tuero of New Orleans 8-6, 6-3, 6-0, and Trabert trimmed Worthington 6-2, 6-2, 8-6.

Parker, a 6-2, 6-2, 6-1 winner over Italy's Pierre Canapele, drew Charles Masterson of New York in the second round and Larsen was scheduled against Irvin Dorfman of New York. Brink plays Marcello del Bello of Italy.

Schroeder Wins Easily.

Schroeder, who won't be seen again until Wednesday, opened his campaign for his second United States crown—he won in 1942 and hasn't tried since—by defeating Lt. Charles Oliver of Perth Amboy, N.J., with the same sort of drive that carried him to two Davis Cup victories against the Aussies, 6-3, 6-4, 6-2.

Billy Talbert of New York was extended by Fred Kovaleski of Hamtramck, Mich., 7-9, 6-4, 6-3, 6-2, but the others came through easily.

In the women's division, Mrs. Margaret Osborne Du Pont of Wilmington, Del., led four seeded players into the second round. She was joined by Doris Hart of Jacksonville, Fla.; Shirley Fry of Akron, O.; Mrs. Patricia Canning Todd of La Jolla, Calif., and Beverly Baker of Santa Monica.

Nine-Race Cards At Fairmount

Fairmount Park will continue its nine-race programs at the fall harness horse meeting, which is scheduled to open a 33-night stand, Thursday night.

As a result, except for one race each night, minimum purses will be $600, under the rule passed last spring by the Illinois Harness horse commission.

A total of $5600 will be distributed in purse money opening night; $7400 Friday and $7500 Saturday, a total of more than $20,000 for the first three nights of the meeting.

A 10-class pace will be the top race opening night, while $3000 "early closers" will be raced Friday and Saturday.

Girls' Softball Game.

A Vandalia (Ill.) girls' softball team will meet the Londoff girls in an exhibition game tonight at the North Side Park. This will be the second meeting of the teams. Londoff won previously in extra innings. The opening game on the program will be an inter-park contest between the C. Hoffmeisters and Crosstown Motorettes.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Football Today Just One Big 'T' Party

BEFORE, during and after the recent dog-days football affair at Soldier Field, Chicago, when the pro champion Philadelphia Eagles mopped up the College All-Stars 38-0, we heard almost as much "split T" talk as split infinitives. . . . One would have thought the Don Faurot formation was harder to crack than an atom. . . . And this notwithstanding the Eagles showed the All-Stars that an 8-3 defense can give the Split T nuclear heck.

But we note from a survey in the recent issue of Football Digest that while the T in its various forms will be the dominant fashion in gridiron offense during the season about to open, the split variety interests a very small number of coaches.

Of the 350, five out of every seven will rely wholly or to a great extent on the orthodox T formation for their offense . . . Only a dozen coaches admit they will use the split variety!

* * *

"ALMOST half of the coaches—152 of the 350—are using the standard T offense exclusively," the Digest article reports..."Another 42 are relying on an offensive system that is an offshoot of the parent T . . . Nineteen are functioning from the wing T formation, 12 from the split T and seven from a modified T with an unbalanced line," the article continues.

It is likely that while all the T dished out during the 1949 campaign will create headlines and Monday quarterback debates, the split T probably will come in for a large share of the fat frying because of the way the Eagles mistreated the All-Stars' attempts to use it at Chicago.

IN PASSING: Did you notice what the pro champion Eagles did to the Cardinals in their exhibition at Chicago last night? . . . Beat 'em 51 to 14, a difference of 37 points, without Van Buren, too. . . . Indicating that the 38-point defeat of the All-Stars by the Eagles was due less to the collegians' weakness than to the pro champions' strength.

It could be that four Cardinals out of the lineup and no Jimmy Conzelman pulling out his hair on the sidelines, explain it . . . And hand some of the credit to that "Greasy" Neale feller, whose 8-3 defense for the split T caused some eye-opening in the battle of Soldier Field.

* * *

Notre Dame System Doing a Fadeout.

HOW long the various T formations will hold popularity with coaches is your guess . . . Perhaps no longer than the Notre Dame offensive, developed by the famed Knute Rockne, which now is almost obsolete, where once it dominated gridiron play.

* * *

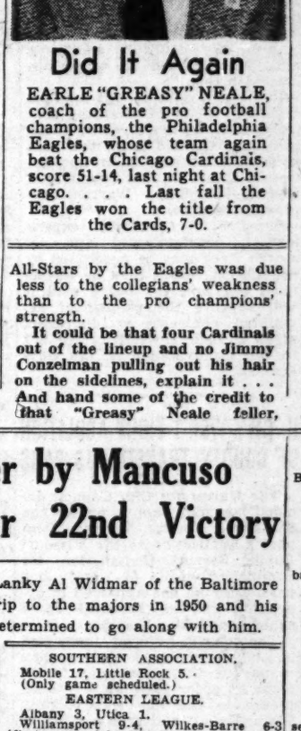

The Digest's article touches on this. . . . It says in part: "The only other system (than the T) in general use is the single wing, of which there are still 56 adherents. . . . Several schools, such as Southern Methodist and Texas Christian, combine the single and double wing; and still others have some double wing plays in their repertoire.

"The famed Notre Dame system (shift) has almost passed from the collegiate scene, although about 10 schools, including Alabama, still use some of the offense in combination with other systems. . . . Thirty-three schools still bridge the chasm between the old and the new by using some T and some single wing."

* * *

Football offense styles seem to have undergone a kaleidoscopic succession of changes. . . . The T, for example, was in use long, long ago, but of course without its present variations. . . . It underwent various transformations, other systems came up only to have the T come back with a bang when the Chicago Bears began to go places by reviving it.

And today it has become collegiate again in a big way; but who can say when some coach's mind will give off a new idea and into the discard the present T party will be pitched. . . . Rockne may rise again.

Did It Again

Three-Run Homer by Mancuso Gives Widmar 22nd Victory

BALTIMORE, Aug. 30 (UP)—Lanky Al Widmar of the Baltimore Orioles is ticketed for a return trip to the majors in 1950 and his battery-mate, Frank Mancuso, is determined to go along with him.

Widmar, who once pitched for the Red Sox and Browns, chalked up his twenty-second victory of the International League season last night when he white-washed the last-place Newark Bears, 3 to 0. But the victory was as much Mancuso's as it was Widmar's.

Mancuso, another former Brownie, accounted for all the runs of the game when he hit his seventeenth homer of the season with two on in the fourth frame.

Homers by Coaker Triplett and Jack Hussey helped Saul Rogovin of Buffalo defeat the Montreal Royals, 4 to 1. Rogovin checked the Royals on eight hits.

Jersey City pushed across a run in the 11th inning for a 5 to 4 win over Syracuse. Al Rubeling and Ray Lamanno each homered for Syracuse while Gale Henley smacked a round-tripper for Jersey City.

Toronto and Rochester were not scheduled.

Snead and Nelson Win.

WETHERSFIELD, Conn., Aug. 30 (UP)—Sammy Snead, National PGA champion, and Byron Nelson teamed up in an exhibition golf game last night and won a 6 and 4 victory over Gene Sarazen and Tommy Armour.

Despite the fact that the first few holes were played in a driving rain, some 400 spectators turned out for the game. Snead carded a spectacular 63, eight under par, while Nelson had 67, Sarazen 70, and Armour 71.

SHORT WAVES

HOWIE ODELL, coach of the University of Washington, picked Southern Cal. as the team to beat in the Pacific Coast Football Conference, adding that California and Stanford also would have strong teams. He believes Washington State College will be the outfit to stop in the Northern division of the conference.

IVAN (RED) WILLIAMSON who replaced HARRY STUHLDREHER as head coach at Wisconsin re-instated the practice of selecting a football captain and the honor fell to ROBERT (RED) WILSON, a center. He is the first man to captain a Badger football team since 1937.

Tulsa of the U. S. Hockey League traded Center ALEX RITSON to Buffalo of the American League for GLEN HALDORSEN, also a center.

MERLE HAPES of Jackson, Miss., was appointed to succeed MURRAY GRIFFIN as coach of the Hamilton Tigers of the Ontario Rugby Football Union. Hapes played football with Mississippi and the New York Giants of the National Football League.

DR. RICHARD HAINLINE, Rock Island, Ill., dentist, successfully defended his men's singles crown in the Quad-City open tennis tournament at Moline with an 8-6, 6-1, 6-1 triumph over Kirk Mechem, Topeka, Kan.

MOVE BY DEFENSE OFFICE TO RELIEVE UNEMPLOYMENT

Department to Inform Business Group in Distress Areas What It Will Buy.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30 (AP)—The Department of Defense announced yesterday a program aimed at helping to alleviate distress in 31 areas of heavy unemployment.

It will provide business groups in the designated areas with information about what the Army, Navy and Air Force plan to buy in the near future. It will furnish data also on how to deal with the military forces.

Johnson directed the Munitions Board, which supervises buying by the armed forces, to co-operate with Presidential Assistant John R. Steelman. Steelman is in charge of the over-all program.

The Munitions Board will conduct a study of plant capacities in two distressed areas—Muskegon, Mich., and New Bedford, Mass.—to learn whether any items needed by the armed forces can be manufactured there. If these studies are fruitful, additional ones are planned in other distressed areas.

The board said it will approve a general policy of awarding contracts to firms in distressed areas, providing the bid from the area is as low as any from non-distressed areas. It said Comptroller General Lindsay Warren approved the plan.

Supplies for certain experimental, developmental and research work may be purchased by negotiation rather than by advertised bid, and the board said it will approve the placing of negotiated contracts in distressed areas if such placements are not to the disadvantage of the Government.

U. CITY WON'T FIGHT ABOLITION OF COUNTY TRANSIT BUS PASS

The University City Council decided last night not to oppose the St. Louis County Transit Company's application to the Missouri Public Service Commission for elimination of its $1 weekly bus pass, after no one appeared in opposition to the proposal at a scheduled public hearing.

The council, however, instructed the city attorney to file a motion requesting the commission to set aside its order granting a rate increase to the St. Louis County Water Co. It will urge a study of the utility's valuation and rate structure.

A financial report submitted to the council showed city expenditures of $777,014 for the fiscal year ended last June 30, an increase of $119,835 over the preceding year. Revenues totaled $742,579, but a cash balance of $35,000 at the start of the year prevented a deficit. The report also showed University City's bonded indebtedness has been reduced $364,000, or 26 per cent, in the last two years.

A bill was introduced authorizing the city to enter into a new street lighting contract with Union Electric Co. of Missouri, which will save the municipality $2500 a year. The council ordered elimination of parking on North and South road, between Olive Street road and Carleton avenue, and decided to discontinue city inspections of electrical installations and leave that work to the county public safety department.

PEDDLER ARRESTED AFTER TRUCK HITS BICYCLIST, 12

The girl, Georgia R. Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Williams, 3617 Cote Briliante avenue, confirmed Bommarito's story that he had stopped to ask her if she were injured and received a negative reply.

When the girl arrived home, her parents took her to City Hospital, where she was treated for a cut on the right hand. Bommarito appeared at the police station after learning he was being sought. He was ordered to appear in Police Court Sept. 12 although the girl's parents said they did not wish to prosecute.

OPENING DAYS FOR CATHOLIC, PUBLIC SCHOOLS ON EAST SIDE

East St. Louis's two Catholic high schools will begin the fall semester Thursday, and the parochial elementary schools will open Friday, it was announced today.

East St. Louis public schools and those of Granite City, Madison and Venice will start next Tuesday. There are 33 public and 16 parochial schools in East St. Louis.

Public and parochial superintendents on the East Side said enrollments probably would be 5 to 10 per cent higher than last year, with the greatest increases in the lower grades. There were about 13,000 public school pupils in the East St. Louis system last year, and about 3250 in the parochial schools.

MARSHALL FUND COMMITTEE ALLOTS BRITAIN $960,000,000

PARIS, Aug. 30 (AP)—Top officials of the Organization for European Economic Co-operation (OEEC) have worked out a new plan for division of Marshall plan funds which would give Britain $960,000,000 in 1949-50.

This figure is $118,000,000 more than the British were allotted under the last OEEC proposal and $558,000,000 less than they asked for when estimates of required aid were submitted.

Although the United States Congress has not yet decided on the exact amount of Marshall plan aid for the coming year, the experts are figuring on a total appropriation of about $3,670,000,000.

The new plan was worked out after all the 19 member areas except Trieste let it be known they were not satisfied with the last proposed division.

The Council of the OEEC will meet tomorrow to discuss the new proposals. There was no official comment on the new plan. The British, however, were reported pleased with the increase.

Like other plans calculated so far, this one is still considered "secret" by both European and American Marshall aid authorities. It was worked out by two top officials of the OEEC — General Secretary Robert Marjolin of France and Baron Charles Jean Snoy et d'Oppuers, deputy chief of the Belgian delegation. They were appointed to make a new division plan after the last one was bitterly denounced by Sir Edmund Hall-Patch head of the British delegation.

The additional funds for Britain were obtained by reducing the amount in a pool designed to help countries which lost dollars by breaking down trade barriers, one source said. Greece, Norway and Denmark were among the countries reduced, while France, Italy and The Netherlands were allotted more under the new plan.

CONGRESS GETS 2 BILLION PLAN FOR DAM PROGRAM

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30 (AP)—Secretary of the Interior Krug presented to Congress today a two-billion-dollar program for water resource development of California's Ceentral Valley basin.

President Truman indorsed a controversial part of the plan which would make Interior's Reclamation Bureau the major construction agency—and would virtually throw the Army Corps of Engineers out of the Central Valley.

Truman said more information on engineering and economic feasibility is necessary to justify approval of the whole as a comprehensive valley plan.

No Objection.

The President told Krug there would be no objection to sending the project report to Congress "provided it is made clear that, aside from the authorizations for the projects specified, the other projects proposed are to be considered as an inventoory of possible future work . . ."

Krug recommended, and President Truman concurred, that the authority for three of them be transferred to the Reclamation Bureau, and that the engineers go ahead and build five dams, turning them over to Reclamation on completion.

He proposed that the Ninth Army project he canceled

The Reclamation Bureau already has built, or has near completion, in the basin, three large dams—Shasta and Keswick, on the Sacramento river, and Friant, on the San Joaquin.

Dams Listed.

Under the proposal it would also build these dams now assigned to the Army Engineers, but not yet under construction:

New Melones, on the Stanislaus river; Black Butte, on Stony creek, and New Hogan, on the Calaveras river.

The Army would be allowed to complete Folsom, Pine Flat and Isabella dams, now under construction on the American, Kings and Kern rivers respectively.

Army Engineers also would build the Terminus dam, on the Kaweah river, and Success dam, on the Tule river, as previously authorized. Upon completion, all five would be turned over to Reclamation for operation.

He said Black Butte reservoir would give the area flood protection. The dam, he said, would destroy the upper Sacramento river salmon fishery valued at $1,050,000 a year.

$519 MORE GIVEN TO FUND FOR DR. RUTLEDGE APPEAL

An additional $519 was received yesterday for the fund being raised to finance an appeal for Dr. Robert C. Rutledge Jr., bringing the total here to $2828. The Industrial Bank is the depository for the fund.

About $1300 has been contributed in Houston, Tex., the home of Dr. Rutledge's father, an optometrist, raising the total amount collected to $4828. Dr. Rutledge, convicted and sentenced to 70 years for the murder of Byron C. Hattman, his wife's admirer, is in the Iowa State Prison at Fort Madison.

CANOEISTS HITCHHIKE HOME

Paul Fontaine, 4320 Wyoming street, and Pete Lamantia, 5338 Bischoff street, hitchhiked their way home yesterday, after their 17-foot canoe was broken in half and sunk near Chester, Ill., in a midnight accident. They left St. Louis Sunday in an attempt to paddle to New Orleans in four days.

The canoe was caught in a swift current about 90 miles downstream. Lamantia was asleep at the time but Fontaine awakened him and they put on their life belts before the canoe overturned. They clung to logs and drifted about half a mile before they managed to reach shore.

Greta Garbo to Act Again.

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 30 (AP)—Greta Garbo will go before the cameras again next month. Producer Walter Wanger yesterday said the Swedish actress now is in Italy, where the movie, "The Duchess of Langeais," will go into production Sept. 15. She made her last Hollywood film eight years ago.

MISSOURI, LINCOLN U. GET BEQUESTS FROM FANNIE COOK

The University of Missouri and Lincoln University for Negroes at Jefferson City will receive $500 each under the will of Mrs. Fannie Cook, author, painter and former social worker, who died last Thursday.

The will, dated March 6, 1944, and filed yesterday in Probate Court at Clayton, establishes a trust estate out of one-third of the residue with her husband, Dr. James E. Cook, 400 Purdue avenue, University City, as life beneficiary. At his death, the principal of the trust is to go to their two sons, Howard F. Cook and Dr. Robert J. Cook.

The remaining two-thirds of the residue is to go to the two sons immediately. The bequest to the two schools states that the funds, in the case of the state university, are to be used to purchase books for the academic library. At the Negro school, they are to be used for library purposes. The will provides the St. Louis Union Trust Co. is to receive 5 per cent on all disbursements up to $100,000 for its services as co-trustee under the trust. No estimate of the size of the estate could be made by members of the family.

PRAIRIE AVE.-HALL ST. SITE URGED FOR COMMISSION ROW

Commission Row, which has operated for many years on Third street north of Washington, would be moved three miles north to a 70-acre site at Prairie avenue and Hall street, under a recommendation by the Department of Agriculture, made public at Washington yesterday.

The recommendation resulted from a survey made by the department at the request of the St. Louis Wholesale Fruit & Vegetable Jobbers' Association. A new site is necessary because of the Third street inter-regional highway project and the new Mississippi river bridge, now under construction north of Eads Bridge.

A spokesman for the produce merchants' group said today a site for the new Commission Row already has been selected, but declined comment on whether the Agriculture Department's recommendation has been followed. Cost of the new facilities would total about $5,000,000, but savings of $1,000,000 a year would result from their use, the department report stated.

SHOT FOLLOWING QUARREL OVER PARKING OF AUTO

Thomas M. Williams Jr., operator of a filling station at 931 North Twelfth boulevard, was shot in the left thigh yesterday afternoon by a Negro with whom he had quarreled earlier in the day over the parking of an automobile.

A short time after the shooting, police arrested a man who said he was Andrew W. Robinson, Negro, 1426 North Twenty-first street, and booked him suspected of assault with intent to kill. Witnesses told police Williams was leaning over the hood of an automobile when his assailant fired once at him with a shotgun.

Earlier yesterday both men had been arrested for peace disturbance following a fight over Robinson's parking his automobile in the parking lot owned by Williams. They were to appear today in City Court. Williams, who lives at 2921 Lincoln avenue, Normandy, was taken to City Hospital.

TWO MEN ADMIT CLEANING SHOP HOLDUP; $69 TAKEN

Two men who held up the Howard's Cleaners branch office, 3573 Lindell boulevard yesterday were arrested early today when two patrolmen spotted their automobile in a downtown parking lot and waited for them to return.

The men, police reported, admitted they forced the clerk, Miss Helen Libla, 3315 North Eleventh street, to turn over $10 from the cash register and took $59 from two Negro customers. They told police they are John Klapp, South Bend, Ind., and Gerard Dallas, MacArthur Hotel.

Fact-Finding Board Offers To Mediate Steel Dispute

producers had at first rejected his fact finding scheme, challenged them with the telegram: "Surely you are not afraid to have your side of this dispute examined in the public interest?"

But at the hearing the steel firms have charged that the fact-finding procedure—although recommendations of the board are not to be binding—was a step toward compulsory arbitration (which neither the companies nor the unions want); that it "repealed collective bargaining"; and that it by-passed the Taft-Hartley law with its 80-day injunctions against strikes which would create national emergencies.

If it by-passed the Taft-Hartley law injunction feature, it is on the point of by-passing still another aspect of that law.

The Mediation Offer.

It was in recognition of the tremendous responsibility which rests on it that the board offered its services in mediation of the dispute. John A. Stephens, vice president of the United States Steel Corp. in charge of industrial relation, said last night the decision on acceptance of the board as mediator, rather than utilization of the independent United States Mediation and Conciliation Service set up in the Taft-Hartley law, would have to be decided by the companies individually.

The best guess was that the board's offer to mediate would not be accepted. Some steel men regarded this as handing the board a two-edged sword—if it didn't succeed in a settlement through mediation, it could still submit a report to the President giving its recommended terms of settlement. Steel managers fear that recommended terms of settlement would marshal public opinion—probably against them—and it is for this reason that they talk of "repeal of collective bargaining" and of the fact-finding process with power to recommend terms, as a step toward compulsory arbitration.

In his statement to reporters that the board had offered to mediate the complicated dispute, Chairman Carroll R. Daugherty said:

"I think we can say the board does hold that mediation is not beyond the range of its functions and we have talked to the parties, asking their views as to the acceptability of mediation by this board. We expect to hear in the next day or two.

"We asked them to consider whether or not that offer would be helpful."

Daugherty is professor of business economics at Northwestern University. Serving with him on the board are Samuel I. Rosenman, former justice of the New York Supreme Court and confidant of President Roosevelt, and, to a lesser extent of President Truman, and David L. Cole, a lawyer, a labor arbitrator of Newark, N. J. Daugherty has been a student of steel and the economy for many years. Twelve years ago he wrote the book: "Economics of the Iron and Steel Industry," published by McGraw-Hill & Co., which specializes in books dealing with business subjects.

Daugherty's opinions in that book were that before the NRA code period the steel industry, exercising autocratic and frequently harsh practices, had maintained unilateral control over its labor force. The history of labor-management relations in the industry, including the investigations of the La Follette Committee in the 1930's supports that thesis.

Daugherty's Principles.

In the book Daugherty recommended four general principles he said should be followed.

First was that steelworkers should be organized. Union organizations for collective bargaining is now, of course, the declared national policy of the Government, in the Taft-Hartley act; in the Wagner act which preceded it; and in the National Industrial Recovery act, which preceded the Wagner act.

Second, was that union organization, because of the integrated operations of the industry, should be on the "vertical," rather than a "horizontal," or craft union basis, to avoid jurisdictional disputes. This is the way the union organization has developed.

Third was that collective bargaining in the industry should be on a national basis. This point is a subject of current controversy. Most companies want plant-by-plant bargaining; the union says it can't be done that way because one firm, United States Steel, has one third of all steel capacity and representatives of others have told the union that their individual bargaining sessions would have to await agreements between United States Steel and the union because United States Steel, dominating the market, should set the pattern. More will be said later in this dispatch about the current demand of steel companies, particularly the smaller firms, for individual bargaining, and the inability of these smaller concerns to meet terms which might be acceptable to United States Steel.

Daugherty's fourth principle as enunciated in his book, was that a steel union should be democratically operated, free from coercion by employers or autocratic union leadership. Under the leadership of Phil Murray, president of the union and of the CIO, that principle, too, has been adopted.

Closing Session Debate.

The closing session of the hearings did not produce a great deal that was new. The union and the companies had presented their "cases in chief," with the companies utilizing much of their original time allotment for rebuttal, because the union had been heard first. Then the union had its time for rebuttal, and what the board heard yesterday from the companies was what college debaters call sur-rebuttal.

There was a great deal of restatement of the companies' arguments against the economic presentations of the CIO economist, Robert R. Nathan. Nathan sought to prove that the steel companies could afford to, and should, if the nation is to escape a depression, increase purchasing power by granting the union the 30 cents an hour "wage package" it seeks. This "package" would include wages currently payable, "wages deferred for pension" and insurance benefits to be paid for solely by the companies—as the pensions would be—rather than through a contributory plan for insurance. The companies insist the union last year waived its opportunity to bargain this year on pensions.

This was the old argument restated of whether wage increases are "purchasing power" and hence helpful to the economy, or "increased costs" and hence leading toward lessened demand, diminishing employment, and recession or depression.

There were charges that Nathan and the union had distorted statistics on such things as productivity, ability to pay, cost of living, needs of the steel workers, and the general "economic environment" in which this controversy is taking place.

Technical Arguments.

For most part these charges of distortion were aimed at the selection of "base periods" against which a comparison may be made with the present economic situation of the steelworkers. There were disputes, too, over the proper method of computing profits—a technical problem of accounting. On productivity Nathan's system of calculation was disputed. This, again, is a very technical subject, involving both selection of base periods and something known as the weighted index of "product mix." The last can be best explained by the statement that there are more than 30 types of steel manufactured—some crude, relatively inexpensive and less profitable; others highly finished, expensive and profitable.

How then does one arrive at a single price and profit margin for steel? It is done by a "weighted index." The companies asserted Nathan had used the base periods which best served his purpose on such matters as productivity, ability to pay, needs of steelworkers, cost of living, and economic environment. They disputed his "weighted index" of steel production, on the ground that he had overstated the proportion of total production which goes into the highly finished, profitable types of steel, and understated the proportion of crude steel, less profitable.

Two of the arguments made before the board in the closing session ought to be recounted.

Smaller Firms' Contention.

Former Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson, appearing as counsel for a group of the smaller companies, said they deserved separate consideration.

In the aggregate, he said, they have 10 per cent of the total ingot production capacity of the industry but a vital segment of it, such as the manufacture of tool steels, stainless steels, high alloy steels and other special types, a much larger percentage.

For 47 of them, he offered figures to show that their profits had declined an average of nearly 28 per cent comparing the second quarter of this year with the first quarter. Three of the 47 lost money in the second quarter, and one operated at a loss in both quarters.

But their 150,000 workers (the union has a membership of about a million) are the mainstay of the business life in many communities, Patterson said, and their vigorous competition was an insurance against monopoly in the industry.

There just wasn't any "steel industry," which could be considered as a unit which could absorb a uniform pattern of wage increases, Patterson said.

Daugherty asked Patterson if historically there had not been a tendency of the smaller companies to adopt the wage levels set by "big steel." Patterson said he thought that was true. Then Daugherty said Patterson's argument seemed to indicate that the board, in its recommendations should propose a wage level which the least profitable firms in the industry could endure, and ignore the ability of more profitable firms to pay more in wages.

Argues for Flexibility.

Patterson replied that such a course would, at least, encourage collective bargaining rather than wage fixing by Government boards. The required flexibility in wage rates, whic hthe smaller companies must have to survive, could be achieved by collective bargaining, he said.

Board member Cole then brought up the point that "ability to pay" had been ruled out as one of the standards of fixing wage levels in arguments presented by the larger, more profitable companies. Patterson said he thought the whole question was one for collective bargaining, and that ability to pay was but one of the factors considered in collective bargaining negotiations.

"We are not asking," said Patterson, "that every single concern in the industry be assured of a profit. We are not speaking for a group of speculators, for outfits on the fringe of the industry, for people that are in and out of production.

"The concerns we have in mind have had long and useful careers in the life of the nation. They produce a considerable part of essential steel products. Some of them are in the forefront in research and development of new metals to serve the needs of the mechanized age we live in.

"Their vigorous existence is a necessity to their employes, their investors, their communities, the markets they serve and to the national economy."

Youngstown Co. Request.

As the final spokesman for the industry, John C. Gall, counsel for the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co., asked the board to recommend denial of a wage increase because business is on the downgrade, and to hold that pensions for steel workers are not now "bargainable."

He asked the board to remand the insurance question to the companies and the union for further collective bargaining, and, addressing the union, asked it to rescind its strike now authorized for Sept. 14 in the interest of full and free collective bargaining.

The board heard suggestions going all the way back to 1920 as suitable base periods for comparison of various elements of the dispute.

Gall came up with a new and the latest one, July 1948, for comparison of cost of living changes. "Nothing has happened since 1948 that justifies any increase in rates of pay," Gall told the board.

It was in July 1948 that the union concluded contracts calling for an increase in rates of pay; contracts reopenable this year, and expiring next April. Another witness yesterday, Jules Backman, associate professor of economics at New York University, had told the board that since that 1948 increase was granted, the consumers' price index of the Bureau of Labor Statistics had declined by 3 per cent. To that extent, he said, steel workers have enjoyed a moderate increase in "real" earnings during the past year.

"The record clearly shows," said Backman, picking up this line of testimony again, "that steel workers are in a better relative position than they were in 1948.

"Wages remain high," he continued, "but many steel companies are in a financial plight as a result of the recession in business they are now experiencing, and which qualified witnesses believe will continue for some time to come.

"With the country now experiencing a degree of industrial recession, this board should not jeopardize the prospects of a return of confidence and industrial activity of indorsing a fourth round of wage increases."

Prof. Slichter's Analysis.

Returning once again to Backman, who has testified for the steel companies at much greater length than any other spokesman for them, it may be well to close with a quotation he made from a speech delivered by Sumner H. Slichter, professor of economics at Harvard University. Slichter spoke not here but at Madison, Wis. He said there the recession would be aggravated by general wage increases.

"A fourth round of wage advances has recently been urged by trade union representatives as a method of halting the contraction of business. This, however is Alice-in-Wonderland economics. It amounts to saying that the way to sell more labor, and thus to reduce employment, is to charge more for labor," Slichter said.

"The argument of the union spokesman is simple. 'Raise wages,' they say, 'in plants where higher wages would not diminish employment very much and thus would mean larger payrolls. Since business is more or less depressed, employers could not pass on higher wages in the form of higher prices. Consequently the higher payrolls would buy more goods. Greater purchase of goods would mean more production and more employment. Hence the way to stop a recession and to sell more labor is to charge a higher price for labor—that is, to raise wages.'

"The argument seems too good to be true. Certainly if recessions can be halted merely by raising wages, there is no need to have any more recessions. Why have economists overlooked this simple method of keeping the economy stable? There is obviously a catch."

BIDS LET ON DOCTORS' HOMES AT TWO STATE HOSPITALS

JEFFERSON CITY, Aug. 30 (AP)—Construction of 14 residences at the Mount Vernon Tuberculosis Sanatorium and State Hospital No. 2 at St. Joseph will be started within the next two weeks, Samuel Marsh reported yesterday. Marsh is head of the state Department of Health and Welfare.

Successful bidder on nine brick veener houses for doctors at Mount Vernon was Ozark Construction Co. of Joplin with a $160,435 figure. The houses will contain two and three bedrooms, Marsh said.

For five similar houses at the St. Joseph institution, Koch-Schroeder Construction Co. of St. Joseph was low. The bid was $106,818.

PASSAMAQUODDY POWER PROJECT BEING PUSHED

the ground there were much cheaper ways of obtaining power, but did not include the international plan in its survey. It said data on the international plan could be obtained only by costly studies.

The FPC also offered these views:

"The natural and doubtless justifiable presumption that the construction of a large international tidal power project at Passamaquoddy will not be economically feasible or desirable in the near future (this was written in 1941) should be no bar to a thorough exploration of the possibilities of such a project jointly by the Governments of the United States and Canada.

"It may confidently be assumed that the power potentially available in the Passamaquoddy tides will ultimately be developed. The event seems certain; the only uncertainty is in point of time.

"The idea of generating electricity from the enormous latent power of the tides along the shores washed up by the Bay of Fundy is fascinating, interesting, entrancing—a challenge, as it were, to the imagination and ingenuity of man."

$8,342,000,000 IN STATE TAXES IN U. S. IN LAST YEAR

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30 (UP)—State governments collected $8,342,000,000 in taxes during the fiscal year ended last June 30, the Census Bureau reported today.

That was an increase of 7.1 per cent over the $7,791,000,000 collected in the previous year, and amounted to $57.43 per person.

The highest rate of collection per person was $92.19 in Louisiana. Nebraska was the lowest with a $35.92 per capita collection. New Jersey made the biggest reduction among the five states which reduced taxes last year, cutting its levies by 13.7 per cent.

Mississippi River Power Co. has filed suit to recover money allegedly mishandled by Frank J. Boehm, Albert C. Laun and Oscar F. Funk. The questions, 32 directed at Laun, 38 at Funk and 117 at Boehm, were asked as part of that suit.

Questions dealt with alleged kickbacks on payments for insulators, alleged kickbacks on insurance, padded expense accounts by Union Electric employes and kickbacks of the padded expense money by those employes. Questions covered the period from Jan. 1, 1930 to May 16, 1939.

Young Married Love All Over Radio Dials

By John Crosby

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.

"THE FIRST HUNDRED YEARS," an optimistic title for a summer radio program if I ever heard one, is another comedy about young married love, of which there is more in radio than anywhere else. Marital love blossoms like milkweed all over the networks in the summertime. In the wintertime, of course, the young wives are all at the giveaway programs winning toasters. They spend the summer cooing over the toasters at their husbands.

JOHN CROSBY

On this one, there seems to be more cooing than seems strictly necessary. Long intervals are devoted to stimulating dialogue such as "Oh, Chris . . . " or "Oh, Connie . . . ," followed by periods of pregnant silence which seems an easy way for a script writer to kill a half hour. The lives of these dripping love birds is somewhat complicated by their in-laws who, even after 30 years of marriage, still make guarded references to love.

★ ★ ★

THE REST of the half hour, which sometimes resembles 100 years, is devoted to comedy, most of it revolving around Connie's difficulties with cookery and Chris's struggles with his old house. None of it will keep you awake nights laughing. About all I can say for the show is that it possesses a pretty good comedian in Earle Ross, who plays Frank Thayer, the father of the groom, with great relish.

Besides the mixture of the maudlin and the comic there is enough plot to stock a three-act play. One episode dealt with a dinner invitation, a live goose that everyone became incomprehensibly attached to and a water heater that ultimately blew up, punctuating all the other little plots and bringing things to a close. And none too soon.

★ ★ ★

ANOTHER PAIR of young marrieds are the O'Hanlons, George and Janie, who are heard on a show called "Me and Janie" (KSD 7:30 p.m. C.D.T. Tuesdays). I dimly recollect having met the O'Hanlons before someplace, probably last summer on a different network, and since the recollection is so faint, they couldn't have impressed me much. I'll probably have to think twice remembering them again next summer.

George O'Hanlon is one of these left-footed husbands who means well but never does anything quite right. He works for something called the Lamb Paper Box Co. whose boss, a Mr. Lamb, bullies him unmercifully just as Mr. Dithers bullies Dagwood. He has a pal, a scheming no-good named Beechwood who gets him into a number of scrapes, none of them especially entertaining.

THE DIALOGUE is made up almost exclusively of wisecracks: "What have rich people got that we haven't got—just money." Or: "Even the scenery is expensive. All the pine trees are made of solid mahogany."

The plot, a week or so ago, revolved around Georgie's vacation. Now, there is a new idea. When all the expensive comedians went off the air last spring, we wallowed for weeks in jokes which started "Where are you going on your vacation?" In a week or so they'll all be back again, greeting Don Wilson with the remark: "Where did you go on your vacation, Don?" And, just so this idea isn't hopelessly lost during the hot months, all the summer replacement comedians discuss where they're going on vacation and the following week they discuss where they've been and how terrible it was.

A RECENT COMPLAINT that songwriters weren't remembering their mothers with the same old enthusiasm brought in the mail an advance sheet of a song that is to be perpetuated on the public next year. The refrain lays down the noble sentiment that Mother's Day comes once a year but every day is Mother's Day "to ME-E-E-E!" That's the old spirit, men! I'm working on my own little song which starts like this.

"M-Day means war to General Bradley.
"But M-Day means Mother to me!"

New York Subways

By Milton Berle

STRANGELY enough, one of the things I miss out here in Hollywood are the New York subways. I realy mean that. I'll admit that during the rush hours you have to be a greased Houdini to get into one of those trains but where else can you get such a long ride and learn the art of Yoga for only 10 cents?

OF COURSE, wherever you find crowds you're sure to find pickpockets. And the subway pickpockets are doing a brisk business—or should I say, frisk business? They're so busy that many of them work overtime—and if they're ever caught the judge will give them time and a half. But really I heard of one pickpocket who is doing so well that he's giving away door prizes to the men with the neatest wallets!

★ ★ ★

Perhaps I haven't painted such a pretty picture of the New York subways—but you'll love them. If you're ever in New York and want a smooth, fast and cheap ride—just call my mother. She'll take you anywhere in her taxicab!

What Am I Saying!

PANTS may be plural, but many a singular incident has been caused by them. Take the case of the small son of a friend of mine. After tearing his pants twice in one day, his mother ordered him to take them off and mend them himself. Some time later she noticed that the torn pants were on the floor and the door to the cellar was open. She yelled downstairs: "Are you running around down there without your pants on?" A deep voice replied, "No ma'am. I'm just down here reading your gas meter!" FRANK MORGAN.

BROADWAY, ELSEWHERE

By Jack Lait

We Have With Us—

AMONG the mass moochers on the New York relief rolls are its gypsies. They are not conspicuous in the city's life. Few ever stop to think of them or realize we have a permanent population here of thousands of these utterly unproductive perennial rovers, who put the slang word, "gyp," into the language. They live mostly in what a half-century ago was part of the ghetto during the high tide of immigration. Often 30 or more of these tziganes live in a family-size cold-water flat—and these are in five and six-story walk-ups. They sing, fiddle, they fight, they breed—but they rarely work. Some of the women scatter to unoccupied stores where they set up fortune-telling booths until the cops rout them out. Their weddings and funerals are orgies, and for important ones their kinfolk flock in from the whole Eastern seaboard. Those who have rooted themselves here are citizens, almost all natives, and they vote en bloc in a machine-ridden locality, one of the few Tammany can still deliver with advance certainty. For that reason the gypsies are guided onto the dole lists. They are "unemployed." Most of them always have been, and can prove they have no means of support and can't muster any. Family numbers are a factor in adding up welfare allotments, so these traditional transients who no longer roam have found the good life and lost their wanderlust.

EL MOROCCO and the Stork Club are being solicited for ads by the Bowery News. . . . The certified, original "Spanky" MacFarland, fat boy of "Our Gang," is an airplane painter with Chance Vought Aircraft, Dallas, Tex. . . . Marjorie Hassett, one-time model with "the world's most beautiful hands," confesses a romantic interest in Dennis Van Upp, a Harvard professor. . . . Hugo Belardin, rich Egyptian, and Mary Sadler, described as a Michigan heiress, appear serious. . . . Edith Fellows may land the immortal Maude Adams role in the musical version of Barrie's "The Little Minister."

★ ★ ★

THE EAST SIDE, especially in the middle 40's, has gradually become a favorite center. John Ganzi's Palm, on Second Avenue, near 45th Street, attracts a following from the whole nation. Colombo's, Cella's, Danny's and others on 45th Street, a bit east or west, pull carriage trade in locations which after nightfall are otherwise dark and desolate. The meat shortage, when all these cafes managed to be well supplied (I nicknamed them "steak-easies" then), established several and made sawdust floors and plaid tablecloths fashionable. . . . Of late, one of the favorite bar-grill-cafes is Barbara Kelly's Tiger Lily Lounge, at 141 East 45th Street, an intimate spot frequented by newspapermen, artists, Park Avenue executives and a sprinkling of society seekers of atmosphere and informality. Barbara was born a graceful hostess. Any kind reader who would like to take a sock at me will find me in her cozy, intimate bistro as likely as not.

★ ★ ★

MANY OF THESE East Side cafe-owners are ex-bootleggers and speak-easy operators. They are the survivors of hundreds in the vicinity. They came through and grew because they had something—something more than the booze which was common to that era. There never was a more intensely competitive field. When legitimate liquor came back, thousands of the roughnecks who had fattened on Prohibition, no longer "protected" by bribed Federal agents and slugger-partners, tried to stay in business but faded and failed. The New York on-premises drinking law requires full facilities for feeding and serving not less than 30 people at one time—meals, not sandwiches. Saloon-keepers therefore had to be restauranteurs. That was an avocation few of the hootch-peddlers understood.

★ ★ ★

THOSE WHO THRIVED and came through are now in line to make fortunes. They are in the zone nearest the forthcoming huge United Nations buildings, which will change the character of the whole neighborhood. As the U.N. structures will back against the East River, there is only one major approach, from the propinquous East Side avenues and a few cross-streets. Many of the houses in those blocks have stood for generations. They shot up to many times their 1940 valuations. The trend had been in their direction before the U.N. was heard of, anyway. So these former semi-slums appear destined to make way for a new business and nightlife center.

★ ★ ★

IT TAKES three capable operators, all day long, to handle the telephone calls to this desk. They pour in—fans, soreheads, questioners (hundreds who want addresses and telephone numbers of interesting persons mentioned here), volunteer and professional tipsters, cranks, police doggedly following up paragraphs and inquiring where these gamblers, racketeers and other malefactors can be found (which I never divulge). I won't answer anyone I don't know well, in town or anywhere. But one woman called me so insistently from Miami that I took her on. She was obviously plastered. Her important communication was: "Tell 'em, Lait—tell ev'body—Alcoholicsh Amomy-mush ish a lot o' hooey!"

Modern Marriage

By Dr. Paul Popenoe

"AND that's not all, either," Mrs. J. complained. "He expects me to get up every morning to get breakfast for him!"

"Don't most husbands expect that?" I asked.

"Why should they?" she demanded. "My husband is perfectly well able to make his own toast and coffee and I always have some canned orange juice in the refrigerator."

"I see. What do you do?"

"Why?"

"Well, there seems to be no need for me to get up early. I don't have a great deal to do. Tell me, Dr. Popenoe, do you see any reason why a man should expect his wife to wait on him all the time?"

★ ★ ★

"I SEE YOUR POINT," I agreed, and her face lightened. "He doesn't need you as a cook. After all, there are restaurants."

"Certainly."

"Why not?"

"You're not serious, Dr. Popenoe. Everyone wants a home of his own."

"I'm just thinking out loud," I admitted. "What does a man expect to get out of a home of his own, that he wouldn't find in a boarding house?"

★ ★ ★

"WHY, THERE'S SOMEONE in the home who is particularly interested in looking after him. . . ." She stopped and I thought she again looked dissatisfied with the argument. In a moment she got her second wind and continued hopefully, "Then there's companionship."

"That's priceless," I agreed. "The trouble is that in city life a man and wife have so little time together. Every moment is precious. An hour at breakfast—"

"Dr. Popenoe, are you getting personal?"

"What do you think, Mrs. J.?"

She didn't need to reply. "And I agree with you, too," I went on, "about the value of having some one in the home who is particularly interested in your welfare, who'll be anxious to see you start the day right, with a tasty and well balanced breakfast, a cheerful smile, encouragement to go out and face a hard day. . . ."

She rose, "You've said enough, Dr. Popenoe," she informed me.

Sound Information on Camp Cooking

'Some Outdoor Cookbooks as Out of Date as Surrey With Fringe on Top'

By Z. Lee Stokely

Ozark Sportsman and Outdoors Writer

Z. LEE STOKELY . . . "AH, WILDERNESS!"

MUCH tomfoolery has been written about camp cooking. Outdoor cookbooks are still advertised, written before the advent of the gasoline camp stove, which are as out of date today as a surrey with a fringe on top. They advise the camper to place a green log back of the fire to throw out more heat; they have coffee pots hanging on green crotch sticks; they wrap chickens and fish in clay and bake them in the fire; they have the camp cook broiling his game or meat on a green stick over a bed of coals, which will burn to a nice char outside and be raw inside — provided the stick doesn't burn in two and break beforehand. In short, they are entirely useless for modern camp cooking.

In planning a camping trip the grub list should be worked out as carefully as the calories are counted in a diet kitchen. It is just as easy to have balanced meals in camp as it is to have them at home. It is simply a matter of multiplying so many campers by so many days for so many breakfasts, dinners, and suppers.

In these days there are so many varieties of delicious canned foods and the meals can be varied from day to day so that never a dull moment ensues at the favorite haunt of old Epicurus. Canned fruit juices, soups, various vegetables, and even meats may be rotated from day to day to escape from the old-time camping meals of bacon, beans, and bologna. Vegetable oils are used in frying fish, squirrels, and other meats to avoid "grease hangovers" and bicarbonate the day after. Don't overlook the possibility of renting a space at the frozen food locker in the town nearest your camp. There are very few camping places farther than a half hour or so by car from a town in which a frozen food locker is maintained, where steaks, chickens, fish, and other meats, as well as fresh vegetables, can be kept without fear of spoilage. Many of them will gladly dress the fish and process them so that they may be taken home or eaten in camp without fear of taint or ptomaine.

The camp commissary list should be gone over and checked carefully before the provisions are purchased. Plenty of leafy vegetables in variety should be included. Of course, the time of the year should be taken into consideration and, if there are plenty of garden vegetables to be procured from a nearby farm, the grocery list can be cut accordingly. Good eating is half of the camping, and campers hunt and fish harder and more enthusiastically if they are well fed.

Possibly the most important cooking utensil to have along on a trip is a Dutch oven. With it you can fry, broil, boil, bake, saute or stew—and, in case of an emergency, it can even be used as a coffee pot. You can bake delicious biscuits in it as easily as you can in your electric or gas oven at home. Lightly grease the Dutch oven, put the lid on to retain the heat, and set over the burner until the interior is well heated.

MEANWHILE, sift two cups of flour in a mixing bowl, add a teaspoon of salt and a level tablespoon of baking powder. Pour in condensed milk, mixed half-and-half with water, carefully mixing all the while with a mixing spoon, and add a tablespoon of bacon drippings. Use care in adding milk and water so that the mix will be fairly dry. Knead the dough slightly, sprinkle flour on a mixing board, pat down the dough until it is a rough circle about an inch thick, then cut out biscuits with a small glass or can, and place them in the pre-heated Dutch oven. Replace the lid and, when done on the bottom side, turn with a pancake turner until they are nice and brown on both sides. Ah, wilderness!

Far too many cooks prepare fish in such a manner that they are distinguishable from corn pone only if you get a bone in your throat. They roll the fish in corn meal as long as a grain of meal will stick to the fish, bury them in hot grease, and the fine delicate flavor of the freshly caught fish is forever lost. Sometime try frying fish rolled very lightly in flour, with salt added, in corn oil, in a Dutch oven, and you will be amazed with the results.

If the bass are large enough, fillet them for a real fish treat. To fillet a fish, start with a sharp knife at the base of the tail and cut all the way up to the head. Next, cut downward at the head and remove the fillet. Turn the fish over and repeat the process. All that will be left of the original fish is the head, tail and backbone. Take a pair of tweezers (a cotton cloth will do) and pull out the rib bones. This leaves two nice fillets without bones which any fish eater will thoroughly enjoy. A variation of the flour, salt and corn oil frying is to, first, roll the fish very lightly in flour with salt added, then smear lightly with mayonnaise, roll in flour again, and fry. This gives you a juicy morsel with an added flavor well worth the extra trouble.

One of the finest of all camp dishes is baked jack salmon with a modified Spanish sauce. First, as the French chef said about the rabbit, catch the jack salmon. Scale and dress the fish, leaving the head on as well as the tail and fins. Next, prepare the sauce as follows: Place six tablespoons of corn oil in a Dutch oven on a low fire and add six stalks of diced celery. Add two diced large sweet bell peppers and let celery and peppers cook until limp. Next, add six chopped large sweet Spanish onions and two finely minced cloves of garlic. Let these ingredients simmer in the oil until the celery, peppers and onions will mash on pressure from the cooking spoon, then add one No. 2 can of tomatoes, one small can of tomato puree, one smaller can of tomato paste, tobasco sauce and salt to suit taste, and let sauce gently simmer for 20 minutes. Remove from the fire and add a can of button mushrooms, as well as the juice from the mushrooms. Set sauce aside.

NOW, lightly grease a pan large enough to hold the jack salmon and place fish in the pan, moving it occasionally to prevent sticking. Next, turn the fish over before it is very done, so that the fish will remain intact. Remember this is the last turning, for to do so again would tear up the fish. About 10 minutes after the turning, pour sauce over the fish and cover as tightly as possible with another pan. Remove cover from time to time and baste fish, making sure that the larger pieces of the canned tomatoes stay on top of the fish to keep it moist. Cook for about 30 minutes, depending, of course, on the size of the fish, or until it begins to separate from the bones, and serve in the original pan in which the fish was cooked. Ladle out plenty of sauce on the pieces of fish and stand close by for repeat customers, for this is a fish dish, par excellence, that makes buoillabaisse an "also ran."

Squirrel stew with drop dumplings, a la Walter Raney, is a treat in anybody's camp. Cut up six squirrels and place them in a Dutch oven with two tablespoons of bacon drippings and enough water to cover. Be sure to place the older squirrels in the pot first, allowing them to cook before adding the younger squirrels, so the more tender young squirrels will not cook off the bones. Cook until the older squirrels are tender to the fork, adding water as needed, so you will have plenty of liquor for the drop dumplings. To make the dumplings, sift two cups of flour, add salt to taste, a tablespoon of baking powder, and one egg. Stir egg well in the flour and then ladle in enough of the liquor from the squirrel stew to make a stiff dough mix. Dip the mixing spoon in the squirrel stew to prevent the dough from adhering to it. Spoon out heaping spoonsful of the dough for each dumpling into the rapidly boiling squirrel stew. Drop them far enough apart in the pot so that they will not stick together, and cook about 30 minutes after the last dumpling has been added. Serve squirrel and dumplings on the same platter and, if served often enough, it is guaranteed to cure anemia, chilblains, hang-overs, spotted fever, and chigger bites—and will make the grouchiest man in camp rejoice at his good fortune of being one of the party of campers.

New Carpet Has Adhesive Back

IF your good man has a knack of doing things with his hands and likes to see evidence of his own achievements in the home, there's good news for your budget in a new looped pile wool carpeting that is sold with an adhesive back. As accompaniments to this new idea, two accessory materials for seaming the carpet — a tape and a cement.

The new carpeting will appear soon in stores under the name of Bondset, and comes from one of the well known makers of the country. It's a particularly sturdy pile made of twisted wool loops that are left uncut. These loops are usually more resistant to wear than the cut pile. You'll have a choice of five colors—blue, spruce green, jade green, taupe sheen, dubonnet, and pearl gray. The width is nine feet, and the carpet is in the moderate price range—that is, about $12 a square yard.

The resinous backing makes it possible for the home owner to lay his own carpet, for the carpeting is easily seamed up by use of the tape. Too, it is easily adhered to a rug cushion or prepared floor, and can be taken up in the event of a family move. One of the advantages of the resinous backing is that the problem of irregularly shaped rooms are made much less difficult. It is easy to put in panels or ornamental shapes of contrasting colors—or to make repairs in case of cigarette burns or accidental stains.

Jewelry Novelties

Among the costume jewelry novelties to attract the college girls are new themes in dangle bracelets. Little emblems such as those worn on watch fobs only smaller are taking the place of the usual charms. Also attracting attention are the bracelets with miniature pennants as decoration.

My Day -o- By Eleanor Roosevelt

HYDE PARK, N.Y.

SOME years ago, friends of mine were kind enough to give a helping hand to a young man who wanted to study medicine. He was not at all sure whether he could get through the long years of training.

Eleanor Roosevelt.

Yesterday, he and his wife and two little boys came for a picnic lunch with us. I hope the friends who gave him a helping hand when he needed it will be as happy as I am over the fact that he now has been offered a fellowship in the Mayo Clinic for three years.

After that another fellowship awaits him at Duke University. It now looks as if he were worthy of the help given him in his student days.

He and his wife both are a most enterprising young couple. She has been taking nurse's training, will soon be a full-fledged nurse and prepared to teach. When her little boys are older, she can take a part-time job. It gives one a great sense of satisfaction to see a young couple really carrying through their ambitions with so much energy. I am hopeful that real success awaits them in the future.

PHILIP MURRAY dropped in to see us yesterday with some of his co-workers. We were all glad to see him, but we had to leave soon after lunch, so his visit was short.

I went to a Democratic clambake during the afternoon in the town of Highland, across the Hudson river. They have had to reorganize their county committee, but they must be doing a good job for they had a good crowd.

Though I could not stay very long, it certainly was an enthusiastic meeting, with everybody getting along well together and having a good time. That is a good prelude to work which might be expected of them during campaign time.

I HAVE BEEN READING with much interest and appreciation Miss Grace Tully's articles, and I feel that I must say a few words in defense of Mrs. Nesbitt.

My husband wasn't very fond of any of us who had to do with his food, because all food ceased to be interesting to him in the last year or two of his stay in the White House. But Mrs. Nesbitt was never responsible for the things that displeased him.

I was the guilty person, because I always saw all menus unless I was away for a very long period and that was very rare. I came and went a great deal, but I never was away long enough at one time to feel that anyone else was actually assuming responsibility for running the household.

Mrs. Nesbitt's economies were made both at my husband's insistence and at mine. In the first years that we were there, I even had some menus served which were designed for people on relief but I did not make my husband eat them, though I did serve them to my children at different times. I remember James asked me if he could have a glass of milk by paying five cents extra.

What I want to emphasize is that if any blame is to be placed on anyone for things which displeased my husband in the running of the household, then I was the person to receive the censure and not any employes. This my husband well knew.

Thin slivers of almonds, browned in butter or margarine, are delicious served over panned fish or a green vegetable such as snap beans, broccoli, or peas.

Secrets of Charm

Pick Right Foundation

By John Robert Powers

A POWERS girl never underestimates the importance under fashions play in her neat, trim, contoured appearance. She knows these garments change subtly with every change in fashion and that even the loveliest dress can be displayed in all its beauty only when it is worn over a correct foundation. Because I thought you would be interested in the advice my fashion consultant, Jane Abbott, gives to Powers models on this subject, I'm turning today's column over to her. Here's what she jotted down for you:

"The most important rule to follow in selecting your foundation garments is in the identification of your own figure type with the garment that is individually suited to it. This ought not to be too difficult because basically, there are only four types of figures: junior, misses, average and full.

"The junior figure develops around the ages of 14 or 15 and needs at that time to be smoothed out by a very lightweight girdle. This type of adolescent figure should certainly not be restrained but given full freedom of movement. This can be accomplished by power net slip-on girdles or elastic-lace panties accompanied by a wisp of a bandeau.

"The misses figure is more fully developed and needs to be 'refined' rather than 'confined'. A firm, two-way stretch girdle with a band that hugs the waist will supply a sleek definition of the figure under the waist-hugging clothes. A very lightweight brassiere will support the bosom adequately.

"The average figure is the mature but well-proportioned one: The all-in-one garment is highly recommended for this type of figure because it permits the even distribution of the weight throughout.

"The full figure is apt to present special problems in spots of surplus weight. A built-up brassiere, cut higher than most and with wide straps will control extra weight at the chest. A corset with bones and lacing will take care of heavy hips. When the full figure is well proportioned, an all-in-one that is skillfully designed will give the silhouette a statuesque form.

"After you have selected the proper type of garment you must next be certain that it fits you perfectly. For the sake of your comfort, it must not bind you. For your beauty's sake it must mould you in the smooth form of current fashion."

My OPINION

By MARTHA CARR

Dear Martha Carr:

THE boy I have been going with is a year and 10 months younger than I. We have been going together for five months. I am 17. He looks and acts older than he really is. Mother objects to me dating a boy younger than myself. Though she admits he looks older than he is, she always considers him just a little boy. The entire family likes him except that Mother feels this way about our going together. Do you think the difference in age should matter so much? What do you think I should do?

SEVENTEEN.

A boy not much more than age 15 is pretty young for a girl of 17 to be dating. Boys that age are not usually even as mature as a girl of 14 and for a girl your age to be going around with him smacks slightly of robbing the cradle. Of course it may be he is unusually mature for 15 and you are a very young 17, but if this were true your mother probably would not be voicing her objections so decidedly. In another six or seven years this age difference won't matter, but just now your mother really has the right feeling about it. So yield to her ideas in the matter gracefully and find some boy of 18 or 19 to go out with instead.

★ ★ ★

Dear Martha Carr:

WHILE ON MY VACATION I met the son of mother's old schoolmate. He is a nice boy and I like him a lot. On one of our dates my girl friend came along. They liked each other, and I am afraid she will be seeing him now that I am not there. Can you tell me how I can prevent this?

PERPLEXED.

Are you suggesting I mail you a piece of rope to tie the boy up and keep him hitched till you come his way again? Or blinders plus rope for the gal so she won't either see him coming or try to join him to put on the feed bag? Or do you want some mysterious word by which you can "hex" 'em and make them get a hate on each other instead? Sorry to disappoint you, my dear, but I can't help you one bit. Just as surely as night follows day those two young people are going to get together, since they live in the same town and there is mutual liking. You are too far away to do a thing about it. So instead of worrying over the matter and getting gray before your time, get busy and find yourself a nice boy here to take you places, and stop worrying as to who is taking whom some place else.

★ ★ ★

IN ANSWER TO "Heart-broken": The trouble with so many of you girls is that you will go out with a boy a few times, begin foolishly to think romance where no romance existed, think you own the boy and become possessive. This boy you mention has a perfect right to date your girl friend or any other girl he chooses. You will have competition to face always where "men" are concerned and might just as well begin to learn to cope with it now. Reproaching him will only drive him farther away. Be glad to see him if he comes around again, if not, busy yourself with other boys in the crowd, and seeing you popular with others may get him to date you again even if he hasn't done so for weeks.

★ ★ ★

IN ANSWER TO "Janet": If you will send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope I'll mail you my direction for making a rose jar.

Don't Compare

By Angelo Patri

"THERE you go again. That's the third dish you have broken this week and your brother has never broken one. Your brother can wipe dishes without making a sound and you can't lay hold of a dish without smashing it. Get out of the kitchen."

Grace was a clumsy child. There was no denying it. She bumped into things; she let things fall; she broke vases and dishes. Brother was deft and sure. Their mother, out of patience with the girl's clumsiness, compared sister and brother greatly to the discredit of the sister. The children took turns at doing the dishes and there was certain to be trouble when it was Grace's turn.

★ ★ ★

SCOLDING and shaming a child or comparing him to another only adds to his trouble. Told he is clumsy, he feels unsure and that feeling, reaching his hands, ends in a smash.

One child differs from another and each must have the training he requires. It would be better to let the boy do the dishes and allow the girl to do some other chore that does not require deft handling until such time as she gains the use of her hands.

Some children do not develop skill in the use of their hands as early as others. We cannot expect all to be equally able in every field. Adjust the task to the child's ability; this will encourage him and he will gain power in some congenial task.

THERE is no such thing as justice of that sort in life. The thought of "justice" should enter. The needs of the child are what is important. He needs to succeed, to feel approved, to be encouraged to undertake new tasks within his ability.

Accept the fact that one child differs from the other. Don't disparage a child by accenting his deficiencies and highlighting the abilities of the others. "Why aren't you like your brother?" is an idle question. They are unlike each other because they were created that way.

Have a good word for each child in his place and life will be easier for all.

Social Problems

By Emily Post

THE following letter reflects the times: "I do general housework, living in the house. I am the only maid in a large house and family. They are very kind and considerate people. Everybody helps a little and my position in the house is that of a friend compared with what I've been accustomed to. Before, when I worked in larger houses that had other help, we called the lady of the house 'Madam.' It seemed right to me then, but it seems rather formal in this situation. Shall I say 'Mrs. Doe,' or am I wrong about 'Madam'? I wish you'd advise me.

"Madam" is always correct—though, under many circumstances, "Mrs. Doe" would be proper. My suggestion is to ask her which she prefers.

DEAR MRS. POST: My mother and father are legally separated. There can be no divorce. I'm being married and wondered whether the marriage announcements as well as the notice in the newspapers might be worded "Mr. and Mrs. John Smith." I'd rather not emphasize the family rift, especially since so many distant people, as well as the groom's relatives, don't know.

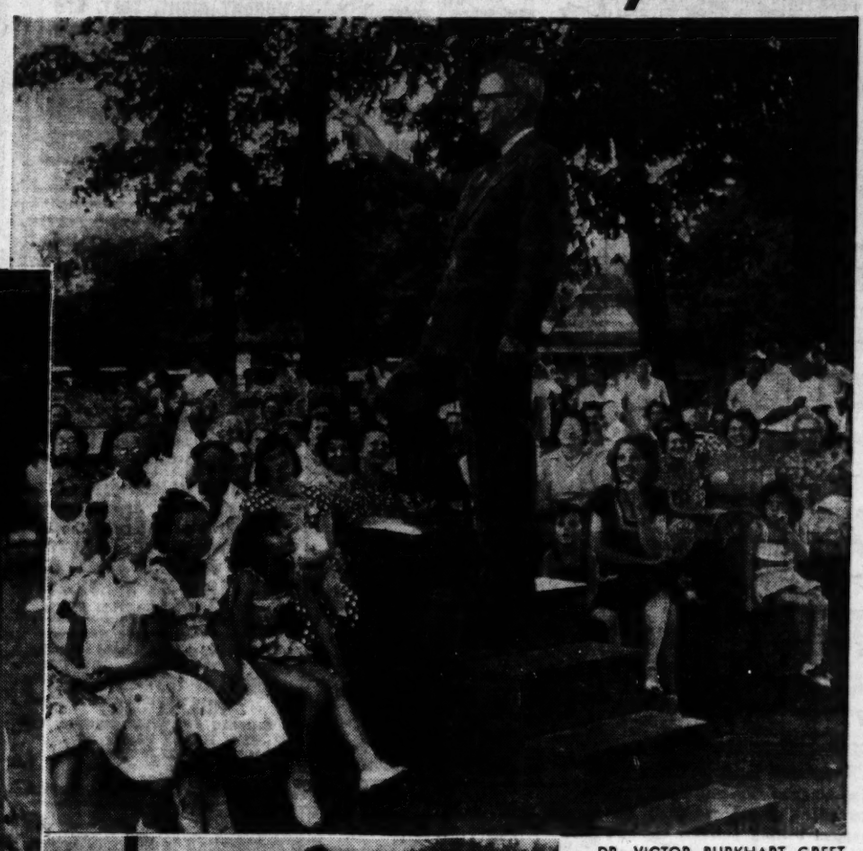

Answer: If your parents were divorced, it would be impossible. But if as your letter suggests, they merely are separated and friendly besides, and if your mother has not renounced your father's name, it would be quite possible to have the invitations go out in the names of "Mr. and Mrs."

Hand in Hand With The Great Physician

Dr. Victor Burkhart Is Given 'Day' for 38 Years' Service in Illinois Town—When Medical Science Fails, He Humbly Relies on Higher Power

SIX BURKHART BABIES POSE ON A GENTLE HORSE.

DR. VICTOR BURKHART GREETING GUESTS ON HIS "DAY" AT HURST, ILL. HE IS ONE PROPHET WITH HONOR IN HIS OWN COUNTRY.

By F. A. Behymer

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

HURST, Ill., Aug. 30.

DR. VICTOR BURKHART dismissed his last patient at noon and went out, locking his office door behind him. This was his day, Dr. Burkhart Day, when he would be honored by his neighbors for his nearly 38 years' service to them. He thought back to that other day, Nov. 11, 1911, when he began practicing here, and his first patient. . . .

Joe Moroni was frantic that day. His little Josephine, his bambino, was sick unto death. The night was coming on. It was in the night that the crisis would come. He had been told that and he believed it because the darkness had terrors of its own.

The doctor! He should be there but he hadn't come. Joe Moroni went running to the office of the town's doctor, a young man, not long out of college but the community's only dependence. The doctor wasn't there. At his boarding house they said yes, he was there, but—well, the fact was that the doctor wasn't feeling well and he couldn't come.

Joe Moroni raved. What! The doctor couldn't come when his little Josephine so needed his help! They told him the child might be better off if he didn't come, for he, not feeling well, and not long out of medical school, might not know what to do. He might even do the wrong thing.

It happened, though, that another young doctor had come visiting the community's doctor. Maybe he could help. This was Dr. Victor Burkhart, who had come from Indiana. Joe Moroni begged him to come. He hesitated. It was hardly the thing to do. The frantic father clung to him and beseeched him. If he didn't come his little Josephine would die.

Dr. Burkhart reflected upon his Hippocratic oath. As he remembered, there was nothing in it to fit a case like this, but he was bound by it to serve human need. Yes, he would go.

He had not brought from Indiana his medicine case, for he had only come to Hurst to visit his classmate, looking for a place in southern Illinois to locate, but he caught up his friend's kit and Joe Moroni, beside himself with thankfulness, showed him the way to where the child lay sick unto death.

It was pneumonia that had fastened upon the child and her night of crisis had indeed come. She was Dr. Burkhart's first patient. Having had no experience, he could only do what his professors had taught him and what he had learned from the books. All night he stayed, watching the child's flushed face as, too weak to struggle, she hovered between life and death. At dawn she sighed and sank into peaceful slumber. "She will live," he said.

Joe Moroni and Mother Moroni, who had prayed all night, thanked the doctor and God and all the saints.

To this day Dr. Burkhart doesn't know for sure whether it was his skill or the prayers of the parents that prevailed. All that he knows is that he did his best. That night, as many times since, when he had done his best, he left it in all humility in the hands of The Great Physician. Joe Moroni, though, had no doubts that it was the young doctor, whatever higher help he might have had, who had saved his 3-year-old daughter's life.

That being the case, Moroni said to Dr. Burkhart that day: "You must stay here." The doctor said he couldn't do that. He was there as the guest of his classmate. He couldn't set himself up in practice in opposition to the man whose hospitality he had accepted. "Couldn't you buy him out? Moroni asked.

Yes, that could be done without ethical impropriety, but the trouble was that Dr. Burkhart, just out of school, didn't have any money. Just a week ago he had been married. He was looking for a place to locate but he couldn't afford to buy another doctor's practice.

JOE MORONI was a man of affairs, proprietor of the best store and tavern in the town. He had money. There were things that money could do. "You wait here," he said, and went looking for the other doctor. When he came back he laid in Doctor Burkhart's hand a bill of sale for the young physician's practice, lock, stock and barrel. "Now you can stay," he said. Dr. Burkhart accepted Moroni's help as a loan. He would repay. Moroni waved that aside as something of no importance.

Nobody knows what Joe Moroni said to the other doctor. He may have given the young man to understand that there was no future for him in Hurst. Joe was a leader among the many Italians who had come across the sea to work in the mines. What he said over the bar of his tavern went with them. If the doctor had stayed Joe might have leaned over the bar and told Pietro and Guiseppi: "That doctor, he no good. When my leetle Josephine was next theeng to dying that doc not come. He not feeling well. He no good."

The word would have gone around, for the Italians of Hurst and the other mining towns round about, deeply grateful for every kindness, were good too at remembering every wrong. If the doctor had stayed he might have had rough sledding. Being unmarried and carefree he went away and Dr. Burkhart stayed and with the benediction of Joe Moroni on his head he prospered.

That was almost 38 years ago and all that time Dr. Burkhart has served the people of Hurst and the nearby towns of Bush, Cambria and Blairsville, and often farther afield, most of the time as their only physician and surgeon.

When he left Bloomington, Ind., to look for a location it was the understanding that when he had found the place that suited him he would come back for his bride. He didn't go back for her because he was needed too badly in Hurst.

That was the heyday of the mines and there was much for a doctor to do. He wrote, instead, and told his waiting bride that he had found a place to practice and she should join him in Hurst. She came soon. At first they lived in a hotel room, then were invited to share the home of a family, but within three months they went to housekeeping in a home of their own which they have occupied ever since.

Now it was coming on to the thirty-eighth anniversary of Dr. Burkhart's arrival in Hurst. All that time Dr. Burkhart had served his generation faithfully and well, and had brought 3500 babies into the world. It was time for the people to show him that they appreciated what he had done for them.

★ ★ ★

IT was Audie Calvert who first put it into words. Audie is a member of the Lions Club. Homer Farmer is president of the club. Said Audie: "Look, Homer, old Doc Burkhart has been here going on 38 years. We ought to do something to honor him. What's the matter with getting up a Dr. Burkhart day for him?" Homer said it was okay with him. He would bring it up at the next meeting of the club.

He brought it up and the club members were all for it, for Old Doc, they said, in their jolly way, was a jolly good fellow. Old Doc they called him, but that was just their way of saying that they liked him, for he isn't old at all, only 67, and looking much younger than that.

Homer Farmer was for putting it off until September, so that they would have plenty of time to work it up, but the members were too keen about it to wait. So they fixed on last Thursday for Dr. Burkhart Day.

A great day it was, with all business suspended and everybody there, including Dr. Burkhart babies by the score. They could be identified by the buttons that they wore: "I am a Dr. Burkhart Baby." The first one that Dr. Burkhart brought after saving the life of little Josephine was there—Lawrence Followell, who will be 38 next Jan. 27—and the first girl baby—Mrs. Norma White, 37—and the youngest one, the 10-day-old child of Mr. and Mrs. Buck Jeralds.

And Josephine Moroni was there, timidly accepting the honors as Dr. Burkhart's first patient. She of course was too young when it happened to remember the night when young Dr. Burkhart saved her, but she knew all about it from her father. She remembered the time when he said: "This is the doctor who saved you when you coulda died. He vera good man."

Josephine didn't know then what it meant to be saved from dying, but she was grateful to him for whatever he had done, she and her sister and two brothers, all unmarried, who carry on the store business that their father left them when he and their mother, in the fullness of their years, went away and left them in spite of all that the doctor could do.

★ ★ ★

HUNDREDS had assembled in the town park when, at 3 o'clock, the fire siren announced the doctor's approach. With clapping of hands he was welcomed and cheered again as he stood on elevated steps and gave them his brief greeting. Later there was a parade, with the doctor riding in a one-horse buggy like the one that he had when he first came. The old folks who remembered when he was a horse-and-buggy doctof indeed smiled but the eyes of some of them sparkled with tears, for it reminded them of times that are gone when the doctor had saved their loved ones and times when all his ministrations failed and death's dark horse came in the night.

Mostly, though, it was a gay and happy time, with games and contests, a parade of decorated bicycles, a doll baby parade, 54 hams and 200 cases of soda pop for the free barbecue feast, and square dancing at night.

At last Dr. Burkhart and his wife and their daughter, the wife of State Senator R. J. Young, and the grandchildren went wearily home. It had been a grand day and the doctor had not been so happy since the night when he saved the life of his first patient, little Josephine, Joe Moroni's bambino.

Contract Bridge

By Ely Culbertson

WHEN a player picks up a hand as bad as East's in the deal below, he has little reason for rejoicing! Yet, as proof that remarkable things can happen at the bridge table, East found that he had a very useful holding!

South, dealer.

	♠AKJ1076 ♥Q104 ♦107 ♣95
♠Q9 ♥7 ♦AKQJ652 ♣AQ3	NORTH WEST EAST SOUTH	♠8432 ♥52 ♦943 ♣8762
	♠5 ♥AKJ9863 ♦8 ♣KJ104

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♥	3♦	3♠	Pass
4♥	5♦	5♥	Pass
Pass	Pass

West said later that he had been tempted to save at six diamonds, but the bidding indicated that he would have to lose every "off" card in his hand.

Instead of sacrificing, West made a truly remarkable opening lead—and with a little luck, including some very natural carelessness on declarer's part, the sacrifice became quite unnecessary!

West opened the deuce of diamonds. Declarer reached negligently for the card in dummy that was easiest to reach, and that happened to be the seven spot. East, who could scarcely have a burning interest in the proceedings, flipped his diamond nine on the table—and almost fell out of his chair when he took the trick!

Astonished as he was, East had no difficulty in interpreting his partner's hopes, and his prompt club return, going through declarer's minor tenace, gave West two tricks that he lost no time in collecting. The contract was down one.

Granting that West was extremely lucky to get the result he did, it would be unfair to call his opening lead merely "sensational" and let it go at that. There was very definite planning and logic in West's selection. He recognized what was absolutely true: that the enemy's trumps were solid, and that North's spade suit would produce a great many discards for the declarer. He also assumed correctly that he would not be able to cash two diamonds. Thus his low diamond lead was made on the one reasonable hope that he could put his partner in for a club return. The bidding strongly indicated that South had the club king.

Tennessee Griddle Cakes

Ingredients: One and one-fourth cups sifted all-purpose flour, one teaspoon baking powder, one-half teaspoon baking soda, one-half teaspoon salt, two teaspoons brown sugar, one tablespoon cornmeal, one cup buttermilk, two tablespoons melted fat, 1 egg.

Method: Mix and sift the flour, baking powder, baking soda, salt, and brown sugar into a mixing bowl, low broad pitcher, or measure in which rotary egg beater can be used. Stir in the cornmeal. Add the buttermilk, melted fat, and the egg. Beat vigorously but quickly to combine ingredients in a smooth batter. Do not overheat. Bake cakes on a hot greased griddle or heavy skillet. Makes about eight cakes, using about one-fourth cup batter for each.

Economical Menus for Tomorrow

By Meta Given

MAN has improved a lot of food plants in the way of flavor, color, size and texture but he has not been able to do much about increasing their ability to combine with each other. Take that potent little bulb, garlic which is qualified to enhance or to impair the flavor of many foods. A suspicion of it here and there in vegetable, meat, fish and poultry does wonders for adding a very distinctive and a highly desirable flavor. But when one ventures beyond that optimum small amount, one runs the risk of producing most unwelcome foods.

Most of us are perfectly content to have garlic used cautiously and that is the way we have used it in the eggplant parme described in the following recipe. This vegetable cheese combination is so peppy that it needs to be served with other vegetables that are mild. As we suggest in today's dinner menu, plain boiled rice or potatoes are excellent. The salad should not contain tomatoes to follow the rules for making satisfactory menus. Choose a low flat baking dish for baking eggplant parme. This gives oven heat a chance to merge all the flavors and evaporate the sauce down to its most appealing consistency quickly.

Eggplant Parme.

One medium eggplant, one-fourth cup olive oil, one small onion (walnut size), one small clove garlic, three-fourths teaspoon salt, pepper, flour, four ounces Parmesan cheese, two cups canned tomatoes, one-fourth teaspoon paprika.

Wash eggplant and cut in half-inch slices. Peel slices. Heat oil in skillet, add chopped onion and garlic clove peeled and chopped very fine. Saute slowly uncovered for three or four minutes. Sprinkle salt and pepper on eggplant slices and dip in flour. Place the slices in the hot olive oil and brown delicately on both sides. Lay eggplant in the casserole. Sprinkle cheese over top. Put the tomatoes through a food mill, stir paprika into tomato puree and pour this over the top. Bake in a moderately hot oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) for about 30 minutes or until sauce is cooked down to a thick gravy-like consistency. Serves four or five.

LOST COST MENUS.

Wednesday.

Take My Word for It

Bouquet of Flower Names.

MIAMI: Ever since by biology days I have pronounced (the flower) as AN-ee-moan. My sister-in-law insists that I am wrong. What do you say?—C.J.S.

Answer: I'm sorry, but I must side with your sister-in-law. 'AN-ee-moan" is not sanctioned by any authority known to me. Better say: uh-NEM-uh-nee.

St. Paul: I find myself saying "ver-BEEN-yuh" for the flower verbena. Why is this? — Mrs. C.H.J.

Answer: Apparently it's because of false association with the name gardenia. But verbena does not end in -ia. Correct pronunciation: ver-BEEN-nuh.

White Plains: In a botany book I've been reading a very interesting article on lichens and other mosses. Is it all right for me to pronounce lichen to rhyme with kitchen?—Mrs. C.L.H.

Answer: Sorry, no. "LITCH-en" is a common mispronunciation. To be correct, pronounce lichen exactly like the word liken. Say LY-k'n.

Nashville: In our club we always say "klem-AT-iss" for the flower clematis. But I've been told it's incorrect. Will you please discuss, and also give us the origin of the name?—A.C.

Answer: Better accent clematis on the first syllable: KLEM-uh-tiss. The origin is the Greek klematis, "little vine branch."

Norfolk: My Webster's lists "di-ji-TAY-liss" as the only pronunciation for the flower digitalis, but no one I know pronounces the third syllable as "tay." Must I?—Mrs. M.R.

Answer: No. The "tay" pronunciation is found in the elderly dictionaries. But the modern authorities give full sanction to the Standard American pronunciation di-ji-TAL-iss.

The cloche style of hat with deep, square crown is reminiscent of the 1920 era. Designed primarily for wear with the short hair-do, this type of hat fits well down on the head. Beaver-like felt also is another old-fashioned millinery accent revived in the fall hat styles.

Don't try to make a chimney spark arrestor by just laying a piece of wire screening over the top of the chimney. An arrangement of this sort soon becomes clogged with soot and dirt. Make a box out of the screening and set this on top of the chimney.
